SHORT LIST FOR B.C POST

By PAUL NICHOLSON
Times Staff

Two university professors — one from Alberta and the other from B.C. — are the top contenders for the post of ombudsman in B.C.

University of Calgary political science professor Karl A. Friedmann is the front runner at this point, the Times has learned.

His main competition for the $52,000-a-year post comes from University of B.C. law professor Frank Maczko, founder of the B.C. legal aid society.

The ombudsman won't be named until after the legislature convenes in the New Year but the successful applicant is expected to be chosen before then.

An 11-member multi-party legislative committee has been meeting for months on a short list of four names from the more than 400 applicants.

The committee's choice must be unanimous.

The other two applicants on the short list are now considered to have only an outside chance.

They are Peter Bazowski, retired RCMP commissioner and more recently interim administrator at Vancouver General Hospital, and Dr. Barry Moore, principal of Northern Lights Community College in Dawson Creek.

Friedmann, 40, is an expert on the role of an ombudsman. He has written numerous articles and two books on the position and has studied its functions in other countries.

He has been a professor for 12 years. A senior spokesman in his department said in an interview from Calgary that Fried-

Well-Equipped Gang Gets Away with $5M

NEW YORK (UPI) — A band of masked gunmen handcuffed 10 employees at a Lufthansa Airlines cargo hangar at Kennedy Airport early today and fled with $5 million in cash and some $300,000 in jewelry, authorities said.

The money was en route to the Chase Manhattan Bank from a bank in Frankfurt, West Germany, according to a spokesman for the New York bank.

James Connolly, a spokesman for the Port Authority police said the gang members gained entry to Building 261 at the airport at 3:10 a.m. by thrusting a gun into the face of one of the Lufthansa employees.

They forced the workers into an employees' cafeteria where they pistol-whipped one man and then left the group handcuffed, Connolly said.

The gunmen then went back to the cargo holding area where they took some 15 bags containing $5 million in cash and $300,000 worth of jewels and fled in a dark-colored van, believed to be a Ford, authorities said.

"It went off like clockwork. It was well-planned, well-organized and well-executed," Connolly said.

He said Port Authority detectives were trying to determine why a silent alarm system that would have alerted police failed to work.

Vote Ends Strike In W. Kootenay

Non-teaching workers in West Kootenay schools decided Sunday to abide by the provincial government's back-to-work legislation and return to work today.

Following a three-hour meeting, about 200 of the 250 striking workers, members of the Canadian Union of Public Employees, voted to return to their jobs in Castlegar, Trail, Nelson, and Grand Forks school districts as well as at Selkirk College here.

Fred Pyke, CUPE national representative, said the return to work is a grudging one.

"You can't keep people out on the picket line for six weeks and expect them to go back to work happy," he said. "They figure the trustees have given up any sense of honesty with them as employees."

The back-to-work legislation was passed by the legislature early Saturday morning after a marathon special session that began Friday morning.

Pyke said the dispute will drag on because the BCSTA will not make a new offer.

"We're not going to settle for what we went out over—there has to be more money and the BCSTA has said 'no, there's no more money.'"

The most controversial action by the government — it has stirred up a hornet's nest within organized labor and attacks from oppposition politicans — was to include a section in the bill ending the West Kootenays dispute which would broaden the jurisdiction covered by the Essential Services Disputes Act.

In Vancouver, the B.C. Teachers Federation said Saturday it has joined the protest against the legislation because it could provide for inclusion of educational and municipal workers in the Essential Services Disputes Act which enables the government to order strikers in some occupations back to work.

BCTF president Pat Brady said the federation recognizes that action had to be taken to end the six-week strike-lockout involving non-teaching employees, to allow teachers and about 15,000 students to return normal classroom conditions.

Local reaction to the legislation was mixed.

Rick Doyle, president of Local 388 of the Canadian Union of Public Employees which bargains for city inside workers, sees the move as beneficial to employees.

However, Jim Walker, spokesman for eight CUPE locals which bargain as a unit, said today it gives added negotiating punch to municipal employers.

And the president of the B.C. School Trustees Association described the government action as unnecessary although he said the government had no choice but to force an end to the West Kootenays schools labor dispute.

The B.C. Federation of Labor will meet Friday to map its course of action against Section 11.

CANADA POST CORPORATION BILL BARED

OTTAWA (CP) — The government introduced a bill today to convert the post office department to a Crown corporation—a long-standing union demand.

The bill eventually would place almost all post office employees under the Canada Labor Code. They now are covered by the more restrictive Public Service Staff Relations Act.

Under the legislation the position of postmaster-general will be maintained to develop national postal policies.

But the Canadian transport commission, the guiding agency for railways and the like, will set the postal rates after the "Canada Post Corp." comes into being. Interested parties will be able to make submissions on new postal rates to the commission.

The corporation, which will be similar to the Crown corporation now operating at a profit in Britain, will have a president and a chairman of a board of up to 15 directors.

The corporation will have a monopoly in the collection and distribution of mail.

Union contracts covering existing employees will be transferred to the postal corporation.

The opposition has said it supports the idea of a postal corporation so the bill is expected to get fairly quick passage through Parliament after it is introduced for second reading, probably in January.

Chanting Demonstrators Flood Streets of Tehran

Times News Services

TEHRAN — Hundreds of thousands of Iranians chanting "Down with the shah!" flooded the streets of Tehran today in the second mass demonstration in the capital in two days.

No violence was reported here but protesters were reported to have pulled down statues of the shah in other cities.

Peaceful anti-shah marches were reported Sunday in other cities throughout the country, but in Hamadan, 400 kilometres southwest of Tehran, the city's civilian governor was wounded seriously and his bodyguard killed by a gunman outside the governor's house. Police killed the assassin.

Meanwhile, the shah's arch enemy, exiled Shiite sect leader Ayatollah Khomeini, warned that any country, especially the United States, which continues to support the shah from Monday on would face an oil embargo once his followers gained power in Iran.

"If these governments from today on support the shah against whom all the people are opposed, they should know we will cancel all contracts," Khomeini said in a speech to 200 followers at his exile villa near Paris:

"If foreign governments continue supporting the shah, we will not give them any oil.

In the northeastern city of Mashhad, anti-shah rioters stormed the U.S.-owned Hyatt Hotel on Sunday, wrecked the ground floor and made an abortive attempt to set the hotel's nightclub on fire, reliable sources said. No casualties were reported.

There was no official estimate of the size of today's demonstration in Tehran, but it was at least as big as Sunday's. The government said 400,000 people took part in that protest, but the opposition said as many as two million participated.

Leaders of the march, reading a proclamation under the towering, arch-like Shahyad monument, built in 1966 to commemmorate the 25th year of the shah's reign, declared they will continue to encourage strikes to maintain economic pressure on the government.

The main work stoppage is a strike in the oil industry that has cut Iran's daily oil production in half.

Rebel Bases Bombed

SALISBURY (UPI) — Rhodesia said today its warplanes launched new raids into Mozambique and destroyed several guerrilla weapons depots. It gave only scanty details but Mozambique radio said more than two dozen people were killed.

A military communique announcing the strikes denied a Mozambique radio report that two Rhodesian Canberra jet bombers were shot down inside Rhodesia. "All aircraft returned safely to base," the announcement said.

The radio said 26 people were killed and 73 wounded. It said the casualties included civilians but reported that one of the Rhodesian targets was a "political and military training centre."

Court Orders Meier Out

VANCOUVER (CP) — A county court judge today ordered former Howard Hughes aide John Meier extradited to the United States to face two counts of obstruction of justice through forgery.

Meier has been a resident of Delta for at least two years.

OWN TEETH MARKS BITE CALGARY MAN

CALGARY (CP) — A Calgary man has been sentenced to eight years in prison in a case which court officials believe set a North American precedent for use of bite marks as identification.

Michael Stanley Hosson, 21, was sentenced Friday on charges of attempting to strangle and indecent assault involving a 13-year-old babysitter.

Crown prosecutor Peter Martin said identification of bite marks on the girl's abdomen as belonging to Hosson was unprecedented.

Marks on the victim were photographed less than 12 hours after they had been made and compared with the prominences and depressions of Hosson's teeth by forensic odontologist John Blair.

Blair said later he has made more than 100 identifications through bite marks of accident victims and of persons suspected of child abuse.

Acid Forced on Jilter

PALERMO, Sicily (Reuter) — A 17-year-old worker was forced to swallow hydrochloric acid Saturday by the parents of his jilted fiancee, police said.

The youth was taken to hospital while police arrested the couple and charged them with attempted murder.

The couple had forced an open bottle containing the poisonous chemical into the mouth of Carlo lo Cascio after he told them he no longer intended to marry their daughter, police said.

Lesotho: 1.2M in Poverty

What do you know about Lesotho?

Not much perhaps, beyond the fact that it is down near the southern tip of Africa.

But there are roughly 1.2 million people living in the kingdom's 11,720 square miles (30,355 square kilometres to those who are metrically adjusted).

More to the point, Lesotho is one of the world's poorest countries. It is overpopulated, desperately short of natural resources and only 12 per cent of its land is suitable for agriculture.

Low incomes, poor housing, inadequate water supplies and sanitary facilities as well as insufficient health education result in malnutrition, tuberculosis, typhoid and gastroenteritis.

Only 16 per cent of the children who start primary education are able to complete it. Only 10 per cent pass the final primary examinations.

Children are used as herdboys on family farms from the age of four because of the absence of the father who is likely working in the mines of South Africa.

The people of Lesotho, in many cases, are in desperate straits.

This is where the Unitarian Service Committee and its campaign director Dr. Lotta Hitschmanova come in.

Once again this year the Times is co-operating with Dr. Lotta in raising funds in the Victoria area. This year's goal is to top the record $31,369 collected in 1977.

Among the many uses to which this year's money will be put is to provide 48 secondary school scholarships in Lesotho and to build a five-room vocational training school.

Worthwhile causes and worthy of our support.

Venus's Secret Shatters Theories

MOUNTAIN VIEW, Calif. (AP) — Unexpected results from the Venus project, like ill-fitting pieces in a cosmic puzzle, are defying scientists' efforts to place them into existing theories about how the solar system was created.

Because the pieces don't fit, the puzzle may have to be changed, say scientists for the U.S. National Aeronautics and Space Administration (NASA).

The surprise information from the earth's most ambitious encounter with Venus was reported Sunday as scores of scientists at the Ames Research Centre here reported on initial data transmitted from five research vehicles that descended Saturday through the planet's hostile atmosphere.

Four of the instrument-laden vehicles reached the torrid venusian surface, while the fifth burned up in the atmosphere.

"It certainly means we have to rethink the whole formation theories of the planets of the inner solar system," said Dr. John Hoffman, a physicist at the University of Texas-Dallas.

The scientists found that the proportion of argon-36 — an inert gas — in the venusian atmosphere appears to be 100 times greater than that on earth or Mars.

The findings are important because that form of argon cannot be created after a planet's formation, and if Venus was formed the way earth and Mars were, it probably would have been about the same amount.

This means, the scientists say, either that Venus was formed from different substances than the rest of the solar system or that the formation process itself was different.

"It's a totally unexpected result that we've come up with," Dr. Michael McElroy, a Harvard University physicist who was among experts reporting the findings, said at a NASA briefing. "It appears that Venus formed of different stuff than earth."

The argon readings are not the only evidence that the formation of Venus billions of years ago may have been different from other planets. Measurements of ultraviolet radiation from more than 150 kilometres above the planet's surface bolster the theory that Venus, unlike earth, may have lost water it once had through some sort of cataclysmic reaction, said another scientist.

"(The measurements mean) either that there was never any water on Venus," said University of Colorado physicist Charles Barth, "or it was lost by something dramatically different from anything observed on other planets."

The five research vehicles and a sixth spacecraft orbiting the planet for the next seven months are part of NASA's $225-million Pioneer Venus mission, which is this first comprehensive U.S. attempt to chart the topography and atmospheric conditions of earth's nearest planetary neighbor.

SHOYAMA GIVEN $5,000 AWARD

OTTAWA (CP) — Thomas Shoyama, deputy minister of finance, has been awarded $5,000 for outstanding achievement in the public service in 1978.

The prime minister's office said in a statement today that Shoyama, 62, was selected for the award—presented annually under the public service's incentive award plan—by a five-member committee from outside the federal civil service.

Members of this year's committee were: Paul Demarais, president of Power Corp. of Canada Ltd., chairman; John Bulloch, president of the Canadian Federation of Independent Business; Frances Perry, of Summerside, P.E.I.; Dorothy A. Richardson, assistant director of the Alberta human rights commission; and David Suzuki, a zoology professor at the University of British Columbia.

Bulloch said today that Shoyama, a native of Kamloops, B.C., and deputy minister of finance since 1975, was chosen from 30 public servants nominated from within the civil service during the year.

Committee members were given names and background material on each candidate. The winner was chosen by secret ballot, he said.

Shoyama joined the public service in 1948 with Central Mortgage and Housing Corp.

Pair Charged In Drug Raid

Two of seven people arrested in a drug raid by Oak Bay police over the weekend have been charged with possession of narcotics for the purpose of trafficking.

The other five, arrested after police raided homes in Victoria and Oak Bay, have been charged with possession.

Wendy Hanson, 25, of 2072 Chaucer and Les Brough, 26, who refused to give his address, appeared in court Saturday to face trafficking charges.

Police are not releasing names of the other five until they are brought to court later this month.

Police arrested the suspects at 2072 Chaucer, Oak Bay, and at 315 Montreal, Victoria.

The Oak Bay detachment had been investigating the case for six weeks.

Quantities of hashish, marijuana and cocaine were seized in the raid.

Montreal Suites Blaze

MONTREAL (CP) — A three-alarm fire caused extensive damage to a three-storey downtown building containing apartments and small businesses early today.

Police said there were no deaths or injuries in the blaze, which took about 100 firefighters two hours to bring under control amid bitter cold temperatures.

The building, on Ste. Catherine Street West, was about three kilometres away from the city's old quarter where two five-alarm fires occured last week — one at historic Notre Dame church, the other at a rooming house in which three died.

CRACKED TANKER WON'T SINK

A Seattle-based rescue official says a Greek tanker being escorted to the West Coast by the U.S. Coast Guard cutter Modoc is in no danger of sinking.

Rescue co-ordinator Bruce Simokat said the 232-metre tanker Evangelia will proceed on its own to San Francisco.

The Evangelia developed a three-metre crack in its hull while enroute to a Korean scrapyard.

'Grudging' Workers Vote to Return

the labor minister (Allan Williams), double-crossed every working person in the province yesterday (Saturday), and used a bunch of school kids in the West Kootenays to do it."

Doyle said his members were happy to see the government take such a move.

"As far as our local goes if I asked the members whether they preferred binding arbitration or strikes or lockouts, the former would get overwhelming support," he said.

He said strikes in the municipal sector have little benefit to the employees because the employers save money the longer the strike lasts. Therefore, the employees don't have the same clout in the use of the strike as do workers in the private sector.

Doyle also said that the essential services statute can only rule out strikes for those services the Labor Relations Board judges to be essential. That would not include all municipal services, some of which are clearly not essential, he added.

Also, Doyle said, the essential services legislation gives the employees the right to call for binding arbitration should the collective bargaining process collapse. This gives the employees an advantage over the employer.

Walker, president of CUPE local 50 representing city outside workers, doesn't see it that way. He feels in essential services, the employer can stall and balk during negotiations knowing that down the line the responsibility for settling the dispute is going to be taken out of his hands and given to an arbitrator.

"The employer is in a much better position if an arbitrated settlement is available."

Walker said there is little doubt the government used the West Kootenays dispute as an excuse to test the waters on its essential services proposal.

He said he didn't think Section 11 will have any real effect on the current negotiations between the various CUPE locals and the Greater Victoria Labor Relations Association but only time will tell.

Dave Kandal, president of the B.C. School Trustees Association, said the section was unncessary and is a move his members don't approve.

"It is only the action in the West Kootenays of an irresponsible labor union that made it necessary for the government to consider such a measure," he said.

"If CUPE had bargained in good faith this development would never have occurred."

Kandal said he feels the government took the action to take advantage of a prevailing public opposition to any more strikes or labor distruptions.

"What they probably saying (to labor) is get your house in order or else," Kandal said.

Meanwhile, there could be another CUPE-school district confrontation early in the new year.

Port Alberni school board inside and outside workers, members of CUPE, local 727, have voted to go on strike. A walkout is not imminent, however, as the union has applied for a mediator.

CUPE spokesman Murray Gray said today the 180 employees lost ground with their counterparts in the private sector during the years of the federal anti-inflation guidelines and they want that parity restored.

"If they don't get it they will be taking the employers on," he said.

Meanwhile, school board employees in Nanaimo voted overwhelmingly Sunday night in favor of a two-year agreement with School District 69 which will provide a wage increase over the two years of about 16.8 per cent.

The 275 employees also recieved improvements in health and welfare plan coverage as well as holidays and other contract language changes.

Regional district employees have broken off talks with the school district and applied for a mediator. Other CUPE locals are continuing negotiations.

Ombudsman Race Down to Two

mann would be an excellent choice for the position.

Maczko was in private practice in Vancouver before helping found the legal aid society in 1970.

He was its first director, a position he held until accepting the teaching post at UBC in 1976.

It is believed that Maczko is running behind Friedmann because the committee is wary of naming a lawyer.

In the case of Bazowski, sources indicate his RCMP background may have hurt his chances.

Appointing an ombudsman is a long standing promise of Premier Bill Bennett and was initiated with passage of the Ombudsman Act in the spring 1977 session.

The selection committee was named later that year and began advertising in January, 1978. Within weeks the committee was swamped with applications for the post.

SUICIDE THREAT, THEN FATAL NOSE-DIVE

SEATTLE (AP) — The pilot of a small plane who radioed the Portland, Ore., airport that he was going to commit suicide nose-dived 300 metres to his death into the Pacific Ocean early Sunday, a United States Coast Guard spokesman said.

Lt. Phillip Johnson identified the pilot of the Cessna 150 as Les Reynolds, 28, of Salem, Ore.

He gave no indication why he was doing what he was doing," Johnson said.

It was not immediately known where the flight originated or whether the plane belonged to Reynolds. A search Sunday by a Coast Guard helicopter failed to locate Reynolds' body or debris from the crash.

Johnson said Reynolds radioed the Portland airport late Saturday night that he was 80 kilometres west of Astoria, Ore., and was going to crash his plane after letting the aircraft run out of fuel.

A Coast Guard helicopter later sighted the plane about 50 kilometres west of the mouth of the Columbia River. Suddenly the small plane nose-dived into the ocean, Johnson said.

He said the helicopter crew saw the plane go down but didn't see the actual impact.

Treaty Possible This Week: Vance

Times News Services

CAIRO — Secretary of State Cyrus Vance reported progress today in his attempt to bridge the gap between the Egyptian and Israeli positions and said he was striving to have their peace treaty wrapped up by the end of this week.

Vance spoke to reporters after a 75-minute meeting with President Anwar Sadat — their second in two days — at the President's Nile-side Barrages residence north of Cairo.

Vance said progress was made toward resolving two outstanding issues, but more progress was needed before agreement could be clinched by the Dec. 17 target date.

Vance said he is prepared to stay in the Middle East as long as this is necessary.

Meanwhile, it was reported Sadat had called on Vance for more active U.S. participation in the Egyptian-Israeli peace process and "strong, binding" U.S. commitments and guarantees to wrap up an agreement.

Quoting Egyptian diplomatic sources, Al Ahram said Sadat told Vance during a 90-meeting Sunday:

"Without active American participation, it will be difficult for Egypt and Israel to achieve agreement before Dec. 17, the date that President Jimmy Carter calls for and which Egypt reaffirms the necessity of respecting."

U.S. commitments and guarantees for wrapping up a peace accord with Israel "must be strong and binding, or peace will not be realized," the newspaper quoted Sadat as having said.

The president said Egypt envisages a comprehensive, clear-cut and applicable peace pact, devoid of any loopholes that might precipitate complications in the future, Al Ahram continued to quote:

"Negotiations (with Israel) will have to be resumed at once, with the treaty signing to take place on Mount Sinai and with the three religions (Islam, Christianity and Judaism) and all parties to the Arab-Israeli conflict to be represented."

Vance arrived Sunday afternoon on a visit to Egypt and Israel to try to resolve the disagreements blocking conclusion of a peace treaty. After a meeting today with Prime Minister Mustafa Khalil and leading members of his cabinet and another session with Sadat, he was flying to Israel for the funeral of former prime minister Golda Meir.

He will return to Cairo after the funeral Tuesday, meet again with Egyptian officials and return to Jerusalem Wednesday to confer with Prime Minister Menachem Begin and other Israeli officials.

"After that we are playing it by ear," said spokesman George Sherman when asked whether Vance would shuttle from Jerusalem back to Cairo or return to Washington.

Nobel Winners Stress Hurdles

OSLO (WP) — Prime Minister Menachem Begin of Israel and President Anwar Sadat of Egypt Sunday underlined the gap still remaining between their nations at a Nobel Peace Prize ceremony held in an isolated and heavily guarded medieval castle.

Although both leaders had expressed hope that peace would be reached by the ceremony date, neither gave any hint of a readiness to break their deadlock over a Middle East peace treaty.

Begin, who came in person to receive his share of the award, stressed his support for a draft treaty that Sadat wants to amend.

Sadat, who pointedly passed up the trip to collect his medal — sending envoy Sayed Marei instead — emphasized the rights of Palestinian Arabs.

The speeches at Akershus Castle on a fjord outside the center of Oslo struck a curious note at a rite honoring the Israeli and Egyptian leaders for their contribution to peace.

So, too, did the scores of soldiers, police and security agents, armed with rifles and machine guns, swarming over the castle's ramparts, courtyards and drafty halls.

Many Norwegians regard the award as another oddity in the eccentric history of the prize provided by the will of Alfred Nobel, inventor of dynamite and the percussion blasting cap.

Carter Urges Treaty As Tribute to Meir

Times News Services

TEL AVIV — President Carter said in a message delivered by his mother today that a peace treaty between Egypt and Israel would serve as a wonderful memorial to former Prime Minister Golda Meir.

Mrs. Lillian Carter and a delegation of about 30 Americans that included former Secretary of State Henry A. Kissinger arrived in Israel to represent the United States at Mrs. Meir's funeral Tuesday.

Tens of thousands of Israelis paid final respects to the former prime minister today as her body lay in state in a closed, flag-draped coffin outside the parliament building.

The gates to the plaza of the Knesset, or parliament, were opened to the public at 10 a.m., soon after Israeli President Yitzhak Navon led the first mourners — a small group of relatives and friends — past the bier.

Mrs. Meir, one of the pioneer founders who presided at the birth of the Jewish state in 1948, died Friday at the age of 80.

Her doctors said she succumbed to lymphoma, a disease of the lymph glands she had battled in secret for 15 years, including the time from 1968 to 1974 when she was prime minister.

Not An Emergency

The essence of the West Kootenay Schools Collective Bargaining Assistance Act (Bill 46) has nothing to do with the labor problems that have been plaguing schools in the West Kootenays for the past six weeks. Neither does it have much to do with "collective bargaining assistance" unless one accepts that term as nothing more than a political euphemism for banning-strikes-and-lockouts.

No, the essence of the West Kootenay Schools Collective Bargaining Assistance Act is a clause that extends the provisions of the existing Essential Services Disputes Act to virtually every public sector employee and employer in B.C.

Municipalities, regional districts, school districts, colleges, universities and water districts are now liable to come under the terms of the act, which allows the cabinet — without reference to the legislature — to impose a 90-day cooling-off period in a labor dispute.

The act was first set up to apply only to policemen, firefighters, and hospital workers. In 1977 it was extended to include the provincial government and most of its Crown corporations. Now, as part of a so-called emergency bill, it is being extended further to the rest of the public sector.

Whether this last step should have been taken at all is one question, certainly open to debate. But there is no doubt that it should not have been taken the way the government has taken it, tagged on to the end of an emergency bill dealing with a specific labor dispute.

Because of the urgency of the dispute in the West Kootenay, the bill was passed through the legislature in a single day. There was not nearly the time for proper study by either government or opposition that there should have been.

In effect, the government acknowledged this when Labor Minister Allan Williams promised the bill would not be proclaimed until research had been done to find out the results of it. It is self-evident that no legislation should be shoved through the House as part of a so-called emergency when the government is cheerfully admitting it doesn't plan to proclaim it for weeks or months — or maybe not at all.

Williams' answer to the question of why the clause was being introduced now if it was not to be proclaimed — "It's simply because the legislation is being put forward at this time" — amounts to contempt for the legislative process designed to ensure that bills normally receive careful and thorough examination.

The vehement reactions of both the opposition and the labor movement to the bill make it clear that the new clause is not going to improve the labor climate in B.C. Indeed it will probably make it worse, partly because the Socreds' method of handling it has fed labor's fears — be they paranoid or realistic — that they intend to launch a concerted attack on the union movement before the next election, partly because the clause itself tends to unbalance further an already unbalanced situation that exists in labor relations in the public sector.

The government should definitely not have pushed that clause through the House as it did. But since that has been done, it should definitely not proclaim the clause without proper studies and without making public the results of those studies to prove that it is necessary in the first place.

Canada as the Village Idiot

Taxes have been cut to the point where the revenue structure is totally inadequate to support spending programs . . . Spending must be cut, or taxes increased.
Pitfield, MacKay Ross

OTTAWA — If you'll recall that most times an investment house is as likely to hint that higher taxes might not be such an awful idea as it is to encourage its employees to show up in jeans and "Go Dollar Go" T-shirts, then you'll understand that something strange must be going on down at Pitfield, MacKay Ross. Or up, actually, since PMR are on the 27th floor.

Strange perhaps, but by no means unique. Anywhere that people gather with blue chips on their shoulder, like at PMR, or at Midland Doherty, or at Wood Gundy, or at A. E. Ames, you can hear the lament: "Ottawa out of financial control."

Gnomes of Zurich

William Mackness, vice president of PMR, gives out with the most quotable quotes. Ottawa, says Mackness, "has wrecked its own fiscal structure, and has made Canada look like the international village idiot."

The idiot before us — not counting Italy, which doesn't count — was Britain. In 1975-76 the pound sterling was shredded by the gnomes of Zurich. (This was when the phrase was coined). Britain avoided bankruptcy only by a huge loan from the International Monetary Fund, given in exchange for savage cuts in social spending and for wage controls. North Sea oil now is keeping Britain solvent, temporarily.

Mackness believes that the IMF will be coming after us fairly soon. So does Conservative financial critic Sinclair Stevens. So do I.

Ottawa has run out of red ink. Scarlet now is its favorite color. As follows:

☐ Ottawa's annual cash deficit is now about $12 billion. To cover it, and to cover past borrowings, we are paying more and more in interest charges. Next year, of each $4 in taxes that Ottawa will collect, $1 will go straight out again in interest payments. At $8.3 billion, these debt costs have more than doubled in just four years.

☐ If Ottawa wanted to balance its books this year, which it doesn't want to do and couldn't anyway, it would have to fire all civil servants without severance pay, shut down Parliament, leave all its buildings empty and buy not a paper clip nor a fighter plane. This would save just enough in budgeted spending on goods and services ($12.5 billion) to offset the deficit ($12.1 billion).

☐ The public debt is now about $60 billion. In 1982, this sum will crash through the $100 billion barrier.

So much for the more or less okay news. The really bad news is that Ottawa has become an incurable debtor. As follows:

☐ Even if we enjoyed full employment today — which is to dream — Ottawa still would be in the red by about $5 billion. Even if we enjoy modest growth for five years (an immodest hope) we still will be in deficit in 1983 by about $10 billion.

Budget deficits, thus, no longer have anything to do with the theories of economist John Maynard Keynes, nor with "stimulating" the economy. They have become a fixture, pervasive and self-perpetuating.

If Ottawa doesn't get its house in order, we will have, Mackness believes, "a run on the dollar that will make your hair curl." Another run? To what? A 70-cent dollar? A 50-cent dollar? Your guess is as good, certainly, as Ottawa's.

To keep the IMF away from our door and the Zurich gnomes off our back, we have to do one or two things, or both. Cut spending. Increase taxes.

Spending cuts seem the easier road back to financial sanity. Prime Minister Trudeau, though, this fall attempted, not to cut spending but merely to restrain its growth; for his efforts he has received nothing but abuse.

Consider a couple of possibilities. A slash by half in unemployment insurance payments (worth about $2.5 billion), at a time when one million Canadians are jobless? A ten-fold increase in university fees so that students paid full costs (worth about $3.5 billion).

Increase by Half

Any takers? No. Let's look at the tax side, then. To wipe out next year's budget deficit would require an increase in personal income taxes of more than 50 per cent. Any takers?

On, now, to the nub of the problem. If the politicians lack the will to do anything, so equally, does the public.

We may get lucky, and find our own North Sea oil. We might go crazy like a fox and go so deeply into debt — hand-in-hand with some other debtor countries — that our creditors won't dare touch us. If not, in about two years time the gnomes will start to get really restless, and the IMF will send over a team of auditors, who will make Auditor-General James Macdonnell look like a guidance counsellor.

About Milk — and Money

As a farmer and a dairy producer I feel compelled to respond to your editorial of Dec. 2 on the price of milk. In it, you criticized the position taken by NDP MLA Barbara Wallace on the cost of milk quotas and accept the premise advanced some time ago by Profs. Grubel and Schwindt of Simon Fraser University and more recently by the chairman of the committee on agriculture, Social Credit MLA Len Bawtree.

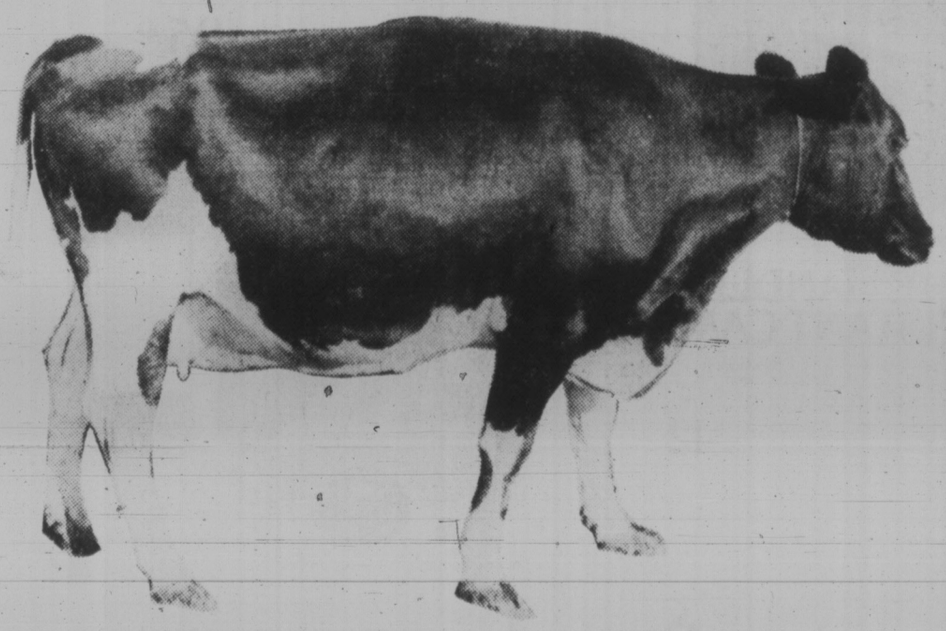
First, Mr. Bawtree has denied having made the statement that B.C. consumers are paying eight cents a quart more than they should. He told the B.C. Federation of Agriculture's annual convention in Richmond two weeks ago that all he had said was that the research staff of the committee had related the price of quota to eight cents a quart and that the press had misinterpreted this to mean that the price of milk was eight cents too high.

Secondly, the public should appreciate that the value of milk quotas is significantly influenced by the federal government's market share quota policy and not by the existence of lucrative profits as was suggested. Under this program, the province is limited to a specific level of industrial milk production which has been allocated to individual producers and production in excess of these allocations carries with it severe monetary penalties.

As a result, producers who find themselves in a potential penalty situation have created a demand for small purchases of quotas and hence the high cost. Mrs. Wallace was correct, however, in her statement that the cost of quotas is not incorporated into the formula employed by the milk board. Most milk quotas are not even sold and it is grossly misleading to blindly ascribe to all quotas the value of small pieces that have only recently exchanged hands as a result of penalty expectations. It is even more misleading to point to this as positive proof that there is too much money to be made in the milk business these days.

Mrs. Wallace's stand in support of the dairy producers in this province may not have been a popular one in many circles but in view of the political tap dancing being done by her colleague Mr. Bawtree, it was clearly a courageous one and well appreciated by the farming community.

There is much more involved in the debate which has arisen over marketing boards than arguments over the value of milk quotas. You are correct in saying that quotas represent "rights of entry" into the dairy farming business but to imply that this has led to some sort of conspiracy on the part of established producers to wangle more than what is equitable from the consuming public is hardly fair. Entry into any sector of our society is limited according to opportunity and, let us hope, not as a result of a select few deciding that they have a good thing going and ought to keep it to themselves.



For example, laws exist to protect the sovereignty of unions. It is quite acceptable that doctors, lawyers, university professors, teachers, accountants and various other business and professional groups form their own organizations to look after their respective interests. We all may have the right to engage whomever we please to look after our health, our legal matters, our income tax and the education of our children, but these organizations have the power to dictate the quality and number of people who will be available to do so.

I am not saying that all of these things are wrong. I'm merely saying that they exist, that there are good reasons for the fact that they do and that farmers must not be singled out as the only groups in society whose rights in this respect are to be ignored. With the increasing consolidation in the wholesaling, retailing and distributing sector, marketing boards are the only means through which producers have been able to offset the power of the large food chains. The boards represent an important source of producer bargaining power. Without them, many farmers would not be able to survive and the consolidation that has come to characterize other components of the food system would also spread to the primary sector.

There is much evidence to indicate that the savings at the grocery till likely to accompany such a transition would be short-lived, if at all, yet whether they realize it or not, this is precisely the scenario being advocated by Profs. Grubel and Schwindt and, depending on who you choose to believe, Mr. Bawtree. In essence they are saying that the "fair" wage for B.C. dairy farmers is whatever the hungriest applicant is willing to take. It is a position that has clearly been rejected by a majority of Canadians and is one which has historically been avoided in practice by all persons and groups having the power to do so, though usually given lip service "for the other fellow." Until the day comes when, in the name of giving the consumer the best deal possible, every job in this country is annually thrown open to the lowest bidder, farmers will continue to support the operation of marketing boards.

In closing your editorial you expressed the hope that the committee report on marketing boards would represent the first step towards eradicating "gross inequities" and "bringing us fairly-priced essential commodities." Marketing boards were in fact established to help check such "inequities" and along with the vast majority of farmers in this province, I am confident that when you check the bottom line of the committee report you will read that the marketing board concept cannot be fairly rejected unless there is to be a thorough revamping of commercial powers in union, business and professional monopolies throughout Canadian society. — George Aylard, Member of the Executive Committee, B.C. Federation of Agriculture, Sidney.

Missing Press

I am amazed that so little press coverage has been given to a most current and controversial issue, the proposed Family and Child Services Act. A free public forum was held at Newcombe Auditorium on Thursday, Nov. 30, entitled Focus on Family. A Times reporter was notified, but no reporter was present.

One powerful article was written the day before by Max Low on the new act. I would have thought that a follow-up article on the results of the public forum was essential.

Where were you? — Jacqui Aubuchon, 93 Cambridge Street.

What Do We Get?

Like most citizens, I am deeply concerned about the high cost of our three levels of government. The following figures are calculated from the 1977-78 budget totals (taking into account supplementary budgets and transfer payments) provided by the Victoria public library and by Oak Bay municipality:

Net federal cost: $40 billion. Canada's population: 23 million, so unit cost is $1,739 per person, per year.

Net B.C. provincial cost: $4.5 billion. B.C.'s population: 2.5 million. Unit cost is $1,800 per person per year.

Net Oak Bay municipal cost (where I live): $10.5 million. Municipal population: 18,000. So unit cost is $583.33 per person per year.

The foregoing does not take into account all the lotteries (which are of course, yet another form of taxation, albeit voluntary and less painful) figures for which I cannot get.

One wonders exactly what one is getting for the money from each level of government.

From the feds: a new flag, a deteriorating post office, a divided bilingual country. Also prevention of free competition, import and excise duties and other restrictions to the proper operation of capitalism. Why for instance, do we have an import duty of 12 per cent on cars from Japan, whereas that in the U.S. is only three per cent? Is it to protect the Canadian subsidiaries of the American car companies who are much less protected in the U.S.? It doesn't make sense, and it costs the Canadian consumer $900 more per $10,000 car.

From the province: appalling liquor taxes and education, (incidentally, how is the cost of education split between the province and the municipalities?) plus everything else listed between 'Agriculture' and 'Western Canadian Lottery' in the 'phone book!

From the municipality: police and fire protection, water supplies, garbage collection and a good deal more.

I don't think all senior government is bad — it can't be, but would you or some of your readers please list the outstanding benefits which derive from the present provincial and federal governments? Surely with today's excellent communications and computers, only one senior government located in Winnipeg, say, is all that is required? And does Greater Victoria really need four or five separate fire brigades with separate chiefs and all their panoply? How many serious fires have we had in the last 10 years?

As for the $15 billion federal deficit, it amounts to $652.17 per Canadian. Diefenbaker (Times, Aug. 22) says that this deficit is costing Canadians $1 million per day in interest. This would mean an interest rate of only 2.43 per cent which seems improbable. At only five per cent per annum, $15 billion must cost us $2.05 million per day in interest. But the staggering comparison here is with the U.S. Their deficit of $40 billion works out to $184.49 per American — a mere 2/7ths of ours although of course, neither is excusable or explicable.

There are 23,457 government employees in Greater Victoria (Victoria Post, Nov. 29). Of these, nearly 10,000 are federal; 10,987 are provincial; and close to 3,000 are municipal employees. I suspect that much of this proliferation comes about when citizens say: "I think that the government should do . . ." Nothing loath, both senior and sometimes the junior governments immediately set up new departments, ministers and experts "to serve the public!" So perhaps we deserve what we have got. — Roger Napier, 80 King George Terrace.

Onto the Beaches!

The federal fitness branch sees thousands of civil servants into jogging. With our fearless leader in the van, (not the padded one) could they not be persuaded to head for the beach, and like the lemmings, keep on going out to sea, well past the point of no return, thus taking a positive step towards getting the economy back on the tracks. A simple but dramatic solution. To be found only in Canada, you say? A pity. — C. M. Alexander, 949 Pattullo Place.

Jones Knew How to Press the Right Buttons

THE NEW REPUBLIC
An Editorial

What would have happened in Jonestown, Guyana on Saturday, November 18, if the delicately balanced mind of Jim Jones had tipped the other way? It's not hard to guess. All the players were rehearsed and ready for one of those media set-pieces that ordinarily pass for news. NBC News correspondent Don Harris, now dead, already had tape in the can of Representative Leo Ryan, now dead, telling a hall full of clapping, singing Jonestown residents that he was impressed with the health standards and racial harmony of this American jungle colony. The television crews and the newspaper newsmen and photographers were all set to "report" on the investigation by this crusading congressman. The charismatic leader and his followers were all set to stage colorful scenes of communal life for the cameras to film and the reporters to write about.

And of course no staged event of this sort is complete without lawyers, adept at preventing reality from seeping through the cracks. Jones had hired Mark Lane and Charles Garry, two expensive attorneys associated with progressive causes, when his People's Temple cult started getting some unfavorable publicity last year. They arranged the trip to Guyana by Ryan and the media tagalongs, while Jones arranged what they should see. Garry's earlier services to Jones included arranging for a broadcast message of support to the faithful in Jonestown by two of his other clients, Angela Davis and Huey Newton. Lane and Garry are still alive, because when the turmoil started somebody forgot the butcher's advice from Shakespeare's Henry VI: "The first thing we do, let's kill all the lawyers."

By almost random chance, this standard non-event turned into that rarity, a genuine news event, which briefly drove the usual run of non-events — diplomatic negotiations that lead nowhere, speeches, perceived changes of mood in the White House, elaborate staged rituals of incantation to the inflation gods — off the front pages. The Wall Street Journal blamed the horror in Guyana on "the fathomless human beast," or perhaps on "human impulses that in some eras have been turned in more benign directions but which find little room for outlet in our rationalist and secular culture." We think at least part of the blame belongs to a special sort of credulity that, oddly enough, is built into "our rationalist and secular culture." It is a credulity shared not just by people who would give up everything and move to a distant jungle in search of some crazed political or religious ideal, but also by modern politicians, government officials and news media, and especially encouraged by the special agnosticism of lawyers.

Jim Jones' son says his father ordered the mass suicide of his followers because he was "paranoid." This is an odd description of someone who, by any reasonable standards, should have had enemies on all sides, but apparently did not. Jones' belief that people were out to get him was irrational only because it was inconsistent with his own skill in ingratiating himself with the powers-that-be.

The government of Guyana, understandably irritated at the suggestion that it was rash or unwise in permitting Jones to set up a colony there, released excerpts of reference letters from prominent Americans, which had been supplied by Jones. Vice President Mondale wrote, "Knowing of your congregation's deep involvement in the major social and constitutional issues of our country is a great inspiration to me." Secretary of Health, Education and Welfare Joseph Califano praised "the numerous social programs your church has established in meeting every type of human need." Similar praise came from Hubert Humphrey, Henry Jackson, Roy Wilkins and Bella Abzug, along with a broad range of California politicians including the slain San Francisco Mayor George Moscone, who in 1976 had appointed Jones to head the city Housing Authority Commission. Typical of the kind of meaningless gush that gets cranked out around Washington every day was this collection of words from Califano, which doesn't even amount to a sentence: "Knowing your commitment and compassion, your humanitarian principles and your interest in protecting individual liberty and freedom have made an outstanding contribution to furthering the cause of human dignity."

Prominent Americans visited Jones' colony before the Ryan trip. California Lieutenant Governor Mervyn Dymally has gone twice in the past two years. On these occasions, according to an affidavit last June by a disenchanted Jones follower, "The entire community was required to put on a performance .... Reverend Jones would instruct us on the image we were to project. The workday would be shortened. The food would be better. Sometimes there would be music and dancing." After New West magazine attacked the Jones operation, Dymally wrote to the prime minister of Guyana assuring him that this criticism was part of a "politically motivated conspiracy" against "one of the most committed activists and finest human beings I know — Reverend Jim Jones." Mayor Moscone also came to Jones' defence.

The true nature of Jones' operation was no secret to anyone who had cared to look into it. The growth of his political influence roughly paralleled the growth of the sadistic element in his cult. By 1972, according to People's Temple dropouts quoted in New West, Jones was using public beatings to discipline members, both children and adults. Sexual abuse, ritual suicide rehearsals and extortion of money all soon became standard features of the "church." None of this was investigated by the local authorities. In fact, one of Jones' closest cronies in the church became the assistant district attorney of San Francisco just about the time word of bizarre goings-on started leaking out.

JONES . . . media, politicians help

How did Jones get away with it? He made a conscious decision to get himself political influence. He used his control over his followers to do favors for politicians, such as the rally he organized for Democratic candidate Carter in October 1976. (This was the occasion on which he had dinner with Rosalynn Carter.) He organized free meals and other community programs, and used them to get himself good publicity. With very few exceptions, such as Representative Ryan and New West, no one expressed skepticism or looked beyond appearances. Each public relations triumph, each new political contact, was used as a building block for the next one. Soon he was able to stifle bad publicity by releasing floods of praise from politicians, businessmen and civic leaders.

A Guyanan newspaper editor, explaining why he never had investigated the Jones commune, said, "There were lots of charges and suspicions, but at the same time I received numerous letters from friends in the United States telling me what a wonderful group it was." The Guyanans have no reason for embarrassment. Their mistake was to suppose that the approval of American politicians and media is based on anything more than punching the right buttons.

Japan Looks to China Sales to Give Its Economy a Boost

By HENRY SCOTT-STOKES

TOKYO — A China across whose plains hurtle Japanese bullet trains. A China criss-crossed by busloads of Japanese tourists laden with cameras. A China rich in off-shore oil drilled by Japanese rigs in the Yellow Sea.

These would have seemed fantasies a few years ago, but the climate of Sino-Japanese relations has improved immeasurably in the last two years with the arrival of Chairman Hua Kuo-feng.

There is also a better moodo, or mood, since the conclusion of a peace and friendship treaty with China in Peking after six years of hesitation by both sides.

Moodo counts a lot where really big joint projects are concerned — building a brand new rail system, opening the whole country to tourism or developing the nation's precious oil supplies with a foreign power.

"There's a big change in China," said a trader, Yoshizo Ikeda, president of Mitsui and Co., just returned from a fourth trip to the mainland in five years.

"The Chinese used to say that they were not interested in exports and just wanted to look after their 900 million people," Ikeda said. "Now they talk about building one of the world's most modern powers by the end of the century."

Japanese bullet trains soon to zip around China?

China is not going to be able to do that alone. Poverty-stricken for the most part, the Middle Empire is turning for help to Japanese industry, by far the most modern in the world.

And Japanese business, short of orders in an economy that is dipping towards a recession, is responding to the lure of the vast market across the water.

A burst of new orders has come in from Peking. Recently Toyota Motor Sales received orders for its deluxe air-conditioned microbuses, raising this year's purchases by China to 670 buses worth $10 million.

Although it is the largest auto exporter in the world, Toyota is just starting business in China and wants to make a good first impression.

The microbuses will be used to carry foreign tourists, most of whom are unaccustomed to Chinese public transport. According to the Japan Travel Bureau, China plans to increase the number of cities that foreign tourists visit from the present 30 or so to about 100.

Visitors will now be able to go to Urumchi in the Sinkiang region, the frontier cities of Paotow and Huhuhot in Inner Mongolia, to Shanhaikwan in Hopeh Province and to Yunkan, to see the Buddhist statues carved into the granite mountains.

"The whole policy on tourism has changed," a Japan Travel Bureau official said. "Before, it was all political, but now they want to earn foreign exchange."

Until 1972, when China and Japan established diplomatic relations, there were no direct scheduled flights between here and Peking. Now Japan Air Lines has three flights to China a week.

The number of flights will increase to four a week in the autumn, and by next spring Japan Air Lines hopes to make daily flights and to put Boeing 747 jumbo passenger jets on the routes.

The number of Japanese visiting China is also shooting up — from 18,825 in 1976 to 21,000 last year to an estimated 45,000 or 50,000 this year. About two-thirds of the 1978 total will be tourists, the rest businessmen on trade missions.

Experts at trading companies here expect trade with China to expand from last year's two-way total of $3.5 billion to $10 billion or even $15 billion by 1980.

Fallen Women Stand Up

katharine whitehorn

LONDON — Organized by Lady Vickers, a Conservative peer and the most respectable woman in London, the prostitutes of Britain are demanding fair play, and about time too.

Britain has one of the raciest reputations in the world, yet some of the most idiotic restrictions imaginable upon the girls in the game. Most of them are as absurd as they are unfair.

Prostitution itself isn't illegal; but just about everything to do with it is. Walk the streets? No, that constitutes a nuisance. Live in a flat? Not if you share with another girl — that makes it a brothel. Live with a man, then? No, he'll be run in for living on immoral earnings. Hang about hotel lobbies, which the visiting businessman from other countries certainly hopes you will? Every now and then the manager will become suffused with righteous indignation and toss you into the street — if he doesn't get the police to do it for him.

The only way the girls can meet their clients is through escort agencies or by putting up little notices on the small-ad boards outside newsagents saying things like "Air Hostess Seeks Ground Position" or "Marilyn Gives French lessons" — which makes life nearly intolerable, of course, for those who genuinely wish to give instruction in the French language.

You might well wonder why, in an age when everyone's supposed to be in bed with everyone else all the time anyway, there are still so many prostitutes about. A friend of mine was once asked by an antique clubman where the lads went to, nowadays, for — well, you know — a bit of . . . My friend said they mostly made private arrangements. "What!" exclaimed the old boy in horror, "Fellahs sleeping with other fellahs' sisters?"

But the fact of the matter is that the demand for tarts (as they're called in Britain) has not fallen off; even apart from the visiting businessmen, there are all the up-tight husbands whose wives don't seem to provide what they want —like being dressed up in a diaper or swathed from head to foot in rubber or beaten.

One Birmingham tart was known as the Bondage Queen of Edgbaston and never had to have intercourse at all, just whack away with the whip. And there are obviously hundreds of men who simply lack the self-confidence or looks or savoir-faire to lure any amateur into bed with them anyway.

Of course the theory is that it's all very wicked and that, now we have the welfare state, no woman need resort to selling herself to keep from starving. But Helen Buckingham, who is a sort of self-appointed leader of the girls, reports bitterly how hard it actually was for her. She had a child, she was living on social security — but you don't get the social security if you're "cohabiting", because if there's a man around he's supposed to support you — never mind if he actually does.

After years of the government sex-snoopers trying to establish that her lodger was her lover and keeping on stopping payment, she finally took to prostitution — she reckons she has more self-respect that way than she had crawling to the authorities trying to prove she was virtuous. In the Victorian age the "fallen" woman took to the streets because no one would support her; this is the modern equivalent.

The plain fact of the matter is that the laws which are designed to save girls being exploited by pimps don't do it; and the laws which are designed to keep the virtuous from the hideous sight of vice are completely bypassed — you must not be exposed to the sight of a lady in a slit skirt with too much lipstick, but you aren't protected at all from enormous bosoms looming at you from every Soho poster. But, because of the restrictions, the police can harry the girls in almost any way they wish.

Any set of rules which cause any set of people to be regarded as outlawed, easy game, not to be treated like human beings, must be wrong. And morality is not served by having the police pull a prostitute along a hotel corridor by the hair — especially, as I suppose I need hardly add, when there isn't the slightest penalty attaching to the man who was trying to buy her.

I hope they get the laws abolished. But if they are recognized for what they are — an ineradicable part of life — will they, poor things, start having to pay tax?

Graham Triumphs

MEXICO CITY (AP) — David Graham of Australia, down by three strokes at the start of the day, fired a five-under-par 67 and won the $210,000 Mexico Cup golf tournament Sunday when Don January missed a five-foot par putt on the 18th.

Graham finished the 72-hole tournament at 15-under-par 273. January was tied with Graham as the Australian watched the Texan miss the putt that would have forced a play-off. January carded a one-under-par 71.

Bobby Wadkins finished third, three strokes off the pace.

The battle between Graham and January was tied six times before the final, fatal putt.

WOMAN JOCKEY KILLED

LONDON (AP) — Joy Gibson, a top woman professional jockey, was killed Saturday in what police called a bizarre riding accident at Newmarket, the centre of British racing.

Police said Gibson, 34, was riding a yearling that was being led from the stables to the pad dock for exercising. Her horse reared and threw her, trapping her against a wall. The wall collapsed on top of Gibson, who received severe head injuries, from which she died later in hospital.

Gibson represented Britain in 1976 at 16-nation tournament for women jockeys in Brazil.

A native of Newmarket, she started riding at the age of eight.

Rams the New Power?

Mt. Douglas Rams, Parkland Panthers, Esquimalt Dockers and Cowichan Thunderbirds were the dominant boys' teams while Victoria High's Tigers, Cowichan Thunderettes and New Westminster emerged as the girls' winners in a busy, high school basketball weekend.

Rams, looming as this year's power in the South Vancouver Island senior boys' picture, defeated the host Totems 67-52 Saturday to emerge with top honors in the four-team, Victoria High Centennial tournament.

Nanaimo Islanders, defending provincial champions, could do no better than finish third, claiming the position by defeating Vic High Grads 80-59.

Jay Loukes of Mt Doug was selected the tournament's most valuable player while the all-star team consisted of Rams' Vince Cullen; Curt Kelly and Randy Morris, both of Nanaimo, and Wayne Russell and Chris Adams, both of the Totems.

Centennial Girls: Tigers defeated Surrey's Queen Elizabeth 32-27 and Nanaimo 30-29 to complete the girls' round-robin tournament with a perfect 3-0, won-lost record.

Peninsula Boys: Quinn Groenhyde (who else?) turned in another spectacular performance as host Parklands Panthers defeated Courtenay Towhees 84-58 in the final of an eight-team tournament. Groenhyde scored 40 points in the windup after potting 38 to lead Panthers past Vancouver Handsworth 66-43 in the semi-finals. Handsworth finished third followed, in order, by Stelly's, North Vancouver Sentinel, Port Moody, Powell River and Claremont.

Ramblers Girls: New Westminster clipped host Mt. Douglas 43-28 after stopping Chilliwack 33-28 earlier to finish on top. Diana Thornton (9) and Janine Price (7) topped Rambler scorers. Chilliwack finished third by surprising defending B.C. champion Salmon Arm 32-30 and Coquitlam Centennial beat Oak Bay 43-28 in the consolation final.

Cowichan Boys: Tim Larson, selected the tournament's MVP award-winner, scored 25 and Gary Stockford added 20 as Thunderbirds edged North Vancouver Norsemen 62-59 in the final. Stockford, David Malton of Campbell River, Doug Panton of Port Alberni and Andy Stone and Ken Calder, both of North Vancouver, were the all-star team choices.

Cowichan Girls: Tournament MVP Laurie Glomlein's 15 points sparked Thunderettes to a 54-18 breeze over Port Alberni in the final. Cowichan's Rhonda Groicher and Twon Klawer headed the all-stars along with Tracy Bickle of Courtenay, Robin Russell of North Van and Liz Bos of Port Alberni.

Dunsmuir Boys: Esquimalt clipped the host Demons 59-56 in the final despite Dean St. Pierre's sparkling 34-point spree for Dunsmuir. Tom Pollard topped Dockers with 22. Greg Webber scored 30 as the Dockers overpowered Campbell River's Southgate 80-43 in semi-final play. Shawnigan Lake trounced Southgate 87-35.

Eleven Vancouver-area gymnasts and one from Victoria — national junior women's champion Tracy Beer — have been chosen to represent British Columbia at the Canada Winter Games in Brandon in February.

The men's and women's teams were selected following a trial meet Saturday at the University of Victoria.

Cindy Calkin, one of five women's team members from the Flicka Gym Club of North Vancouver, collected 33.75 points to lead her division. Other team members and scores: Anita Botnen 33.70; Valerie Smith 32.65; Catherine Bates 31.50; Susan Woyat 31.45.

Women's alternates are Dena Fujiwara of Port Coquitlam and Sabea Mante of Vancouver.

Harder was the individual standout Saturday, winning four of the six men's events — the floor exercise, parallel bars, high bar and rings. Byrnes won the pommel horse and vault events.

Calkin turned in sparkling performances to win the girls' vault and uneven bar. Botnen also won two events — the parallel bar and beam — while Woyat topped the floor routine.

ANDRETTI TAKES AWARD

DETROIT (AP) — Mario Andretti, the first United States race car driver to win the world championship since Phil Hill in 1961, has been named winner of the $10,000 Olsonite Driver-of-the-Year award.

The Nazareth, Pa., driver joins NASCAR star David Pearson as a two-time winner of the award that was instituted in 1967. Andretti also won it that year.

Andretti piled up 27 points when four quarterly ballots were combined, finishing well of stock car driver Bobby Allison, who had 18. Al Unser and Cale Yarborough wound up in a third place tie with 12 apiece.

Windsor Reigns

NEW WESTMINSTER — Windsor of North Vancouver displayed solid depth in the swimming events to win the British Columbia high school aquatic championships Saturday.

"We just seemed to win by sheer numbers," said coach Briar Ballou. "We were always picking up seconds, thirds and fourths although other schools were winning the events."

Every point helped as Lord Byng of Vancouver was just 16 points behind at 180 followed by South Delta (163), Magee of Vancouver (147), Sentinel of West Vancouver (121), Carson Graham (107.5), Centennial of Coquitlam (96.5) and Richmond (93).

Five meet records were set in girls events and national team member Lisa Borsholt of Carson Graham played a major role, figuring in two of the records.

Judy Baker, another Carson Graham swimmer, set a record in the 100-metre butterfly; Joanne Baker of Sentinel swam the 200-metre individual medley in a record 2:22.72 and Lord Byng set the other meet record with a 1:56.62 clocking in the 200-metre girls freestyle relay.

SINGLE GLAZING IN SWEDEN ISN'T STUPID.

IT'S CRIMINAL

The Swedes believe in energy conservation. They keep just as warm as us, but at about half the cost. And that's because they believe in good home insulation.

For years they've had to double glaze. Now, under new regulations, they're obliged to triple glaze!

Double-glazing makes the most of any heating system because it can halve the amount of heat lost through windows and patio doors. And these days that adds up to a lot of fuel and money.

Consider the other benefits. Double-glazing reduces condensation and external noise, increases living area and the value of your property. In short, it improves the quality of life. Why not make a beginning with living room where you'll get the greatest benefit? It would be criminal to ignore it.

Phone Granite Industries at 384-4148 for a free written and carefully prepared appraisal of double-glazing your house or condominium. There is no obligation.

Phone Granite Industries at 516 William St., 384-4148 for a free written and carefully prepared appraisal of double-glazing your house or condominium. There is no obligation.

Cheryl, Tony Take Crown

LADNER (CP) — Sandra Leighton of Delta topped a sister act to capture the senior women's crown Saturday at the British Columbia figure skating championships.

Leighton had a solid free-skating program to maintain her lead over second-place Yvonne Anderson, of the North Shore Winter Club in North Vancouver, and her sister and clubmate Heather, who finished fourth.

Noni Robertson of Vancouver finished third as Vancouver-area skaters, particularly entrants from North Shore, dominated most events. The top four in each category advanced to the Western Canadian championships, Jan. 10-13 at Yorkton, Sask.

Nobody opposed Dennis Coi of North Vancouver for the senior men's title. Susan Cowan and Eric Thomsen of West Vancouver had no opposition for the senior pairs crown.

Yvonne Anderson continued her domination of Robertson in winning the junior women's event. Andrea Hall of Cloverdale was third and Andrea Anderson of Victoria finished fourth.

Neil Giroday of North Shore maintained his early lead to win the junior men's competition over Gary Paterson of West Vancouver. Henri April of Coquitlam was fourth, ahead of Giroday's club-mate Bruno Delmaestro.

Cheryl MacDonald and Tony Preston of Victoria led all the way to win the junior dance. Tracy Michael of Coquitlam and Kerry Spong of Vancouver were second with Leonard and Karen Warkentin of North Shore third.

Katrina Matousek, whose free skating almost won the novice women's title for her, teamed with North Shore clubmate William O'Neill to capture the junior pairs event.

Sheri Poirier and Marc Warbrick of North Shore placed second ahead of Vanessa Howe and Jeff Mawle of Victoria.

Karen Mallensyn of Delta and Mike Turnbull of Coquitlam won the novice dance followed by Katrina Fowler of North Shore and Brian Kukkola of Coquitlam.

Ann Parfit-Lewis of Port Moody won the novice women's title over Matousek who moved to second after standing 13th after the compulsory figures. Also qualifying for the Western Canadian competition were Suzuzana Ditha of Vancouver who was third and Jennifer Chant of Victoria.

Brad MacLean wrapped up another title for North Shore in capturing the novice men's event, followed by Neil Paterson of West Vancouver.

PRO RECORD UNMARRED

SPRINGFIELD, Mass. (AP) — Welterweight Sugar Ray Leonard kept his pro boxing record unblemished Saturday, stopping veteran contender Armano Muniz with a barrage of punches in the sixth round of a scheduled 10-rounder. It was his 17th straight pro victory.

Leonard, of Silver Springs, Md., weighed 149, Muniz, of Los Angeles, 151, for the nationally-televised bout.

Muniz, now 40-15-4 in pro battles, was no match for the cat-quick Leonard.

Crazy Canucks Finish One-Two

SCHLADMING, Austria (CP) — Those Crazy Canucks of 1976 are back in fine form.

Ken Read of Calgary and Dave Murray of Abbotsford finished one-two in Sunday's first downhill race of the current men's World Cup skiing season and, with two more Canadians among the top 10, gave fair indication there's more to come.

Dave Irwin of Thunder Bay, Ont., returned to the circuit after an absence of nearly two years because of injuries to grab seventh place and Steve Podborski of Toronto finished ninth.

"Great, just great," yelled an elated Read when victory was confirmed. "I'm surprised (at the early-season success) . . . but then we've been hard at work the last three years."

The dominant European downhill powers were blanked in the medal standings when little-known Vladimir Makeyev from the Soviet Union grabbed third place from Italian veteran Herbert Plank.

With Austria's reigning downhill king Franz Klammer sidelined with the flu, the subdued crowd had little to cheer about as the Canadians flashed mid-season form over a deceptively-fast course that was lashed overnight by first freezing rain and then rain after a week of freezing temperatures.

While skiers continued through slush and mud to the end of the 3,600-metre run, the finish line was, in fact, moved 800 metres farther up the hill after marshals at first tried to call off the race.

Read was clocked in one minute, 32.11 seconds over the shortened course, .06 seconds faster than Murray. Makeyev finished in 1:32.24 and Plank in 1:32.56.

Rounding out the top 10 were: Peter Wirnsberger, Austria, 1:32.66; Giulano Giardini, Italy, 1:32.70; Irwin, 1:32.71; Klaus Happacher, Italy, 1:32.74; Podborski, 1:32.75, and Sepp Ferstl, West Germany, 1:32.79.

There was an hour's delay before it was decided to proceed with the race.

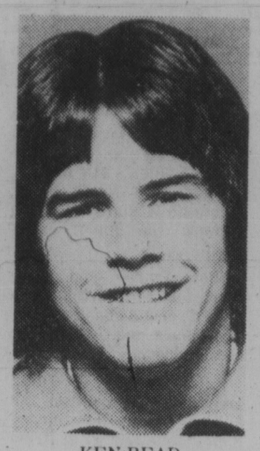
That delay made all the difference to Murray, at 25 the elder statesman of the Canadian team. He crashed into trees lining the course during a morning training run as he tried to avoid a ski school class that had cut across his path.

Murray suffered bruises and a cut on his head when he crashed into a tree and required medical treatment before heading back up the hill for the race.

Read, Murray, Irwin, Podborski and Jim Hunter of Calgary formed the Canadian squad that started off the 1975-76 season like gangbusters. Read won the opening event at Val d'Isere, France, and Irwin followed a couple of weeks later with a victory here—the last time a men's World Cup downhill event was raced on the Mount Planai course.

Injuries, mainly to Irwin, who took a couple of serious tumbles, and a broken leg for Podborski, dogged the squad. But it still managed to place three skiers in the top 10 at the 1976 Innsbruck Olympics and all four racers in the top 20—an outstanding achievement for even a healthy team.

Injuries, along with internal strife and continuing technical difficulties with skis, waxes and suits, plagued them the following year.



KEN READ
. . . downhill triumph

But the Crazy Canucks, as they have come to be known because of their aggressive, throw-caution-to-the-wind style, showed evidence they were regaining form when Read and Murray finished one-two in a late-season race at Chamonix, France.

The victory was retribution for Read, who consistently turned in top times in training during the last three years but—aside from his three wins—was never in the medals. The newspapers here were referring to him as the World Champion of Training after he twice led the field in timed runs last week leading to Sunday's race.

Cougars Sweep Hawks, Bruins

Victoria Cougars, still without two of their most valued performers because of injuries, are heading for early achievement of their "December quota" and the reasons rest with the breakout among the holdovers.

Winger George Fritz and defenceman Scott Lang came through to provide much of the spark as the Cougars reclaimed second place in the Western Hockey League's Western Division with a pair important weekend victories.

For coach Jack Shupe, the "breakout" was accepted with the same delight that went with Victoria's 6-5 Memorial Arena victory over Portland Winter Hawks on Saturday and Sunday's 3-2 decision over the Bruins in New Westminster.

They were a pair of nerve-jangling games but Shupe found a soothing effect in the play of Fritz, Lang, Mike Shields and Bob Jansch. Among Victoria's holdovers, the four have been early-season disappointments, here and there, because of inconsistent play.

But Fritz and Lang came up big in the production department at the weekend and the Cougars continue to build up a big head of steam. Still without centre Geordie Robertson, the leading point-producer last season, and Mark Robinson, expected to be the take-charge guy on defence, the Cougars are back applying heat on the division-leading Winter Hawks.

The sweep enabled the Cougars, beaten only once in their last seven starts, to close to within two points of Portland. It also brought the team to within easy reach of its "December quota."

The quota was set Nov. 25 after a home-ice loss to Portland.

Meeting amongst themselves, the players set a target of winning six of eight December games, all against west division rivals. They've won three and tied one and have four games remaining in which to reach the December quota, including Tuesday's Memorial Arena date with Seattle Breakers.

"No reason why we can't win all our December games if they play up to their capabilities," said Shupe, generalizing the "they" but looking appreciatively at Lang and Fritz, among others.

Possessor of one of the hardest shots among defencemen, Lang broke out for his first two goals of the season Saturday. More important, he played aggressively, used his body to better advantage and turned in a smarter defensive performance.

The improvement stayed for Sunday's game and Lang figured in all three Victoria goals as well as giving goaltender Steve Amiss some excellent protection.

Fritz also came up stronger. He picked up two assists Saturday, including one that led to a goal by Jansch because of Fritz' good use of the body. His two goals Sunday, both on power-plays, capped another strong performance.

Shields and Jansch also came through with stronger games. In addition to his goal Saturday, the 18-year-old Jansch also began body-checking with greater effectiveness than had been evidenced earlier in the season.

Todd Morton, who scored Saturday's winner with just over three minutes left, Gary Lupul, Amiss, Brad Palmer and Barry Pederson were Victoria's other sparklers at the weekend.

Lupul, setting up Fritz for the winner, extended his point-scoring streak to a 19th game but the hard-checking Bruins managed to contain Pederson. The brilliant 17-year-old had racked up 17 points in his last five games until he was handcuffed Sunday.

McEnroe Powers Davis Cup Victory

The Davis Cup, emblematic of international tennis supremacy, rests in the United States today following a solid 4-1 victory over Britain that was highlighted by John McEnroe's two overwhelming performances.

Having last tasted victory in 1972, the U.S. made no mistake on Sunday in winning its 25th Davis Cup in the final at the Mission Hills Country Club at Rancho Mirage, Calif.

"We're delighted to bring the cup back here to where it belongs and we plan to keep it here for a while," team captain Tony Trabert said when he accepted the elaborate trophy. Australia has won the cup 24 times and Britain nine.

To get to this year's championship round, the U.S. beat South Africa 4-1 last March, Chile 3-2 in September and Sweden 3-2 in October.

The U.S. began the day leading 2-1 and needing just one victory from the last two singles. It came quickly when McEnroe, 19, crushed Britain's Buster Mottram 6-2, 6-2, 6-1.

Brian Gottfried then polished off an out-of-form John Lloyd 6-1, 6-2, 6-1.

"I'm obviously very disappointed as captain to lose 4-1," said Paul Hutchins of the British team, which has not won since 1936.

The Americans began the series expected to sweep all five matches, but they were thwarted by Mottram, who outlasted Gottfried 1-6, 2-6, 10-8, 6-4, 6-3 in a 4½-hour contest on Friday.

McEnroe beat Lloyd 6-1, 6-2, 6-2 in the first match Friday and the American doubles team of Stan Smith and Bob Lutz scored an easy 6-2, 6-2, 6-3 victory on Saturday over Mark Cox and David Lloyd.

Hutchins was full of praise for McEnroe.

"John McEnroe on his form must be the world's number one player at the moment," Hutchins said. "Yes, he's very arrogant, very cocky, all that sort of thing, but the ragged edges will wear off and he will most definitely be number one in the world within three years."

Three Playoff Berths Remain Open in NFL

By The Associated Press

With one week remaining in the National Football League season, five teams still are battling for three available playoff berths.

Yet New England Patriots, Denver Broncos, Miami Dolphins and Houston Oilers can breathe a sigh of relief they are not among them—having secured post-season positions with victories Sunday.

The Patriots won the American Football Conference East championship—their first divisional title since 1963—edging Buffalo Bills 26-24 on David Posey's 21-yard field goal with eight seconds remaining.

The Broncos captured the AFC West crown for the second year in a row, trouncing Kansas City Chiefs 24-3. Often-maligned quarterback Craig Morton was the key, completing 19 of 22 passes, including 16 in a row, for 283 yards and three touchdowns.

The Dolphins assured themselves of an AFC wild-card berth—their first playoff spot in four years—with a 23-6 victory over Oakland, which eliminated the Raiders from playoff contention for the first time in six years.

And the Oilers claimed the other AFC wild-card spot, holding off New Orleans Saints 17-12 on a heads-up play by rookie sensation Earl Campbell.

For Green Bay Packers, Minnesota Vikings, Atlanta Falcons, Washington Redskins and Philadelphia Eagles, things are not that simple.

The Packers and Vikings both lost during the weekend—Green Bay dropping a 14-0 decision to Chicago Bears and Minnesota getting blitzed 45-14 by Detroit Lions on Saturday. The Packers and Vikings therefore remain tied for the National Football Conference Central Division lead with 8-6-1 records.

Atlanta, 9-6, improved its chance for an NFC wild-card berth and hurt Washington's, shading the Redskins 20-17 on Tim Mazzetti's 32-yard "second chance" field goal on the final play of the game, while Philadelphia was battered 31-13 by Dallas Cowboys. The Redskins and Eagles have 8-7 records.

Seattle Seahawks lost all chance when they were battered 37-10 by the San Diego Chargers.

Dan Fouts's three touchdown passes, two to John Jefferson and a 55-yard bomb to Larry Burton, Rolf Benirschke's three field goals and a defence that sacked Seattle quarterback Jim Zorn six times carried San Diego past the Seahawks.

On the final weekend, the schedule for the five contending teams is Minnesota at Oakland, Green Bay at Los Angeles, Atlanta at St. Louis, Chicago at Washington and New York Giants at Philadelphia.

Green Bay, knowing that Minnesota had lost Saturday, blew an opportunity to take over sole possession of first place in the NFC Central. The Packers failed to generate any offensive punch, being held to 161 net yards and 11 first downs against Chicago.

Gary Danielson tossed five TD passes—three to Leonard Thompson and two to Horace King—while completing 26 of 33 aerials for 352 yards as Detroit beat Minnesota for only the third time in 22 meetings. The loss prevented the Vikings from gaining their 10th division title in the last 11 years.

Mazzetti, a Philadelphia bartender at the start of the season, missed a 37-yard field goal with two seconds left but got another chance when Washington went offside on the play. He didn't miss the second time, giving the Falcons their fourth dramatic victory of the season in the final 10 seconds—all by the same score.

Tony Dorsett raised his rushing total for the season to 1,204 yards, a Dallas record, and both he and Scott Laidlaw scored twice as the Cowboys tuned up for the playoffs with their fifth straight victory. The Dallas defence forced five turnovers—three interceptions and two fumbles—and sacked Eagles quarterback Ron Jaworski five times.

Rangers, Bruins Blasted by Flyers

By The Canadian Press

Sometimes, there can be value in a loss. New York Rangers beat Philadelphia 5-2 Thursday night and Flyers defenceman Andre Dupont said it taught his team something.

"We learned a lesson," said Dupont. "It taught us we have to work all 60 minutes to beat somebody—not just 10."

And by working 60 minutes Sunday night, the Flyers skated away with a 1-0 victory over the Rangers and their second win in as many nights against contenders for the National Hockey League's over-all points lead.

The win against New York came on the heels of a 9-2 drubbing of Boston Bruins, the Adams Division leader, 24 hours earlier.

Elsewhere Sunday, Montreal Canadens snapped New York Islanders' unbeaten string at 15 games with a 4-3 victory. Buffalo Sabres dumped Toronto Maple Leafs 5-3. Minnesota North Stars tied Boston 4-4 and Detroit Red Wings and Chicago Black Hawks played to a 3-3 deadlock.

Bill Barber and Blake Dunlop scored two goals each for the Flyers on Sunday and Bernie Parent stopped 28 shots for his third shutout.

The victory gave Flyers 34 points, tying them with the Rangers and Atlanta Flames behind the first-place Islanders in the highly-competitive Patrick Division.

The Canadiens, leaders in the Norris Division, and Boston are tied for the over-all lead with 40 points, one more than the Islanders.

"No magic potion—just a gutsy effort," McCammon added.

The only blemish on the effort was the ejection of Philadelphia's Paul Holmgren for hitting New York defenceman Carol Vadnais on the head with his stick at 9:50 of the second period.

Vadnais apparently precipitated the incident by spearing Holmgren in the throat in front of the New York goal. Players rushed between the combatants. Vadnais jabbed his stick at Holmgren and the Flyers left winger dropped Vadnais to the ice with a downward swing of his stick.

Vadnais began wearing a helmet just three games ago and said he believes it saved him from a serious injury.

Holmgren got a match penalty. Vadnais five minutes for spearing and the Rangers were assessed a two-minute bench penalty because coach Fred Shero went onto the ice.

At Montreal, Larry Robinson scored his sixth and seventh goals of the season in the first five minutes of the game to give the Canadiens a lead they never relinquished.

'Gentle' Bulls Keep Winning

By The Canadian Press

Cincinnati Stingers had good cause to wonder Sunday night whether Birmingham Bulls—in the space of three nights—had turned over a new leaf. Had the World Hockey Association's bad boys suddenly gone soft?

The Bulls had defeated the Stingers 4-2 Thursday night in Birmingham with their typical bump-and-bruise brand of hockey, which resulted in a total of 54 minutes in penalties. But when the two clubs resumed action Sunday night in the Alabama city, the Bulls had changed their tactics and skated away with a 1-0 penalty-free victory.

Elsewhere Sunday, Quebec Nordiques and Winnipeg Jets tied 4-4, while Indianapolis Racers defeated Edmonton Oilers 6-4.

It may have been a case of the Bulls simply wanting to take things easy after battling their way to a 6-2 win Saturday night over the Oilers in a fight-filled contest which had a total of 83 penalty minutes assessed.

In other action Saturday, Quebec edged Cincinnati 4-3, while a touring all-star team from the Soviet Union dumped New England Whalers 7-4 in a game which counts in the league standings.

Paul Henderson's goal at 14:31 of the final period was all Birmingham needed to register its fourth consecutive win and leave the struggling Stingers winless in their last four games.

Playland Curlers Earn Top Honors

Matheson scored the only victory over Turner, winning 8-7 in "B" event.

Turner's game-winning shot against Hoole came in the eighth end when she drew the four foot with her last rock to count one while facing four counters for the Hoole rink.

Game Called; Referee Threatened with Chair

Rough and tumble play and bitter feelings marred a pair of Victoria DataTech victories on the weekend.

DataTech boosted its record to 4-0 in the Northwest International Senior Men's Basketball League by downing Renton Roadrunners 110-101 Saturday and 105-83 Sunday at Central Junior High School.

Both games were rough ones and although DataTech players were obviously delighted with the sweep they were upset about the sometimes fierce contact.

The hard hitting created some anxious moments Saturday but there were no major incidents until the second half of Sunday's game which was stopped by referee Skip Standish with about four minutes remaining.

Lenny Kemp of Renton was ejected early in the second half when he was called for intentionally elbowing DataTech's Dave Mulcahy. Midway through the half Renton's Mark Seil and Victoria's Varick Cutler were sent to the showers for fighting and things really got out of hand late in the game when Standish called a technical foul on six-foot-ten Joe Perry, the Roadrunner's top scorer.

The foul was Perry's fifth and would have left the shortstaffed Roadrunners with only four players on the floor. The wildly-upset Perry screamed at Standish and shoved him and that's when the referee decided to call the game. Perry continued his ranting and twice threatened Standish with a chair.

Standish said after the game that he would file a report on the incident with the league office while Renton coach Joe Puhych said he would protest both games.

Fortunately there were no injuries on either side in the hard-fought contests.

Renton only dressed seven players for the two games—top scorer Tony Hicks had quit the team earlier—and the manpower situation was a big advantage for DataTech.

Renton stayed close through most of Saturday's game but was out of the running early Sunday.

DataTech led 54-46 at the half Saturday but Renton scored the first eight points of the second half and stayed close until Victoria's Ken Shields opened things by scoring eight straight points.

Chances of a Roadrunner rally were quashed when Perry and Kemp fouled out in the dying minutes.

DataTech went with a fast-breaking game Sunday and, led by the free-wheeling Billy Loos, jumped to a 63-37 lead at the break.

Loos finished with 28 points Sunday while Cutler scored 22 Saturday and 20 Sunday and Jim Duddridge, playing his first game in three weeks, scored 18 Saturday.

Perry topped Renton with 54 points for the weekend and Dave Wilenborg added 41.

DataTech, 10-2 over-all, travels to Seattle next weekend to play in the Dynasties tournament.

Fink Unbeaten

EDMONTON (CP) — While name rinks like world junior champion Paul Gowsell and Canadian champion Ed Lukowich have staggered to the brink of elimination and back again in the World Open Tournament of Champions, Danny Fink has been quietly unbeatable.

Fink's Edmonton rink, the only undefeated foursome remaining in the $60,000 bonspiel, beat Lukowich's Medicine Hat rink 11-3 Sunday to move to within a game of the four-team sudden-death playoff.

In other games: Gowsell's Calgary rink beat Vancouver's Glen Hillson 11-6 and former two-time Canadian champion Hector Gervais of St. Albert, Alta. 12-6; defending world open champ Tom Reed lost to Fink 8-7, then won 8-5 over Calgary's Gil Schmaltz, who was eliminated; and Mel Watchorn of Fairview, Alta. downed Don Molesky of Calgary 5-4 but lost 6-2 to Edmonton's Bob Hawkins.

Hawkins also beat Gord Squire of Regina 7-6. Hillson defeated Frank Morissette 8-5, eliminating Morissette, who had earlier lost an 8-7 squeaker to Gervais.

Molesky, who during the bonspiel racked up wins against Gowsell, Lukowich and Gervais, was knocked out in a 12-8 loss to Squire.

Lyle Davis of Lethbridge beat the Edmonton rinks of Paul Devlin 7-6 and Darwin Daviduk 6-4 to stand one game away from a playoff spot.

Today, Hawkins was slated to play Fink and Gowsell to meet Davis for two of the four playoff positions. The four rinks then play sudden death semi-finals Tuesday, with the two winners meeting in the $20,000 championship Tuesday night.

Lukowich was scheduled to meet Devlin today, with the loser being eliminated. Devlin handed Lukowich an 8-6 defeat in the triple-knockout section, robbing him of an early qualifying berth.

In other 'must' games today Squire was to play Gervais. Reed was pitted against Daviduk and Hillson matched with Watchorn, the losers being knocked.

The Steve Skillings rink of Victoria missed the final round of 16 when it was defeated by Gervais 8-7 in an extra-end match. Gervais stealing the winning point when Skillings rolled too far on a takeout attempt with his final rock.

Gowsell eliminated Jim Armstrong of Vancouver, 8-6.

Goalkeepers Grab Soccer Spotlight

Goaltenders stole the show as four out of five of the weekend's first division matches in the Vancouver Island Soccer League ended in shutouts.

And one — Grant Darley — even managed to score a goal.

Darley scored the final goal on a penalty shot as first-place Victoria Athletics blanked Nanaimo City 6-0 Sunday in Nanaimo.

In other Sunday matches, Jim DeGoede recorded the shutout as Victoria West topped Powell River Villas 1-0 at Powell River, goalie Joe Iruretagoyna kept his nets clear as Gorge defeated Nanaimo United 1-0 at Hampton Park and UVic Vikings and Cosmopolitan Royals battled to a 1-1 deadlock at Heywood Avenue Park.

On Saturday, netminders — Steve Akam of Oak Bay and Dave Achurch of Duncan Selects — both blanked rival attackers as their sides fought to a scoreless deadlock at Royal Athletic Park.

Mark Robb and Dan Hood each scored twice in the first half for Athletics and Murray McCaig counted the other goal after the break.

Bobby Duncan counted at 29 minutes to lead Wests to victory and Goran Mehinagic connected at the 72-minute mark to give Gorge its triumph.

ALL BLACKS SCORE FIRST TOUR SWEEP

EDINBURGH (AP) — Coach Graham Mourie's All Blacks have become the first New Zealand team to sweep matches against England, Ireland, Wales and Scotland on the same Rugby Union tour.

The All Blacks defeated Scotland 18-9 Saturday after having trailed 6-0 in the first half.

The tourists lost just one match on the tour, a surprise defeat against Munster in Ireland.

The Scots attacked vigorously Saturday and had the All Blacks hanging on in the late stages.

But in the final minute, with the New Zealanders grimly defending a three-point lead under pressure, Bruce Robertson outraced Scottish player Keith Robertson to score a try. Bruce McKechnie converted to give the tourists a nine-point margin.

Islanders Give Trios Trouble

Oak Bay Trios needed five unanswered goals in the third period to edge the much-improved Kerry Park Islanders 6-5 in South Vancouver Island Junior "B" Hockey League play Saturday at Mill Bay Arena.

In another game, Esquimalt Legion trounced Lake Cowichan Baird's Trucking 13-3 at Lake Cowichan Arena.

Joe Miller and Ken Buna led Oak Bay with two goals each.

Bruce Berkey counted twice for the Islanders, who broke a 1-1 deadlock and went ahead with four goals in the second period.

Terry Parsons, Murray Allen, Wayne Proceviat and Dave Ricciuti each scored three goals for Esquimalt.

TIEMPO ALL-SEASON RADIAL
A new kind of tire for every kind of weather.
Here's the all season steel belted radial that meets the requirements of the British Columbia motor vehicle act for winter tires.
This gas-saving radial is built tough with double steel belts. Takes plenty of punishment, lasts much longer than bias-ply tires. In summer, the centre "whisper" rib gives you a quiet ride over hot roads. In winter, the computer-designed tread (with some 10,000 biting edges) gives you snow tire traction – even on glare ice.

A Reunion Of Two Old Friends

By DEREK SIDENIUS
Times Staff

The performer and audience were like two old friends who hadn't seen each other for a long while.

He was nearly speechless at the end of the show when the crowd stood in the aisles applauding, unwilling to leave.

"Thanks," he said at last.

"Thank you," someone shouted.

That was Rolf Harris in action. That was Saturday night's audience at the McPherson Theatre responding.

Tumultuous.

Harris and British Columbians have had a thing going for more than 17 years now.

It's a bit surprising considering the fact Harris is Australian and makes his home in London, England.

But it was here in B.C. he got his start and Harris has never forgotten.

In an interview, he recalled arriving in Vancouver aboard P&O's Oriana on her maiden voyage in 1961. He had intended to travel to Los Angeles and make his fortune.

But instead he landed a job at Vancouver's Arctic night club. His show ran 33 weeks and launched him into a show biz career that has since encompassed television, stage and screen on three continents.

Sadly the man who gave him the break, Ken Stauffer, owner of the Arctic and Cave night clubs, died last week. Harris, who just happened to be in the province on a concert tour, attended the funeral.

"Kenny's death is a big loss," Harris said. "I owe virtually everything to him."

Harris seemed destined to make a name for himself right from the start.

As a youngster growing up in Western Australia in the late 1940s, he excelled in swimming and was Australian junior backstroke champ.

He had just started a career teaching swimming when he was stricken with meningitis.

For two months the doctors weren't sure he would make it. When he recovered, he says, he discarded coaching and opted instead to go to England to study art.

While in London he became involved in the Down Under Club. He developed a comedy routine and repertoire of Aussie songs using aborigine musical instruments like the didgeri-do and wobble board.

Those were the days Calypso was sweeping the charts. Harris says he decided to create an Aussie version and reworked one of Harry Belafonte songs.

The result — Tie Me Kangaroo Down, Sport — became an instant hit and made Harris' name a household word.

Harris says his zany characters, like Jake the Peg (the three-legged man), and his latest creation, the Bearded Baby, are designed solely to make people laugh.

But is hasn't always worked that way. Once at Osaka during Japan's Expo in 1970, he gave a concert and performed the Jake the Peg routine.

"When I came on stage everyone sighed aaaah!" he said. "They thought it was for real. A man with three legs! How brave it was for him to make light of such an infliction."

Harris obviously enjoys his work. His schedule would exhaust a lesser man. His current tour has included three shows in Victoria, two in Duncan and five with the Vancouver Symphony Orchestra — all in the span of nine days. He is scheduled to be in Perth Dec. 24, will headline West Australia's 150th-year anniversary celebrations on New Year's Eve, and then goes to Sydney to finish an animated cartoon.

He's also booked for a one-month engagement at a cabaret in Sydney. Then he goes back to England to start a weekly television series and in April returns to Perth for a concert with the West Australian Symphony.

His Canadian agent, Ben Kopelow, is trying to organize a cross-Canada tour later in the year.

Harris says years ago when he was just starting in the business he was introduced to Hermione Gingold after one of his performances.

"I was pretty green then. I didn't know who she was. I thought she was going to say how much she liked the show but instead she said 'You never looked at me once during the performance.'

"I replied 'I didn't know who you were,' and she said 'No, you don't understand; you never looked at anybody.'

"She said if I wanted to be successful I would have to look at people . . . to win and woo them with my eyes."

And Harris hasn't stopped looking . . . or winning and wooing.

ROLF HARRIS . . . nearly speechless

Fish Firm Finds A Silver Lining

By PAT DUFOUR
Times Staff

Oakland Industries Ltd., in receivership a few months ago and written off by some segments of the business community, is back on its feet and going strong.

When the fish firm went into receivership Jan. 18, 1977, there were fears it was the beginning of the end.

But in November, with its debts paid, the company was taken out of receivership and is now an economically viable part of the community.

"It takes a lot of dedication by the whole of the community — the chartered accountant firms, creditors, the plant people, legal people going up against impossible odds," says Ned Easton, who became vice-president of the company in February.

He says the uphill struggle faced by people on the Oakland payroll has made them "a force to be reckoned with."

Oakland was brought to its knees by spiralling construction costs of its Montreal Street plant and the price war between the larger fish companies in 1976 that forced Oakland to pay prices that were, at times, higher than the selling price.

Today, the plant is in full operation.

Filleting herring keeps paycheques coming in for these Oakland workers

In addition to its regular staff of around 50, an additional 25 workers have been taken on to cope with the short but hectic food herring season.

This is still an experimental fishery on the west coast but Oakland, Victoria's only fish processing company, is among the leaders in its development.

This year for the first time they are producing marinated herring products, in addition to salted herring, frozen filets and whole frozen herring.

They've established strong markets for their products in Europe, mainly in France, Germany, Holland, Denmark, Scotland and Britain.

In its struggle for financial stability the company has diversified its operations. Instead of relying on the seasonal activities during the salmon and herring fisheries the plant is in full operation throughout the year, except for a 10-day lay-over for the Christmas season.

Processing of cod, sole, perch and other ground fish helps to keep the plant going all year round.

New markets for dogfish have been found in Germany and the United Kingdom, with Oakland landing and icing the fish, which is then transported to the United States for final processing.

The plant is also processing fish for other companies, such as Quality Fish of Vancouver and the Cassiar Packing Company from the Skeena River.

Its fish-buying activity has also been expanded, and now reaches as far as Prince Rupert.

The company now has two special processing barges. "We can start brining on the grounds and continue during transportation, producing a better product," Easton explains.

The corporate structure has also been changed to handle the diversified program. There are now three companies to handle the various operations. Oakland Industries covers the capital assets, Oakland Fisheries deals with the fishing side of the operation and Victoria Packing and Cold Storage the processing.

Like other Victoria companies, Oakland's staff will celebrate its success story at an annual Christmas party this year.

Instead of Santa, however, the guest of honor will be Bill Denson, who acted as receiver-manager.

PAY BOOST REFUSED BY CASILIO

Saanich Ald. Mary Casilio won't accept the $1,338 salary increase for aldermen which takes effect Jan. 1.

Casilio, who voted against council's final approval of the bylaw last week, said Saturday she won't take the 22-per cent salary boost although she would accept — if council approves it — a car allowance for her duties as municipal ombudsman.

Ald. John Mika, who also opposed the increase, said last week he will accept only an additional $540 next year representing this year's increase on the consumer price index.

Gunshots Result In Arrest

The Saanich Emergency Response Team was called in late Saturday when shots were fired outside a Cordova Bay residence in what police believe was a domestic dispute.

After surrounding the house police rushed the building to find it occupied by three children, aged 11, 10 and 5.

Police said their father was found shortly afterwards walking along Cordova Bay Road. His wife returned home soon after his arrest.

A police spokesman said today that the individual, whose name is not being released, was charged with being intoxicated in a public place and spent the night in jail.

No other charges were laid.

Two rifles and a shotgun were seized at the residence and destroyed.

Police said they believed one of the guns was discharged in the yard but they could not identify who fired the shots.

Intolerance Charge Over School French

A Sooke resident who complained about the quality of French instruction in local schools has been accused of intolerance by Sooke School District's French program co-ordinator.

Gaston Curet told the Times his children receive French instruction from teachers who can't speak the language and make grammatical mistakes on test questions.

But Hillary Spicer said Curet should try to be more understanding.

French is taught as a second language by English teachers who work hard at improving their mastery of the language but slip up every now and then, she said.

Curet is a native of St. Pierre et Miquelon, French Islands off the coast of Newfoundland.

He said one daughter attending Sooke Elementary helps the teacher with the basic French lesson — which lasts 20 minutes each day — because he can't speak the language.

Curet said another daughter attending Edward Milne Secondary school came home with a French test paper full of mistakes — the teacher's.

There were six major grammatical errors in the wording of the exam questions, he said.

Curet said he is a former French instructor who can't teach in the public school system here because he doesn't have a B.C. teaching certificate.

Spicer said she feels Curet's criticism is too harsh.

Some teachers giving French instruction at the elementary level aren't experts, but are devoted to improving student's acceptance of the language.

She said they have done outstanding work devoloping good attitudes between English and Francophone students.

Teachers frequently take refresher courses and attend summer school to improve their French ability, Spicer said, adding that Curet handled the problem badly.

She said he should have followed the usual channels and discussed the situation with the teachers before complaining.

Curet said he sent complaint letters to the school district and the provincial education ministry.

His Pen Makes the Logging Past Live

MY EXCURSIONS INTO the past are few and far between, but thanks to a wonderful book by old Tame Ape Bus Griffiths, I have been transported back to the highlead logger's world of the '30s.

There are any number of books about logging and loggers on the market, some written from expert inside knowledge, and others mere inept attempts by city-bred writers to deal with a trade obviously foreign to them.

But Bus Griffiths' book, Now You're Logging, is no less unique than the man who produced it as a labor of love that occupied him almost exclusvely for the last five years.

In his 119 oversized pages, Bus tells a story of the woods in words and pictures. He is a clever artist, and he works from a photographic memory richly stocked with logging scenes and situations. The result is a super-cartoon strip which not only lays out a slambang adventure story, but might well serve as an illustrated dictionary of highlead logging procedures.

I was aware of Bus Griffiths and his work long before I met him. Some of his cartoon strips turned up in Raincoast Chronicles, the magazine in which so much that is worth keeping from our British Columbia past has been preserved.

Earlier, other cartoons had appeared in issues of the B.C. Lumberman. I had also admired a notably fine set of oil paintings from the Griffiths brush, featured in a logging display in the Courtenay museum.

Then last week, on a day of wind and rain, Bus Griffiths dropped in on his way south from Campbell River to his home at Fanny Bay. With him was Howard White, editor-publisher of Raincoast Chronicles whose Harbour Publishing has brought out Now You're Logging.

I found Bus to be a robust, almost burly man, soft-spoken and with a slow and easy smile. He doesn't look in the least like my conception of an artist.

But at age 64, he does look and talk like the well-seasoned logger which he is, and we settled down amiably to hash over the ins and outs of a trade which has changed drastically with the years.

Bus remembers the first chain saws to invade the woods. He leaned back and sketched a word-picture of the cumbersome old Stihl . . .the two-man "Hitler Special" which spewed ball bearings from its sprocket head so lavishly that its operators were forced to carry a spare supply.

Hard hats? Oh yes, he was there when those came in. The first ones were clumsy and weighed a ton, and the boys wore them only under protest.

But always as he toiled at one logging job or another, Bus entertained the dream of putting down on paper what he saw and experienced.

It was hard — and still is — to discipline his work-stiffened fingers to a pen. But he persevered, and his wife Margaret, to whom he dedicates his book, kept him encouraged.

One of the most telling boosts to his career was administered by happy chance. In the '60s, Bus turned from logging to become master of a commercial salmon troller. Divorced from the woods, and homesick for them, he was overtaken by an urge to paint the logger's world as he'd inhabited it.

One result was the brilliant Courtenay series.

Bus speaks gratefully of his father, who started him on the illustrator's rocky road.

"Nights when I was asleep," says Gus, "he would draw something and leave it for me to find. These pictures were quite a mystery to me, and Dad let them stay so. He told me a couple of little elves slipped through the keyhole and worked the pen between them."

One night the "elves" left a horse which Bus admired to the point of copying.

To my mind, his book has one lack. The loggers of his adventure tale work on a truck show, and I could wish that Bus Griffith's lively inspiration had prodded him into depicting at least one logging locomotive.

I trust that in his next logging series he will show a Baldwin, a Climax or maybe a trim and tidy Shay locie steaming grandly out of the past with smoke from its stack pluming behind it.

SPECIAL HONORS TO CITY SWIMMER

For Daffoni Pendleton of Victoria, Sunday was the dream of a lifetime.

The 29-year-old competive swimmer was the only Canadian honored with a medal for her participation in the special Olympics for handicapped athletes.

The gold medallion was presented by Rosalynn Carter, wife of President Carter, shortly before the premiere in Washington, D.C., of the movie Superman at the Kennedy Centre.

Pendleton and the other athletes were invited guests at the gala showing and later met the stars.

"I've never met anyone like Mrs. Carter or all these movie stars," Pendleton said shortly before the ceremony. "It feels really good."

The presentation capped a weekend of fund-raising activities for the special Olympics — two days of parties and other events culminating in Sunday's presentations and premiere.

Eunice Kennedy Shriver was hostess at a $500-a-plate dinner Friday night as part of the Kennedy family's long time involvement in raising money for the special Olympics.

There also were training clinics Sunday at George Washington University for the handicapped featuring athletes such as baseball's Steve Garvey of the Los Angeles Dodgers and Ron Guidry of the New York Yankees, hockey player Bryan Watson of the Washington Capitals, members of the Washington Bullets of the National Basketball Association and muscleman Arnold Schwarzenegger.

'Baby Care' Course a Hit With 11-Year-Old Boys

RON ALEXANDER
New York Times

family

NEW YORK — They arrive at school, gurgling and smelling of talcum powder, in carriages or strollers; sometimes their mothers carry them in backpacks. Their average age is 7 months. One afternoon a week, at the Collegiate School here, they are, in the words of one mother, "living visual aids" for the fifth-and-sixth-grade boys — average age 11 — who signed up for a course called Baby Care.

Last year a similar course was so successful at the all-girl Brearley School here that Jane Mali, whose daughter is a student there, brought the idea to the attention of James Jacob, head of Collegiate's Middle School.

"It seemed such a natural for a boys' school," Mrs. Mali recalled recently. She said the idea was received with "mild skepticism" when she presented it last spring, but after conferring with parents Mr. Jacob decided to offer Baby Care, in conjunction with a course in first Aid, as an elective this fall.

"I was delighted," said Mrs. Mali. "I began recruiting babies even before they were born." Beth Maher, a friend who was pregnant at the time, was equally enthusiastic: her 4-month-old daughter, Caroline, is the "baby" ot the group. There are five other infants, two boys and three girls, who regularly attend the weekly class.

The class is limited to eight boys, though to everyone's surprise, at least twice that number requested it as their number one elective choice.

The objective of the course, according to Jacob, is for the boys to learn to "bathe, dress, feed, diaper and handle a baby, as well as handle emergencies." In addition, each boy is expected "to demonstrate warmth, patience, common sense and good humor." There is no teacher; the boys work with and learn from the mothers, who decide the week's topic among themselves; last week it was to be feeding.

The pram parade that heralded the beginning of class was greeted with shouts of, "The babies are here! The babies are here!"

Eric Slovin, 11, was a bit more calm than some of the other boys. "I could tell they were coming," he said, looking up from a book he was reading, "because I smelled the powder." When asked why he had elected to take the course, Eric replied, "I want to be a baby sitter, and at the end of the course we'll get a sort of diploma saying that with our experience we should get more money for sitting. I like playing with babies and making them laugh. And tickle them."

Nine-year-old Noah Perlman said that he was taking the course "because my mother is pregnant," and Jay Grimm, 11, said Baby Care had been his first choice because "It's better than Art Appreciation or Newspaper Writing." Was he enjoying the course? "Well, so far we've mostly done diapering and bathing and feeding. They can be pretty discouraging when they spit out the food."

COURSE WHERE ALL AGES LEARN

MISSISSAUGA, Ont. (CP) — About 30 three-year-olds are attending secondary school as part of a child-development program, but it is the older students who are developing.

Three half-days a week, the children are supervised by teen-age students as part of a course in child development. The students learn to understand and care for children.

Parents pay $1 a week to have their children attend the day-care centre in this community just west of Toronto. The money is spent on paint and paper used by the youngsters.

Besides helping in the centre, the teen-agers taking this course also go to an elementary school to help with children in the early grades.

Fitness Programs Boom

LONDON, Ont. (CP) — Canada's economy may be lagging, but industry-supported fitness programs for employees are booming, a university physcial education instructor says.

Mike Yumasz of the University of Western Ontario told a fitness symposium Wednesday that at least 150 Canadian companies have fitness programs.

One Toronto firm claims absenteeism accounts for $3 million a year, he said.

Yumasz said that in addition to improving health, fitness programs will also help eliminate friction between management and employees because exercising together seems to break traditional barriers.

City Woman Loves 3-Generation Home

"When I tell people I live with my mother-in-law (vice versa really) I get the cliche comments and tired, old jokes. But it has been a joy for us and all the family hope it continues for a long time.

"Mother is 87 now but still active and the arrangement is a most rewarding one for our children, my husband and myself."

The above quotes (from Mrs. C., Victoria) are selected from many comments received following my column on the three-generation family living under one roof.

"The children realize that grandma is getting older. Sometimes she is tired, sometimes does not wish to eat with us because she is not hungry; such things her grandchildren take in their stride. They learn that life requires making exceptions; they learn to be understanding and unselfish (well, a little less selfish).

"They give up afternoon TV programs as she watches her soap operas; on Saturday nights we all see that she has the Lawrence Welk show she enjoys.

In return, she is at home when our youngest boy (12) arrives from school. She starts dinner. She does home baking and the family thinks she's the world champion with chocolate chip cookies. If we go away for a weekend she stays with the older children, supervising their preparation of meals. The kids also do the dishes so she can relax.

"She is a kind, considerate, helpful person and we get along famously. I never knew my grandparents, unfortunately; I suggest that people who do not have grandparents of their own should give a home to an older person; in return they will give you much joy and satisfaction — as long as they are still relatively healthy.

"They are likely to be much more active and hardy than I expect we will be at their age. Most older people have made numerous sacrifices, passed through the Depression, did without luxuries and that forms some pretty sturdy characters.

"My husband agrees with you that multi-generation family living is likely to be a great experience. He says let them mix with the rest of the community, particularly younger folk, not put them away by themselves.

the fourth quarter
Leslie Holbrook

"You wrote a lovely column and we all appreciate the way you put your messages across to readers — we younger readers included."

"I belong to all the seniors' organizations you describe in your columns. But basically the trouble is not at that level," says C.M.L., Toronto, citing my piece which the Globe and Mail captioned "Participation, political-style."

"The truth lies in the apportionment of the GNP. In West Germany, France and the Scandinavian countries over 6 per cent goes to seniors' needs. In the U.S. it is over 4 per cent. In Canada it is just over 2 per cent.

"We are too scattered a country to think and act nationally. We are not a homogenous people like most European states.

"Also, let's face it. Lobbying (to hell with the other guys) is selfish and sinful. Let's feel sorry for the penniless youth, too; he can't even afford a haircut!"

Even seemingly harmless baby pacifiers have caused infant deaths. These occurred when the cord for hanging the pacifier around the baby's neck strangled the child or when a child suffocated after inhaling a broken part of a pacifier.

The folder Pacifiers And Peace of Mind explains pacifier safety regulations which are now in effect in Canada. They were developed by the Product Safety Branch of the Department of Consumer and Corporate Affairs and made law four years ago.

One regulation stipulates that the guard or shield of a pacifier should be large and rigid enough to prevent the child from inserting the nipple too far into his mouth. Also, any cord attached to the pacifier should be so short that it is not possible to hang the pacifier around the child's neck.

Although these and other regulations prevent most potential accidents caused by pacifiers, parents should regularly check the condition of their child's pacifier, particularly if the infant has teeth. Otherwise the pacifier may become a health hazard to the child.

To obtain a copy of the folder, write to Scientific and Technical Information Services, Product Safety Branch, Consumer and Corporate Affairs, Ottawa, Ont. K1A 0C9. Please indicate your postal code and allow at least two to three weeks for delivery.

IS CHOLESTEROL KEY CANCER LINK?

BAR HARBOR, Maine (UPI) — Reseachers at Jackson Laboratory say they have uncovered a key link which causes the body's defensive cells to destroy cancerous cells — and may lead to new cancer therapies.

"Though the cholesterol eaten with food is avoided by millions of people, the cholesterol inside the body has been found to play a crucial role in fighting off cancer," Bill Dupuy, a spokesman at one of the top genetic research centres, said.

"Studies indicate that cellular cholesterol is essential for the lethal hit delivered by a defensive lymphocyte (cell) when it meets a tumor cell," he said. "They (the researchers) also learned that when the lymphocyte's own production of cholesterol is down, its ability to kill the tumor is also crippled."

Cordoba Air Intakes Plug

wheels

By MICHAEL LAMM

MICHAEL LAMM

DEAR MIKE:

I can't get enough fresh air to come in through the ventilating system of my 1976 Cordoba, neither on the "vent" setting nor on "a.c." It used to work fine, but a couple of weeks ago the flow of air became weak and has now all but stopped, even with the fan on high. Is this a common problem? — Gasping

DEAR GASPING:

Fairly, especially in autumn. Your Cordoba has hidden windshield wipers, with the vent intake under the rear part of the hood. Leaves often fall into the gap between the hood and windshield and seal up the intake grille. Or sometimes leaves get past the grille and clog passages underneath. Either way, it's not a big job to remove the leaves and other debris.

DEAR MIKE:

Should I have to feed gas to my 1978 Olds while travelling downhill? I live on a 7% grade. Each time I go downhill, I have to push down on the accelerator. The car won't coast. Also, the automatic transmission shifts very roughly. The transmission people say it's because the clutches inside are set up to grab hard so they won't wear out slipping. I need help. — Pressing on Regardless

DEAR PRESS:

As you suspect, something is wrong inside your automatic transmission — something that doesn't let it shift while coasting. You're apparently in too low a gear while going downhill, so you're having to push down on the gas pedal to maintain speed. Insist that your dealer or shop correct this transmission problem.

DEAR MIKE:

My 1964 GTO, which I bought used about 18 months ago, has been abused during its lifetime. I'm trying to restore it. One big problem is spring sag. The left front side is noticably lower than the right. I don't want to use spring spacers because I understand they affect handling. And I've heard that if you replace one front spring you have to replace them both, because otherwise the second spring will show sag or have less bounce. What's your opinion? —Sagging

DEAR SAGGING:

Ordinarily I'd suggest using spring spacers, but you obviously want to restore this car correctly, so spacers are out. Which leaves only one alternative: replace both front springs with new ones. If you can't find new replacements, most good spring shops can fabricate coils to factory specifications.

dear abby

DEAR READERS: Can you believe it's time to prepare for the holidays again? Well, it is, so do yourselves a favor and do your Christmas or Hanukkah shopping early.

If you're wondering what to give Aunt Bessie or Grandpa, who don't get out much, let me tell you what NOT to give them:

No dusting powder, after-shave or cologne. (They probably have several unopened boxes gathering dust on the closet shelves.)

Grandpa doesn't need another necktie, and Grandma doesn't really want any more brooches, necklaces or bracelets.

With the price of groceries so high, folks who live alone on a fixed income probably would be delighted to receive a basket of goodies. Include small cans of salmon, chicken, ham, tuna, vegetables, fruit, instant coffee, tea bags, crackers, cookies and instant soup mix.

Another thoughtful gift is lined stationery with envelopes and a generous supply of postage stamps. (Enclose some felt-tip pens, too.)

Shut-ins would appreciate a box of greeting cards for all occasions so they too can send birthday, anniversary, graduation, get-well and condolence cards to others. (Be a sport! Stamp some envelopes.)

Don't give anyone a gift of clothing unless you're absolutely sure the size is right. That goes for the color and style, too.

If you're tempted to pass along a scarf, purse, wallet or some useless little doodad you received for Christmas three years ago, please don't. It's a pretty fair bet the recipient will find it just as useless as you did. (Besides, YOU might get it back the year after next.)

If someone on your gift list is living on a pension, a cheque for any amount would be much more appreciated than a frivolous little trinket. Or give someone who's counting his pennies a year's subscription to a newspaper or magazine you know he'll enjoy.

Don't give a pet to anyone unless you're absolutely sure it's wanted and will be properly cared for. If you want to delight a friend whose dog or cat is considered a member of the family, include a tin of cat or dog food for the pet.

Don't give gifts of wine or liquor unless you're sure the recipients imbibe. Candy, nuts and fruitcake make wonderful gifts for those who aren't counting their calories, but please have compassion for those who are, and lead them not into temptation.

Resist giving toddlers stuffed animals and dolls that are bigger than they are. Parents will thank you for not sending their children horns, drums, sirens or whistles. If you give a child a game or book, be sure it's in the appropriate age range.

Instead of giving someone a gift with permission to "take it back and exchange it if it's not what you want," why not save yourself (and them) much time and effort by giving them a gift certificate in the first place.

ABBY

P.S.: To be alone at Christmas is sad beyond measure. If you know someone who faces that bleak prospect, give him or her the greatest gift of all: an invitation to spend the holiday with you and your family.

HIS DIGGING COULD HIKE TAXES $14,000

SURREY (CP) — A man whose detective work could force 10 homeowners to pay an extra $14,000 a year in property taxes between them says assessments are made in an arbitrary manner and are almost never realistic.

Gordon Matthews told the British Columbia Assessment Authority that it has appraised 10 subdivision lots in this municipality south of Vancouver at $31,200 each when they now are selling for $17,000. Some of the lots have already been sold.

Residential property owners pay taxes on 15 per cent of the actual value of the lot. A spokesman for the tax department said that with a rate of 101 mills here, the net tax loss would have been about $14,000.

"The whole assessment system stinks," said Matthews, a retired immigration officer who discovered the error while questioning his own property assessment.

Assessor Lionel Verhoven said assessments are estimated for the area and individual properties are not examined. "There is always room for correction," he said, adding changes to these assessments now will have to be made on approval of the municipal court of revision.

Matthews said he realizes he may incur the wrath of the people who buy the lots. "I may find bottles and beer cans in my backyard but it had to be done."

He said he has also asked the authority to investigate assessments for another large Surrey subdivision where the same discrepancy may exist.

Assessments could be very unrealistic, said assessor Verhoven, because real estate values are unstable.

Education Cuts Gun Mishaps

A 53-year-old hunter, out on an expedition with several friends near Prince George, was trying to unjam his rifle's bolt while sitting in his car.

The gun, pointed toward the back seat, went off accidentally, killing one of the man's companions. That was in October, 1977.

A month earlier, at Amai Inlet on the west coast of Vancouver Island, a 21-year-old hunter, pitching camp at about 2 a.m., shot blindly at a movement in the bush. The target was his companion, who was killed instantly.

Both hunters were charged with criminal negligence.

Those incidents were like most hunting accidents that occur across Canada each year.

"I would say that a majority of the accidents would be carelessness," says Bill Crystal of the B.C. Fish and Wildlife branch.

"The individual forgets his gun is loaded, puts it in the trunk, goes bumping off down the road and it discharges . . ."

Between April 1, 1977, and March 30, 1978, there were three hunting fatalities in B.C., all of them related to firearms. There have been two so far this year in the province.

There were five hunting-related fatalities in B.C. in 1976-77, three of them firearms related.

The last year the province had no firearms-related fatalities was in 1975, the year officials began keeping records on an annual basis, rather than a fiscal-year basis.

In 1977-78, there were about 137,000 resident hunting licences issued, and those hunters purchased 328,000 species tags and limited entry licences. Total revenue was about $2.1 million.

The number of non-resident licences issued was 3,800 and those hunters bought 12,860 species tags and other special licences. Those sales brought in more than $1.2 million.

Mark Pimlott of Fish and Wildlife in Vancouver, says fatalities records go back only about 10 years, during which firearms-related fatalities have averaged about three a year.

He says there were as many as nine in several seasons in the early 1950s, but adds that the situation has improved.

Runaway Engine Back on Track

VANCOUVER (CP) — Vancouver's runaway CP Rail locomotive was back on track late Saturday night after spending much of the day with its nose sticking into the parking lot of the Bayshore Inn.

The wandering diesel, with no driver, suddenly began to move Saturday afternoon—chugging off the tracks, across a sidewalk and over Cardero Street before finally coming to rest.

No one was hurt but the runaway diesel sideswiped a parked car and tore up some pavement and shrubbery. Two diesel locomotives in tandem and a large crane were needed to drag the 110-ton runaway diesel back to its tracks.

CP Rail officials have launched an investigation into the cause of the incident, noting that it may not have been an accident.

b.c. briefs

Forest Firebug's Sentence Stands

VANCOUVER (CP) — An attempt to have a stiffer sentence imposed on a man who admitted setting a forest fire in northern British Columbia to provide work for members of his community has failed in B.C. Court of Appeal.

Bernie Seymour, 19, had been given one day in jail and a $1 fine for starting the fire at Fort Ware, about 320 kilometres west of McKenzie. Two other men charged in the case have yet to be tried.

Evidence Sought

VANCOUVER (CP) — Eloise Wilson, a Victoria lawyer serving a life sentence for murder, has requested a special pass from prison to attempt to collect evidence for a new trial.

Ms. Wilson, 50, was convicted last year of murdering Marian Hamilton, 69, in 1975.

Ms. Wilson's lawyer, Robert Gardner, said his client is probably the only person who can obtain the unspecified evidence.

Gardner said Ms. Wilson's mother, a recluse living on Vancouver Island, has refused to allow anyone to search her house for documents which he hopes may prove his client's innocence.

Mission Arrives

SEOUL (AP) — A B.C. economic mission arrived in Seoul during the weekend for an eight-day visit to explore joint investment and trade with South Korea. Led by Economic Development Minister Don Phillips, the mission will discuss joint investment in coal and other mining projects as well as in pulp and natural gas industries in B.C.

Trio Missing

FRASER LAKE (CP) — Three men were missing and presumed drowned Sunday after the snowmobile they were riding crashed through thin ice at this community about 80 kilometres west of the Central Interior city of Prince George. Names and other details of the mishap were withheld.

No Interference

VANCOUVER (CP) — Members of the British Columbia branch of the Canadian Bar Association unanimously passed a resolution Saturday strongly opposing any government interference with the judiciary.

The resolution follows a Judicial Council of B.C. inquiry into the conduct of Provincial Court Judge Erik Bendrodt, who admitted picking up a prostitute outside a Vancouver hotel Oct. 18 while drunk.

Murder Acquittal

VANCOUVER (CP) — One of two Montreal men charged with the gangland-style murder of a Montreal art galley assistant here last December was acquitted by a B.C. Supreme Court jury Saturday. Mario Tremblay, 31, was found not guilty of first-degree murder in the fatal shooting of Ferdinand Voorn, 29. Tremblay will be returned to prison in Quebec where he is serving a life term for another murder. The jury could not agree on a verdict on Paul Pomerleau, 33, and Justice Harry McKay declared a mistrial in his case. He will face a new trial at an unspecified date.

Beating Fatal

VANCOUVER (CP) — Edwin Parsons, 38, became the city's 26th murder victim of the year on the weekend when he was found dead in his home following a beating. There are no suspects.

Hotel Burns Down

FIELD (CP) — Fire Saturday destroyed the only hotel in this southeastern B.C. community of 250 persons. There were no injuries when the 70-year-old Mount Stephen Chalet burned to the ground. The community's volunteer fire department battled the blaze in -15 degree weather, but was unable to control the fire in the two-storey wooden structure. The 15-room hotel was closed at the time for renovations.

Poison Use Political?

A leading wildlife biologist says political pressure is the reason the provincial government is considering using the controversial poison 10-80 to cut the wolf population in B.C.

Ian McTaggart-Cowan said ranchers on the Bonaparte Plateau near Kamloops might have suggested to their MLAs that, in order to earn votes from the area, they must ensure the wolves are thinned out. Some ranchers have complained that the wolves are killing cattle on the plateau.

The fish and wildlife branch recently scrapped plans for widespread use of 10-80 but said it will poison wolves where needed.

"The fish and wildlife people are in an awful quandary, in an awful bind, because the decision (to poison wolves) is a political one," said McTaggart-Cowan.

"The wholesale poisoning of wolves was an act of despair and a confession of ignorance."

He said compensating ranchers for cattle lost to wolves is an unworkable plan because it is subject to abuse. A better idea, he said, would be to identify the particular animal responsible and have an experienced hunter shoot it.

Canada, Europe Plan Joint Space Projects

MONTREAL (CP) — Canada and the European Space Agency signed an agreement here Saturday which the Canadian government says will lead to closer co-operation on specific projects, particularly communications satellites and earth observation satellites.

The government said the agreement may allow better opportunities for Canadian companies to provide components for European space projects, which up to now have been restricted to European suppliers. Canada is also to participate in the agency's long-term study program, and joint projects are possible.

Until now, Canada has been only an observer in the agency, whose 11 member countries are all in western Europe.

Grits Answer is Turner: Poll

TORONTO (UPI) — The federal Liberal Party would surge ahead in voter popularity over the Conservative Party if former Finance Minister John Turner replaced Prime Minister Pierre Trudeau as leader, a Gallup Poll commissioned by the Toronto Star said during the weekend.

The poll results, published Saturday, showed that under Turner the Liberals would hold a five percentage point lead among committed voters over Joe Clark's Progressive Conservative party.

The same poll showed that with Trudeau as leader the Liberals would trail the Tories by eight percentage points.

Turner, according to the Star poll, would increase Liberal voter support among all age groups in every region of the country.

Surprisingly, the poll showed that even in Trudeau's home province of Quebec the Liberals would gain more voter support with Turner as party chief. Turner would give the Liberals 41 percent and Trudeau 37 percent in the province.

The poll, conducted at the same time as the regular monthly Gallup survey, sampled 1,046 committed voters across the country between Nov. 2-4. The percentage of uncommitted voters was not included.

With Trudeau as Liberal leader the polls shows the Conservatives would receive support from 45 percent of committed voters against 37 percent for the Liberals and 16 percent for Ed Broadbent's New Democratic Party.

Without mentioning party leaders the polls showed the Conservatives would receive 45 percent of the committed vote, the Liberals 35 percent and the NDP 18 percent.

Trudeau will ask Canadians next spring to give his 10-year-old Liberal government a renewed mandate for the fourth time since 1968.

FARMERS IN CLOVER

OTTAWA (CP) — After a startling turnaround in 1978, farm income is expected to remain buoyant throughout 1979 largely because of continued high meat prices, an agriculture department outlook paper says.

Farm income this year will be $4.42 billion, 29 per cent above the 1977 figure of $3.3 billion. In 1979, income should be $4.34 billion down slightly because field crop receipts are expected to be lower.

Back in Favor

HONG KONG (Reuter) — China has "rehabilitated" Tao Chu, a prominent leader discredited during the Cultural Revolution, the pro-Peking newspaper Ta Kung Pao said Saturday. The Hong Kong Communist newspaper said a book by Tao, banned during the Cultural Revolution and key in his downfall, will be reissued.

CRYSTAL BALLS JUST DON'T SEEM TO GRAB US

We read a good deal about advertising research and are frequently reminded of some mystical incantation — figures mysteriously projected, multiplied, divided, contorted to form a supposedly attractive story.

What ever happened to the good old how-many-copies-were-really-sold counts? That's the type of thing on which advertising rates are based.

It's for that very reason we have a no-nonsense, no-mystery ABC audit report of our circulation audience.

If you aren't strong on crystal balls either, then ask to see a copy of our latest report from the Audit Bureau of Circulations.

TRAVEL DOCUMENTS AWAIT FLQ EXILES

PARIS (CP) — Canadian ambassador Gerard Pelletier said Saturday the embassy in Paris has received instructions to issue travel documents to Jacques and Louise Cossette-Trudel if they wish to return to Canada.

Pelletier added, however, that the Cossette-Trudels have so far made no request to Canadian authorities.

A spokesman at the embassy said such documents are generally issued so that persons concerned are not turned back on their arrival.

The Cossette-Trudels have been in exile for the last eight years — first in Cuba, then in France — as an outcome of the kidnapping in October, 1970, of James Cross.

Purse Slim for Arts Next Year

TORONTO (CP) — Canada's cultural community is facing a tough fund-raising year as corporations pinch pennies and the federal government has frozen funding for all new projects.

The contribution chairman of one major corporation said he tells cultural institutions his company cannot afford to contribute now and that they should come back next year.

Canadians will be asked to contribute nearly $500 million for a multitude of worthy causes in 1979 ranging from university scholarships to local United Way campaigns. Almost 40 per cent of this will be solicited in Ontario.

And it comes at a time when corporate giving as a percentage of pre-tax profit has dropped to less than half of what it was after the Second World War.

In Toronto, Sydney Hermant, chairman of the board of trustees of the Royal Ontario Museum, said the museum has no hope of getting a $15-million federal grant before 1981.

And a $34-million campaign for Massey Hall is expected to stretch well into its second year before enough public money is raised to give the Toronto symphony and the Mendelsohn choir a new home.

John Roberts, federal secretary of state, said the Royal Ontario Museum will get no money until May 31, 1981, when Ottawa will have finished paying a $9-million grant to Massey Hall.

"There's just not a hell of a lot of money around," Roberts said. "After all, they cut $2 billion out of my budget."

A campaign for funds by the museum from corporations has raised $4.4 million of a needed $10 million, compared with $6.1 million by Massey Hall.

Both campaigns got a boost last week with the announcement that the R. Samuel McLaughlin Foundation had given $1 million to the museum fund and $500,000 to the Massey Hall fund.

George MacKinnon, doing a one-month study of how to get the museum fund on its feet, said it does not make sense to have the campaigns for the museum and for Massey Hall at the same time, "but I believe that both are important to Toronto and it is important that both become successful."

Alberta to Continue Shipping Oil South

OTTAWA (CP) — The federal government has agreed to continue shipping 55,000 barrels of Alberta light crude oil daily to the United States instead of slashing the shipments by half on Jan. 1.

And the governments of the two countries decided to set up a special committee to study the possibility of using partly idle refineries in eastern provinces to produce gasoline and other products for northeastern states.

The agreements came during a Saturday closed-door meeting between U.S. Energy Secretary James Schlesinger and federal Energy Minister Alastair Gillespie.

The two also said they will continue efforts to ensure a $12 billion natural gas pipeline from Alaska is financed without government aid and to have the U.S. energy department consider three sites on the Canadian east coast for strategic oil storage.

Schlesinger said following the talks he hoped Canada would continue to help meet crude oil needs in the northern portions of the mid-west states, traditionally dependent on Alberta for supplies.

A year ago the federal government had planned to chop the shipments to 20,000 barrels a day on Jan. 1 and to 1,000 barrels a day in 1980.

But armed with a new National Energy Board report showing a slight improvement in oil supply and demand, Gillespie told Schlesinger that he is "prepared to continue the exports of 55,000 barrels a day on a short-term basis."

The shipments would be reconsidered from month-to-month, allowing them to be reduced quickly if the oil is needed to meet domestic demands.

Feds to Drop Indians?

KISPIOX (CP) — A spokesman for Saskatchewan native Indians says the federal government is planning to relinquish control of Indian affairs and turn it over to the provinces.

Saul Sanderson, vice-president of the Saskatchewan Federation of Indians, also says that the federation has disovered a great deal of fraud surrounding Indian land surrendered by natives.

Sanderson, chief of the James Smith reserve, told the Gitskan-Carrier Tribal Council two-day convention that the federation has evidence and documents to show that the federal government plans to amend the British North America Act to move control of native affairs to the provinces.

He said Friday that the federation has copies of federal policy papers on the plan.

He also said that when Indians surrendered land in Saskatchewan, there was speculation by non-natives on that land, and that government officials set up dummy companies to bid on the land that was sold.

He said the federation has evidence that there were forged documents and has pinpointed some of the government typewriters used in the forgeries.

Sanderson made the comments during a speech to the convention and did not elaborate.

He told British Columbia Indians to be wary of government moves to induce them to form Indian municipalities because this means reserves would have to compete with municipalities for government funds.

Sanderson said that in Saskatchewan, the federation is forming a bureaucracy along the lines of provincial government.

A DIG AT SIR JOHN A.

OTTAWA (CP) — An Indian leader has threatened to dig up the remains of Sir John A. Macdonald, one of the founders of confederation, to protest the desecration of Indian burial grounds by archeologists.

"Let's see how white people feel about that," Alex Akiwenzie of the Nations of Warriors suggested in a weekend interview. "We are trying to raise the level of consciousness among Indian and non-Indian alike."

Curbs Hinge on Restraint

By VICTOR MACKIE
Times Ottawa Bureau

OTTAWA — A return to price and wage controls is not envisaged in the immediate future but over the long range avoiding controls would depend on how well the voluntary restraint program works, Robert Douglas, director of the Centre for the Study of Inflation and Productivity, said Sunday

He was questioned about Prime Minister Pierre Trudeau's warning at the opening of the recent federal-provincial economic conference. "I do not believe we have yet done all we might to eliminate inflation and foreclose the possibility of one day being forced to consider controls again," said Trudeau.

The federal government's compulsory controls program will terminate at the end of this year. It has been replaced with a study mechanism which will monitor Canada's economic behaviour and report to the government and the public on whether satisfactory progress is being made in curbing inflationary pressures. Douglas is the executive director of the organization.

He said he believes that at this time the direction in which Canada is headed is one of deceleration in inflationary pressures. He expects the consumer price index will show some moderation through 1979.

"I think it certainly would be premature to say that controls will come back. There are some dangers that we will get back into the inflationary spiral that we had back in 1975, but even then it's not necessarily the case that governments would chose the compulsory controls option again. So I think that it's a hypothetical kind of situation that's hard to predict at this time," he said.

He said that Canada faces a continued period of voluntary restraint in both prices and incomes for the post-control period. He was interviewed on CTV's Question Period program.

"We're not out of the woods yet and I think that sustained efforts really are required to make sure that the gains that we have captured to date with the anti-inflation program are not lost," he said.

Douglas said that what is required in the post controls period is voluntary controls by organized labour and by business. The unions should not be too ambitious in their demands for pay raises and businessmen should curb their desires for higher profits. In addition the position of governments is another factor rin the inflationary environment.

In the past two years at least government had been showing more positive action with restrict to restraints on expenditures, he said. Business, labour and governments all had a responsibility to show restraint if inflationary pressures were to be reduced and kept fromt spiralling in the post control period, he added.

P.E.I. GIVES CAMPBELL MANDATE

CHARLOTTETOWN (CP) — Bennett Campbell won an overwhelming mandate Saturday as Prince Edward Island premier and Liberal party leader, outpolling his only rival 963 to 382 at a leadership convention.

Campbell, 35, heads a government which he says can last at most two years before a general election is called, and which will live in constant danger since the Liberals won only a 17-15 mandate in an April vote.

'People's Conscience' Brief for Parliament

FAIRWEATHER

OTTAWA (CP)—Urging the federal Human Rights Commission to be the conscience of the people, about 200 rights experts agreed Sunday to send an urgent report to Parliament on issues ranging from unemployment and racism to the RCMP and the courts.

The report will contain their concern about unemployment causing racial and other discrimination, about human rights codes they consider weak and about a judicial system they consider insenstive, among other issues.

Gordon Fairweather, federal human rights commissioner, said the report will be submitted to Justice Minister Marc Lalonde who is compelled under the Human Rights Act to present it to Parliament within 15 days after receiving it.

It will contain recommendations by human rights experts from across the country who met during the weekend to mark the 30th anniversary of the Universal Declaration of Human Rights. The declaration commits Canada and 39 other countries to uphold freedom and equality of all persons.

"It is important that we show our impatience and dissatisfaction," said Rita Cadieux, deputy human rights commissioner.

The conference delegates called for legal amendments that would make the federal and 10 provincial human rights laws uniform and that would permit groups, not just individuals, to lodge complaints about discrimination by employers, governments and their agencies.

The laws differ in every province. For example, only Quebec bars discrimination on the basis of language or homosexuality. Only Manitoba, New Brunswick, Quebec, Nova Scotia and the federal code bar discrimination against handicapped persons.

Civil liberties and related voluntary groups were urged to keep tabs on the royal commission into RCMP wrongdoing and to see that citizens get their views across.

Delegates said racism increases when unemployment is high and newcomers to the labor market, such as immigrants, are seen as a threat to jobs. And they called for Indian and non-Indian people "to be mutually supportive in their struggle against the common economic basis of racial discrimination."

They said each human rights code should override all other laws passed by Parliament and the provincial legislatures. Only in Alberta, Quebec and Prince Edward Island does the human rights code take precedence.

Nellie Carlson, an Edmonton Cree representing Indian Rights for Indian Women, suggested hypocrisy by government over the Indian Act which strips Indian women of their Indian status when they marry non-Indians but contains no penalty for Indian men who marry outside.

She said External Affairs Minister Don Jamieson has denounced human rights violations in South Africa "yet right here in Canada we still have continued discriminatory law against Indian women."

Civil Rights Day: Arrests in Russia

MOSCOW (UPI) — Human rights day was marked for five minutes in Moscow by Soviet dissidents, some of whom were arrested for their trouble.

The Soviet press said Americans have forgotten the Declaration of Independence.

About 30 or 40 dissidents gathered Sunday on Gorky Street near Pushkin Square, a traditional site for human rights demonstrations, for a peaceful and silent vigil in commemoration of the 30th anniversary of the U.N. Declaration of Human Rights.

It broke up after about five minutes, and police and volunteer militia guards moved in to clear the area.

Yelena Bonner, wife of dissident leader Andrei Sakharov, said about 20 dissidents in all were detained by police but many were later released.

Officially, the Soviet press noted the day with newspaper attacks on the United States record on human rights. The newspapers claimed millions of Americans were the victims of unemployment and racism.

Protest in Ottawa

OTTAWA (CP) — About 350 Vietnamese braved bone-chilling winds and sub-zero temperatures on Parliament Hill to mark the 30th anniversary of the United Nations declaration of human rights Sunday and to urge the government to take a firm stand on alleged human rights violations in Vietnam.

Chanting slogans and carrying placards calling for the defence of human rights and the release of 800,000 Vietnamese prisoners of war, the demonstrators marched from the Vietnamese embassy about 50 blocks north to the Parliament Buildings.

An embassy statement said the Vietnamese government has applied "an extremely lenient and humane policy towards the soldiers and officials of the former Saigon Regime, helping them become honest citizens useful to society."

Race Bias on Job

OTTAWA (CP) — Employers should have to account for themselves to human rights commissions when they do not hire employees from racial or ethnic minorities, civil liberties lawyer Alan Borovoy said today.

In a speech to a national human rights conference he cited Canadian Civil Liberties Association studies which found 22 of 30 job placement agencies in Toronto agreeing to employer's requests not refer to blacks, certain immigrants and minorities to job openings.

Another study in Kenora, Ont. showed that less than a handful of native people had jobs in retail stores although native people make up a large part of the population in the region.

HAPPY ANNIVERSARY!

BRUCE PASSMORE—Founder of SPEEDWAY MOTORS

LOOKING BACK
with BRUCE PASSMORE

After 25 years in the car business, the day-to-day struggles and crises are sometimes hard to recall. It's the people you remember! The thousands and thousands of people who have crossed your path over the years. People you worked with and have had great moments with . . . customers you have dealt with over the years. The many customers and friends who have come to us through the years from the days of early VW Beetle to the present with the VW Rabbit and the magnificent Porsche Turbo which sells for $65,000.00. They're who you remember. One of my biggest regrets has been that I've met so many interesting customers with whom I would have loved to have spent more time and got to know better . . . but the pressure of 'business-as-usual' didn't always allow for that.

The car business has obviously changed a great deal in 25 years, some changes for the better, others . . . well the old ways weren't all that bad. Twenty-five years ago a car dealer had to be a combination Barnum and Bailey, gambler and horse-trader. Most of the men in the car business today have expensive educations and MBAs or degrees in Marketing and Psychology. This makes the business much tighter and controlled. The one thing I guess I really miss in the business is the fact that there are men today who sell cars as they would any other commodity.

I love cars, then and now. I love talking about them, looking at them and just being around them. My family does and I would like to think our staff do also . . . that's the difference at Speedway Motors. We went into the car business not because we supposed it would make money but because we loved cars . . . racing them, trading them, buying and selling them.

I think that in 25 years that is what I would call the spirit of Speedway Motors. We sell cars because we LIKE to sell cars and there is nothing we like better than talking about our cars to our customers.

WHERE IT ALL BEGAN

I don't suppose anyone noticed the young man on crutches standing in the pits that night at the old Langford Speedway. It was the summer of 1946 and auto racing had just resumed after being blacked out for the war years. The old Speedway at that time was in pretty bad shape. After years of neglect the dirt track was pitted and holed, the grandstands were inadequate and only the dedication of the drivers kept the near-bankrupt track alive.

That's what Bruce Passmore saw on his first visit to the old Speedway. Passmore himself was no stranger to racing, in fact the reason he was on crutches was the result of a spectacular motorcycle race crash. The crash shattered Passmore's left leg so badly that doctors at the Rochester Medical Centre first advised amputation, then later resigned themselves to the fact that he would never use the leg again. Now Bruce Passmore stood at Langford Speedway after almost four agonizing years in a cast and decided to get back into racing again . . . by buying the old track . . . quite an ambition for a guy without a dime in his pocket. However, by borrowing every last cent he could and mortgaging his life away he acquired Langford Speedway in late 1946.

Always a promoter, showman Passmore had a plan to put the new Bruce Passmore Langford Speedway on the map . . . he improved the stands, built washrooms and actually paved the old oval, making Langford the first paved track of its kind in Canada right here on the Island.

After working on the Speedway, Passmore had to attract crowds. Up until that time there were sometimes more people on the track than in the stands. He figured he needed some good wheel-to-wheel exciting racing so he commissioned not just one but six race cars to be built to kick off the '47 season. His cars and his drivers against the best the West had to offer or against each other if necessary. The result is that we still have first class racing at Western Speedway thanks to a young man who had a dream over 40 years ago.

His interest in car building led him naturally into the mysterious regions of automotive design and engineering. Passmore teamed up with automotive genius Jack Smith to create some of the most advanced race cars in the Northwest. In fact if Bruce Passmore and Jack Smith had lived in Indianapolis who knows where it might have led. As it was, Victoria race fans saw one of the very first rear engined race cars in North America competing at Langford. Old Number 36, built from the ground up by Jack Smith from a faded picture of the famous Auto Union race cars.

His passion for car constructing and design also led Passmore to passenger car design. Again he and Jack Smith teamed up to build a car called the STACCATO pictured here in our Gallery. Just imagine what one of these would be worth today!

Ironically, at the same time Bruce Passmore was building up Langford Speedway with his showmanship and hard-nosed business sense, a tiny automotive outfit in Stuttgart, Germany was rising out of the ashes of World War II and putting together a re-designed Volkswagen car with the help of the U.S. Army.

In 1950, Passmore's interest in cars turned to selling them, and to learn this side of the business he took over management of the Olson Used Car Lot on Yates Street. This, in addition to his management of the Langford Speedway.

in 1951 Langford School Board expropriated the Speedway to expand for the coming post war baby boom and Bruce Passmore decided to get serious about the car business. He sold his new house, mortgaged himself again and opened Speedway Auto Sales on Quadra and Fort Street. Here is where the Passmore/Speedway story takes on a Horatio Alger twist.

In 1948 Passmore almost took on the TUCKER car franchise because he was intrigued by its almost futuristic engineering. Unfortunately the Tucker's managment did not live up to the car and the Tucker went the way of the Dodo bird in a very short time.

However, in 1953 Passmore heard about an incredible new German car looking for dealers in Canada. The Volkswagen car itself didn't really intrigue him although he liked the principle being a rear engined man from way back. What did intrigue Passmore were the little Van and Pick-Up Volkswagen offered. At that time Chev and Fargo Panels were still the King of the delivery trucks and Passmore thought there would be a real market for these little trucks and vans . . . I don't think even Bruce could have envisioned the recent Van craze. However, he and Jack Smith took a look at the car, in fact Jack Smith drove it for about two hours and then said, "This car is 20 years ahead of its time, I don't know if it'll sell though, 'cause it's the funniest darn thing I've ever seen in my life."

Other dealers laughed their heads off, his friend looked worried about his mental health, even his wife who had stuck by him through some crazy ideas looked askance at his decision but Bruce Passmore signed up for the Volkswagen franchise in 1953, again borrowing, mortgaging and begging every penny he could.

That was 25 years ago this November and the rest is history. The Volkswagen became the 'Small Wonder' of the automotive world, broke every sales record for import cars and in the 60's became THE import car in the World.

Even the advent of the Japanese car gave Volkswagen only momentary setbacks, since then they have come back with a whole new line of fantastically engineered cars. When Roy Passmore, Bruce's son took over the reigns of the business in 1975, Speedway Motors sold Volkswagen Rabbits, Sciroccos, Audis, VW Campers and the incredible Porsche, the winningest race car in the history of car racing.

On its 25th Anniversary, Speedway Motors is now considered the premier Volkswagen dealer on Vancouver Island and under the management of Roy Passmore, one of the West's foremost Porsche specialist dealerships.

All in all not a bad record for 25 years, considering that it started with a dream, an idea and a shoestring with a product no one dreamed would succeed.

The other day a small boy was sitting at the wheel of a Porsche in the showroom, gripping the fat wheel with his chubby little hands. This is Bruce Passmore Jr., Roy's son and Bruce's grandson getting the feel of a car he may very well be selling a few years from now. And can you just imagine what exciting changes will have taken place by that time!

B. Passmore Buys Auto Race Track

Bruce Passmore, son of W. J. Passmore, and well known in Moose Jaw, is the new owner of Victoria's Langford Speedway, the home of auto racing there, it was learned today. Mr. Passmore recently purchased the track from its former owners, and plans to resurface the track and install better seating accommodation and other improvements, including an electric eye recorder for time trials.

W. J. Passmore formerly operated the Royal Theatre here.

This was the tiny article in the newspaper that heralded the start of Bruce Passmore's entry into car racing and into what eventually became Speedway Motors.

Early action at the old Langford Speedway, most of these cars were built in backyards from the old Model A's and used stock parts.

Imagine! Run-what-you-brung races! Notice the licence plates and just imagine what that old roadster is worth today.

A little showboating and advertising effort for the Speedway racing. This rig used to be towed around Victoria with loudspeakers announcing the racing . . . imagine the permits you'd need to do that now!

Anything to advertise the fledgling Speedway Auto Sales . . . Bruce Passmore at the wheel of #48 at the Old Shearing Speedway in Cobble Hill.

Car of the future? Car owner Bruce Passmore stands beside car builder Jack Smith and the incredible rear-engined #36. Vern Bruce put a few winning laps on this one.

Fire was a huge hazard in the old days . . . but you don't see anyone slowing down just because of a few flames or the fact that you can't see where you were going through the smoke.

Originally designed as a race car . . . the Bruce Passmore designed, Jack Smith built STACCATO was a true classic in performance and styling.

Oops! Langford Speedway about to lose its power. The old wall signs in the background are almost a history of Victoria's retail business.

This is the lot Bruce Passmore learned the used car trade on. Just imagine what those beauties are worth today, and how about the 'Jack Pot' Special . . .

THE PORSCHES OF SPEEDWAY
. . . and our resident expert, BRUCE CLARKE

The Porsche is a very selective type of automobile. it is simply not for everyone. It takes a special person to be able to afford and appreciate owning a Porsche. Speedway Motors recognized this in 1957 when they became the very first Porsche dealer in Western Canada and since that time they have become one of the leading Porsche dealers in Western Canada.

PORSCHE 924
'the pocket racer'

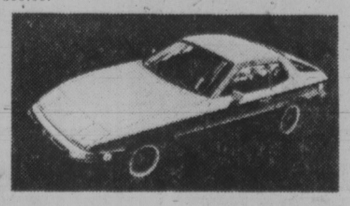
Unique front mounted 4-cylinder injected 2 litre engine coupled to rear mounted transaxle gives this luxury appointed coupe unbelievable handling. Luxury options like sunroof, rear wiper and AM/FM radio are standard. The economical Porsche for $22,500.00.



Along with a team of qualified expert Porsche mechanics, Bruce Clarke is one of the top men in the Porsche field and incidently is also Roy Passmore's brother-in-law which makes him a member of the Passmore family and the Speedway Management Team.

People who love Porsches and buy Porsches demand that the man who sells them their cars know exactly what he's talking about, right down to the last bolt. Bruce Clarke does exactly that. There is probably very little about the Porsche automobile that Bruce doesn't know. If you're in the market for a Porsche we suggest you talk to him, he's one of the best.

the PORSCHE 911 SC
'the classic Porsche'

Already in the Museum of Modern Art as a classic art form, the 911 Porsches are faster and more luxurious than ever. Available in coupe or Targa they are masterpieces of design and engineering. They are also exclusive and expensive and make no apologies for their $34,750.00 price tag.

the new PORSCHE 928
'an automotive sensation'

The last word in engineering genius! The 928 is the most advanced car in the world today. Front mounted V8 give this car blinding speed and the cornering ability of a grand prix race car. This is the car that is creating love affairs just standing still . . . driving it is sheer ecstasy. For this newest of the Porsche legends $50,000.00.

the PORSCHE TURBO
'the ultimate Porsche'

THE FASTEST PRODUCTION CAR IN THE WORLD! Acceleration that can be measured on a G meter. Top speed that can shatter nerves. It is the most awesomely powerful car ever built for production. There are probably a few thousand people in Canada that can afford its $65,000.00 price tag . . . but, there are only a handful who can appreciate what it means to own the Turbo! Coming soon to Speedway!

THE AMAZING AUDI 5000

A brand new automobile from one of Europe's oldest car builders . . . the tradition of the awesome Auto Union race cars lives in the Audi 5000 . . . Brought to North America to take its place beside Mercedes, Cadillac Seville and Lincoln Versailles. The Audi is a complete luxury car with the added benefits of power acceleration, incredible road handling and of course a lower price than its competition.

SPEEDWAY'S PEOPLE . . .

Back in 1953, it took a lot of faith and foresight to see the potential in the Volkswagen and that decision to go with the car certainly paid off for Bruce Passmore. But, it takes more than a great car and good location to make a dealership, especially one that has been around 25 years . . . it takes People! And if Volkswagen is one of the most advanced cars around today . . . then Speedway's People are certainly among the top in their fields.

Speedway built a business, a reputation and an esprit de corps around these people, these are no ordinary employees or workers, these are men and women who built Speedway and who feel a part of its success! They are people who care! Take our mechanics, men like Daryl Petersen and Robin Reid. They've been with us over 10 years, and they know most of their customers' cars by sight . . . Gerhard Tillein, Dan Geib and Frank Vucic have also been with us over 10 years . . . these men taken an active part in Speedway and play an active part in making sure Speedway service customers come back again and again.

Peter Knox who has been with us 11 years and Bill Verwijk who has been with us 14 years comprise our Parts Team. Together there simply isn't anything they don't know about Volkswagen Parts and they can be called on to give expert advice and show you how to keep your Volkswagen, Porsche or Audi performing at its best for years and years . . . Peter and Bill are also known and well respected in the trade as being experts in the field of Volkswagens.

Our longest-term staff member is Margaret in our Office . . . Margaret has seen all the changes in her 17 years with Speedway. Les Collier has been selling for us for 14 years and quite frankly knows more about Volkswagen than anyone outside the factory. Bruce Clarke has been handling Porsches for 8 years and has probably driven every type of Porsche made in that time. Ron Frampton, our comptroller, has kept the good ship Speedway afloat through the ups and downs of the car business.

This is the essence of Speedway . . . the spirit of Speedway if you will . . . these men and women who have helped build the business with their hard work, their dedication and their expertise.

SPEEDWAY'S CARS . . .

VOLKSWAGEN RABBIT

The first Volkswagen Beetles in Canada were strange-looking cars, but they were engineering marvels and far ahead of anything on the market at that time. Today's Volkswagen Rabbits are still leading the way . . . consider how many other makes of car 'look' like the Rabbit.

But looking like a Rabbit and performing like a Rabbit are two different things. The Volkswagen Rabbit Diesel for instance has just been named the TOP FUEL EFFICIENT CAR IN CANADA FOR 1978, an honor it also won in 1977. And consider, if Volkswagen Rabbit is the most copied car of the decade then it must have a lot going for it . . . it is the blend of economy, roominess, comfort, performance and quality that attract other manufacturers to copy it . . . but there is only one genuine Volkswagen Rabbit . . . and why buy a copy when you can own the real thing?

Volkswagen Rabbits have front-wheel drive, fuel injected with gas or diesel power, 4-speed, 5-speed or fully automatic transmissions, 12 exciting colors, air conditioning sun roofs, passive restraints and other big-car options are available.

VOLKSWAGEN SCIROCCOS

The incredible sports machine. In 4-speed or automatic.The Scirocco is like no other sports car. Things like race-inspired single wipers front and rear. Fuel injection, optimum instrumentation and multiple seat adjustment make this a unique performance sports coupe.

VW VANS, WINDOW VANS AND MINI BUSES

Still one of the most unique, economical vehicles for hauling cargo and people in comfort and style. Available in 4-speed or automatic in a variety of colors and interiors.

THE AMAZING AUDI FOX

Rabbit economy with Audi design and styling . . . fuel-injected, front-wheel drive in station wagon, 4-door and 2-door GT models with a variety of options.

SPEEDWAY PARTS

You've all heard the expression "for lack of a nail the shoe was lost, for lack of the shoe . . ." etc. Well, at Speedway Motors Parts Department there is no such thing as "lack of a part." From a five-cent washer to a complete engine, Speedway's Parts Department have it in stock; in fact, with their $100,000 inventory of parts you could probably build more than a few complete cars. But parts are just a part of it, if you'll excuse the pun. Speedway's Parts people are what make the difference. Like Peter Knox and Bill Verwijk who can offer advice and counsel on ANY VW, Porsche or Audi part . . . and Dave Lobb who handles our wholesale business and can give advice over the phone to the countless service stations and garages who use our parts . . . and Eddie Tan who delivers our parts and dispenses advice on ANYTHING to do with Porsches, and he should know, he's rebuilt more than a few in his spare time. They are the difference, these men who will spend time with each customer explaining how he or she can get the most out of the part they are buying . . . That's what Speedway Parts Department is all about . . . the right part at the right time and people who care!

SPEEDWAY SERVICE

When did you last hear of an 'after-service service'? Well Speedway Motors has one . . . in fact Speedway has a man whose full-time job is to check on ALL service customers, making sure they're happy with the work, reminding them of important service periods. Speedway call it their "I CARE" quality service and that's exactly what it is. And more than that, Speedway's Sevice reputation is built around people like John Parton, head of the service department who started out as a mechanic with Speedway an incredible 18 years ago. Or Paul Jorgensen, who brought his 18 years of VW experience with him when he joined Speedway 12 years ago. Speedway services about 150 cars a week and not only that, they maintain full records and files on thousands of customers' cars. All it takes sometimes is a phone call from a 'regular' to track down some service problem using their extensive records and a good memory. But then that's the kind of service you would expect from a dealership that has been handling Volkswagen and Volkswagen service for over a quarter-century. Speedway also features a convenient downtown location with a large comfortable customer lounge when you're waiting for minor tune-up work.

SPEEDWAY'S CAMPERS

The Camper is another field where Volkswagen has led the way. Volkswagen were the first to introduce a mini fully-contained camping unit with their Volkswagen Westphalia and since that time have improved their design over and over again. In 1979 Speedway Motors are offering the sensational Volkswagen 'GETAWAY' Camper, a genuine, luxury camper completely contained in a Volkswagen Camper Van. It features raised roof, wood panelling, stove, fridge, heater, and toilet. And of course the famous Volkswagen economy and reliability are standard on every Speedway GETAWAY Camper.

Kirk Puts On A Black Hat

By VERNON SCOTT
United Press International

HOLLYWOOD — Kirk Douglas hid in the chaparral eyeing a horse-drawn buckboard rumble through a tunnel hewn from from the rocky terrain of Bronson Canyon high in the Hollywood Hills.

The actor with the dimple in his chin turned to his horse, Whiskey, and asked in disbelief, "Did you see that?"

Whiskey shook his head on cue and Douglas ran, bandy-legged, full tilt after the buckboard. On reaching the mouth of the tunnel he crashed into a solid block of black rock and bounced back in a classic pratfall.

Earlier, Douglas — in the role of Cactus Jack Slade — had painted the tunnel onto the side of the mountain in a wacky attempt to maim Ann-Margret and Arnold Schwarzenegger, the good guys in his new movie, The Villain.

The cast and crew rocked with laughter as Douglas sprawled in the dust, defeated once again in his dastardly assaults on the hero and heroine.

The scene and the movie are an entirely new milieu for the four-time Academy Award nominee.

After a career of some 60 melodrama movies, Douglas has relished every scene in the first all-out farce he's ever played.

As Cactus Jack he portrays the most inept badman in the west, foiled at every turn, not infrequently by Whiskey.

In another scene Douglas flees a bank he has just robbed, jumps in the saddle in the best western tradition of quick get-aways only to have Whiskey sit back on his haunches while the sheriff collars the luckless gunman.

Cactus Jack is a combination of Peter Sellers' bungling Inspector Clouseau and Wiley Coyote of the Roadrunner cartoon series. Douglas, dressed in villain's black, is playing him to the hilarious hilt.

Back in his plush mobile home dressing room during the noon break, Douglas feasted royally on broiled lobster and chicken in air-conditioned luxury.

He grinned broadly and then laughed. He was the picture of a kid with a new toy.

"I've never had so much fun in my life," he said. "I've been in this business more than 30 years and I've never come close to playing comedy before.

"Oh, I had a few humorous scenes in Championand a couple of other pictures, but they were fleeting moments to relieve the heavy drama. This is real farce, something I've never been offered in the past."

The 'Other People' is You

I QUIT! Week 10:

By DAVID COTTER

Who are the politicians and the superstars? Answer: The Other People. Who are the earthshakers, the movers, the beautiful people? Who are the experts? The Other People. Who are the rich and the lucky? Whom do the movies and books come from? The Other People.

Look around today, as you begin your 10th week and realize that to every smoker you see you are The Other People. You've quit. In their eyes you are a miracle. Add, with justifiable pride, the following facts to your list, all of them gleaned from a study of smoking and U.S. politics.

- In 1973, tobacco company profits exceeded $700 million. Sales totalled over $12.2 billion.
- In the early 1960's, nearly a quarter of the committees of the U.S. Senate were chaired by men from the six tobacco states.
- Cigarette taxes have netted the U.S. government over $2 billion per year since 1965.
- In 1973, some $289 million in tobacco products was exported, a nice contribution to the balance of payments.

The point to all that is simple.

The government condemns tobacco on moral grounds while profiting handsomely from its use. If cigarette taxation was ever a sincere part of a moral crusade, it has long since become a major source of governmental revenue: Revenue collected from the ruin of human bodies.

Cigarettes in machines now cost, amazingly, $1. I refuse to date myself ridiculously by recalling what they cost when I was 20. Every year, without fail, smokers and drinkers are taxed still more outrageously, thereby increasing some of the tension that drives them to smoke and drink in the first place.

Politics — the art of imposition by paid thugs on the helpless, the uninformed, the naive. The over-ruling of the apathetic by the heartless. By those Other People, the leaders we deserve.

Rebel — not by standing on a corner and proclaiming the end of the world if it doesn't change to suit you — but by changing yourself from a victim, if only in this one small way: don't be abstract, be specific. Narrow your focus to the head of a pin and perfect that one point. The mastery will spread soon enough, since the skill you're developing is central to your existence — literally a matter of life and breath.

The entire thrust of this series has been that if our aim is true, if we're patient enough and persistent enough, then this personal adventure becomes a vital part of the human adventure.

Politics does not belong to The Other People. It's here and now, in the street, in the tavern. It's we in our daily encounters. Our character, combined, form the mood of a nation. It matters what we do, you and I.

Romantic hokum? I think not.

We are losing the sense of ourselves as prime movers in anything. The Watergate fiasco was proof that a nation's collective mood can topple even the chief thug from his throne. But does anyone remember Mirabel, our Watergate? And, will there ever be an election? Does anyone care? How much longer will Trudeau be our leading filter-tip?

In quitting you've refused to be taxed for a habit that's already taxed you enough. You've taken political action against a multi-billion dollar industry that's been banking all along on your remaining a statistic.

And, they said it couldn't be done.

See you next Monday.

Horn Master Dominates

By AUDREY JOHNSON
Times Staff

It would be difficult in any performance in which Barry Tuckwell was soloist not to regard his portion of the program as its dominating feature. It certainly is so in Victoria Symphony Orchestra's current pair of concerts.

The Sunday concert at University Centre Auditorium unfolded a pleasant program, technically clean and smoothly conducted by guest maestro Larry Newland. But it was a concert in which, with the exception of the glowing heights reached by the French horn in the hands of its unrivalled master, little inspiration was achieved.

The Richard Strauss Horn Concerto No.2, the lyrical and brilliant product of Strauss' advanced maturity, is a piece to charm the ear as well as dazzle it. There is a fine breathless on-sweeping movement, a singing of melody, passages that scintillate as they present an awesome challenge to the performer.

Tuckwell explores all phases of the music with an introspective artistry that searches every subtlest nuance, producing a silken, smooth tone that is as pure as it is warm and evocative. The virtuosity of the piece, the convolutions of phrase, the leaps and rapid articulation, are all couched in that luminous sound and never-failing sensitivity of phrase.

The orchestra was not completely at home with its part. Newland controlled the situation competently but there were rough and awkward places in performance of the difficult score, especially for the strings, although some nice work was heard from the winds.

Weber's Euryanthe Overture as a program opener showed Newland to possess a cleanly competent technique and a sense of style and the orchestra responded with a pleasant if not particularly imaginative performance. The easy-on-the-ear, lyrical Samuel Barber Adagio for Strings was played exceptionally well with generally secure intonation and fine tone quality.

There is, however, a problem which results from Newland's unconventional arrangement of the orchestra. With all the strings inhabiting the left half of the stage and the less-resonant double basses right at the back, and with all winds on the right, the Adagio projected a strangely lopsided effect, as though one was listening to a monaural recording with one ear. This was probably particularly true if one was sitting anywhere but dead centre.

The division of orchestral forces also caused some problems with the Beethoven Fifth Symphony in which a proper blend was not always achieved, particularly as between the strings and brass.

5 Band Graphic Equalizer

60 Watt Stereo Amplifier

The concept of graphic equalizer / amplifiers originated with their first design over two years ago. They are still the leader. By far the most compact equalizer / amplifier unit, it delivers a clean, crisp 50W RMS of stereo sound for practically distortion-free listening. The five bands of equalization permit fingertip control of full 12dB cut or boost at 60, 250, 1000, 3500 and 10000 Hz. The front-rear fader control contributes to the proper balancing of the speakers in a four-speaker installation. The over-all performance of the car stereo system is further enhanced by the volume control of the Model 310 which permits listening at low levels with minimum distortion.

Nine Years of Super Effort

BY PAT DUFOUR
Times Staff

Nine years ago 62 multi-handicapped children were moved into the fifth floor of the Eric Martin Institute on Fort Street.

Fifty-two were brought by helicopter from the overcrowded Woodlands school at New Westminster. Ten others came from the Victoria area.

Today only 11 remain and they will be moved within months and the floor used on an interim basis for long-term, intermediate and personal care patients.

Many of the children have been moved to Glendale Hospital on Markham and some have gone to Queen Alexandra Hospital on Arbutus. One has progressed to the point of being able to live in a group home and attend school regularly.

Mrs. Florence Roberts, now supervisor of medical services at Royal Jubilee Hospital, was head nurse on the fifth floor for the first five years.

She recalls going to Woodlands for two weeks before the children's transfer.

"I was told that if we could feed them, keep them clean and comfortable that would be all we could do."

Mrs. Norma Wilson, now the hospital's director of physiotherapy services, was one of those who helped Mrs. Roberts meet the challenge.

"We began to see that many of them could do more. We started a very strict regime for each child," she says. "Once we determined what could be done there was an individual program for each child."

"We had to change our whole attitude," Mrs. Roberts says. "In all my years of nursing (30) this was the greatest challenge of them all."

Under her guidance a team of registered nurses, practical nurses and activity aides worked to bring out the full potential of every child and staff from practically every department in the hospital became involved.

"There was one wall washer who always made a point of stopping by. There was one child who could only roll who was attracted to him and was always under his feet," Mrs. Roberts says.

The hospital's housekeepers found their lives touched by the children on the fifth floor. They "adopted" children who had no visitors, provided clothes for those who needed them, hosted parties and provided Christmas gifts.

The maintenance staff designed and built many pieces of special equipment which couldn't be acquired elsewhere.

School District 61 provided a part-time teaaching staff to help meet the children's special needs.

Adult patients at the EMI spent many hours folding diapers.

The children's need drew response from the community and, to this day, volunteers go to the fifth floor to help feed and care for those left.

The bus that helps provide glimpses of the outside world was donated by the Saanich Rotary Club. An electric wheelchair was provided by the Sidney Lions Club. The Oak Bay Lions put on a Christmas party each year, complete with Santa Claus.

Many of the special walkers, chairs and toys were designed and built by Alec Hutcheson, another volunteer.

The efforts to build a team that could stimulate the children to their full potential was so successful that people came from New York and Eastern Canada to observe.

Mrs. Stella Bigelow, now head nurse on the fifth floor, still carries on the programs she learned as part of that team.

Teacher-Contract Row Before Panel Tuesday

An arbitration panel will meet Tuesday to try to settle a contract dispute between the Greater Victoria Teachers Association (GVTA) and the school board.

The school board originally announced the panel would meet Wednesday on the Greater Victoria dispute.

But GVTA president Trev Calkins said today the panel has now decided to meet at 10 a.m. Tuesday.

The panel will meet Wednesday to decide on a settlement for Sooke and Saanich districts, Thursday for Gulf Islands and Friday for Cowichan, Calkins said.

All meetings will take place in the district's media centre, 3128 Foul Bay, and are open to the public.

Representing the teachers will be former NDP attorney-general Alex Macdonald. The school boards' representative will be Victoria lawyer J. Noel Paget.

Vancouver lawyer Kenneth Brawner was selected as chairman by both representatives.

Contract talks in Greater Victoria broke down Nov. 15 after a month of negotiations when the GVTA rejected a 6.8 per cent salary increase.

Arbitration awards must be made by Dec. 31.

Study Cost Could Kill Flats Farm: Vantreight

Saanich Ald. Geoff Vantreight says he will he urge his sons to scrap their plans for a potato farm on Panama Flats, if a consultant's study commissioned by Saanich costs more than $10,000.

The study will assess the impact of drainage facilities installed illegally on the Saanich-owned property by the Vantreights.

Vantreight said he sees no reason why the study should cost more than $5,000 and in any case it may prove redundant because soil tests have shown the land may not be suitable for growing potatoes.

The salt factor is 8.1 per cent when it should be about 2.1 per cent, he said.

Last month council gave the Vantreights the option of either paying for the study or removing the concrete drainage basin they built adjacent to Colquitz Creek.

N. Cowichan Provisional Budget Cut

DUNCAN — A provisional budget of $11.1 million, down $378,548 from the revised 1978 budget, has been approved by North Cowichan council.

Included in the provisional figures is a net increase of $252,810 for general purposes and a net decrease of $631,558 for utilities and special areas.

The increase in general purpose costs reflects inflation in material and labor in addition to increased expenses for improved services and specific projects, administrator John Berikoff.

Anyone For Canoeing?

of golf or tennis or deep-sea fishing or horseriding, straight-sailing or scuba diving or — you name it, Pacific Harbour has it! Everything from golf on an eighteen hole championship course (designed by Robert Trent Jones) to sailing in a Fijian outrigger, horse riding along the golden beach or through the magnificent country that surrounds Pacific Harbour or trying your hand at the ancient art of 'Tuttle Feeding'! How about battling it out with a 300 pound prairie — Pacific Harbour has a 45 foot cruiser already geared up to get you amongst 'em or if you're after smaller fish, you can hire a canoe or motor runabout for a spot of reef angling. In the cool of the evening what could be nicer than a game of floodlit tennis, or a romantic sunset cruise followed by cocktails and dinner at the Country Club? For a bit of Fijian culture you couldn't do better than watch a display of fire-walking by the famous islanders of nearby Yanuca or Cicia, an Island Night where Fijian singing, dancing and exotic food is laid on in lavish style. Even if you've never tried it before, have a go at snorkelling — it's not hard and the beauty of the reef and the myriads of brightly coloured fish are not to be missed. If you want to stay down a little longer you can enquire about scuba diving lessons and excursions. The whole of Fiji is filled with beauty and fascination and it would be a shame not to take in as much as possible. Consequently, a number of tours and excursions have been specially laid on for Pacific Harbour guests. The Stuart Island trip takes you on a full-day cruise to an uninhabited island where you can explore, laze in the sun or snorkel to your heart's content; the all-day Navua River trip into Fiji's interior is an absolute must — as is the duty free shopping excursion to Suva, then there's the reef viewing expedition in a glass bottomed boat (good news for people who weren't brave enough to try snorkelling!), a local village tour and many others. If you wish to explore the island on your own, cars can be hired at very reasonable rates from Pacific Harbour's own Avis Rent-A-Car depot. Space doesn't allow us to cover every activity in depth — things like volleyball, badminton, canoeing, sailing — and indoors: table tennis, bingo, contract bridge, film shows, scrabble, dancing — and more! However, at Pacific Harbour you can rest assured there is truly something for everyone. You could win a two-week trip for 2 to this Pacific paradise courtesy of the Downtown Victoria Association, Ultimate Encounters Inc. and CP Air. Contest details and entry forms are on Page 2 of this section of the paper.

Blackness: Licence to Kill

DAR ES SALAAM (AP) — Tanzanian President Julius Nyerere lashed out Saturday at African countries that he said refuse to condemn Ugandan President Idi Amin simply because he is a black man.

"Blackness has become a certificate to kill with impunity," Nyerere charged. He made the comment in a speech marking the 17th anniversary of Tanzania's independence from Britain.

It coincided with remarks from Amin, broadcast by Radio Uganda on Saturday, offering congratulations to Tanzania on the anniversary but warning that the bloody border conflict between the two East African countries will continue until the Tanzanians expel former Ugandan president Milton Obote and his "guerrillas."

Amin deposed Obote in a 1971 military coup and Amin has since accused Tanzania of harboring guerrillas hostile to his regime.

Ugandan troops invaded northwest Tanzania in late October and occupied a vast area north of the Kagera River on the west shore of Lake Victoria. Amin later announced he had withdawn his troops, but the area remains tense. Nyerere said in his speech Saturday that almost all Ugandan forces have been driven from area.

Nyerere said Amin has killed more people than have white-minority governments of southern Africa, which have been fighting black nationalist groups in protracted guerrilla wars. Human rights organizations say Amin's government has slaughtered tens of thousands of Ugandans in his seven years of rule.

Nyerere claimed that despite the situation in Uganda, the Organization of African Unity will not condemn Amin because he is black. This is "a great disgrace for Africa," he said.

Nyerere said that since hostilities broke out between his country and Uganda, he has received numerous appeals from African countries to change his mind about Amin.

"I have no reason at all to like Amin," he said. "Amin is a killer."

But Nyerere added that Tanzania does not intend to overthrow the Ugandan leader, whom he referred to as "a Hitler" and "a buffoon."

"Although I dislike Amin, I have never attempted to depose him or subvert his government in any way," Nyerere said.

Nyerere said there is still a threat that Ugandan forces will invade Tanzania again. "Amin is now massing his troops across the border," he said.

Surprising 81% Vote In Namibia

WINDHOEK (UPI) — South-West Africa's administrator general said Saturday 81 per cent of the territory's registered voters ignored pleas for a boycott and cast ballots in a controversial pre-independence election.

Counting of the ballots, which were being brought to Windhoek in a variety of ways ranging from canoes to airplane, was expected to start today with the announcement of results to follow a week later.

Administrator General Judge M.T. Steyn said 334,399 of 439,000 registered voters cast their ballots to choose a 50-man constituent assembly for the South Africa-ruled territory, also called South West Africa.

The 81-percent turnout came despite condemnation of the voting by the United Nations and a threat by the South West African People's Organization to wreck the polling with violence.

The South African-appointed administrator general described the turnout as "astounding".

Italian Reds Reject Soviet Communism

ROME (UPI) — Italy's powerful Communist party told Moscow Saturday Western Europe cannot accept the Soviet path to socialism.

The West's largest Communist party, which supports the weak Christian Democratic Cabinet of Premier Giulio Andreotti and is seeking full membership in a future government, reaffirmed its "Eurocommunist" line of independence from Moscow in a "draft thesis" for its 15th party congress next March.

The 201-page document, apparently meant to reassure Washington and Italy's democratic parties, also said the Communists respect religion and do not intend to nationalize the whole economy.

At the same time, it praised the Russian revolution and the thought of Karl Marx and Vladimir I. Lenin.

"The October (Russian) Revolution, the construction of new societies in the U.S.S.R. and later in other countries was of value as a historic break with the system of imperialism," the document said. "But this great experience showed limits, contradictions and errors.

In another rejection of Moscow's dominance, it said "there can be no universal models, no chairs of ideological orthodoxy or exclusive centres of political leadership."

In domestic policy, it called again for formation of a "democratic unity government" including the Communist party. It said Italy needs an austerity policy and this requires "a democratic political power with a strong leadership capability."

Angola 'Streamlined' By Dropping PM Post

JOHANNESBURG (UPI) — Angolan President Agostinho Neto said Sunday he abolished the posts of prime minister and deputy prime minister to streamline the government's cumbersome bureaucracy.

South African radio said Neto, speaking at a political rally marking the 22nd anniversary of the formation of the ruling Popular Movement for the Liberation of Angola in the capital city, Luanda, said he would not tolerate interference in the chain of command between himself and the Angolan people.

Neto's speech follows an Angolan News Agency statement Saturday that Prime Minister Lopo do Nascimento and Economics Minister Carlos Rocha Dilowa were sacked from their their government and politburo posts by the government central committee.

The agency said reports that Neto would abandon his post to a general appointed to replace him were "ridiculous and totally false."

Neto said he would be "very sad indeed" if he were ousted as head of state but that problems of state needed to be dealt with objectively and without personal considerations.

He criticized the Popular Movement for not being active in Angola and that "its representation among the people" was poor, the radio said. The government would correct this, he said.

The president also said some government officials would be sent to rural areas from Luanda to streamline the government and improve contact with the people.

SALT Hopes Rise As New Talks Set

VANCE
... meeting Gromyko

CAIRO (AP) — Prospects for a Soviet-U.S. treaty limiting nuclear arms brightened today with the announcement that U.S. State Secretary Cyrus Vance will meet later this month with Foreign Minister Andrei Gromyko of the Soviet Union.

Announcement of the meeting indicated the two governments may be ready to complete the long-elusive SALT II agreement to impose ceilings on U.S. and Soviet long-range bombers and inter-continental ballistic missiles.

After Vance's last meeting with Gromyko in Moscow in October, at least four major issues remained unresolved. U.S. officials said another meeting between the two men would not be arranged until the Russians signalled that they were prepared to compromise.

In announcing that Vance and Gromyko would meet again before the end of the year, U.S. spokesman George Sherman refused to provide any details, including the time and place. But Time magazine reported they would meet in Geneva Dec. 20, and that President Carter and Soviet President Leonid Brezhnev might meet during the week of Jan. 15 to sign the SALT pact, probably in Washington.

Time said Vance and the Soviet ambassador to the United States, Anatoly Dobrynin, reached tentative agreement on the treaty in Washington last week.

The two top foreign-policy goals of the Carter administration for the end of the year were a U.S.-Soviet arms limitation treaty and a peace treaty between Egypt and Israel. With the year running out, a concerted drive is under way to meet these objectives, but success is far from assured.

Refugees Prompt UN Talks

GENEVA (Reuter) — Officials from 34 countries open talks here today on ways of coping with the dramatic rise in refugees fleeing Vietnam, Cambodia and Laos.

Poul Hartling, UN high commissioner for refugees, called for two days of private meetings to rouse the world's conscience on behalf of about 250,000 Indochina refugees.

In recent months, the unabated flow of people has drained the resources of agencies, eroded international principles on helping refugees and strained the patience of such countries as Malaysia and Thailand.

'Tis Season to Buy Folly

NEW ORLEANS (AP) — For the man or woman who has everything, 'tis the season to buy folly: order something outrageous from those gorgeous catalogues sent out by the better-class department stores.

You know, an ermine collar and a diamond studded leash for his or her cheeta; return tickets on the Concorde and lunch for two at Tour d'Argent in Paris; a raccoon coat; 50-yard seats at the Sugar Bowl and a flask full of 25-year-old Napoleon brandy; his and hers matching Lear jets with leather seats by Gucci — that sort of madcap gift which numbers you among the now generation.

Now that Walter Cronkite is not coming to dinner and is going to court instead, the Neiman-Marcus Christmas catalogue wins by a rather delicious default over its Houston rival in offering the season's most absurdly extravagent gift.

Sakowitz, the Houston emporium, invited customers to "blow the socks off the bridge club" by staging the most prodigious dinner party ever with the likes of Cronkite, Neil Armstrong, George Allen, Uri Geller, Buckminster Fuller and similar celebrities arrayed around the groaning board for a mere $94,125.

But that was before Walter wanted out and to the admen's tongue in cheek inserted thumb in nostril and hollered for his lawyers.

Meanwhile, over in Dallas, apparently without this particular dinner party in mind, the catalogue copy writers at Neiman-Marcus came up with "the greatest finale to a dinner party ever conceived."

And what do you think that could be? Why—what else—but an entirely edible Monopoly game.

Get this: "From board to dice (reading from page one of the catalogue) each and every familiar part is made of delectable and completely edible candy." The board is made of milk chocolate with the electric company, the boardwalk, Vermont Avenue, In Jail question mark and other stop-offs etched in confectioners sugar. The markers, like the houses and the factories, are done in dark chocolate, and the play money is butter cream, etc.

"Pass go and you'll collect 200 calories," trumpet the catalogue carollers.

You'll also drop 600 bucks, which is the price of this tasteful Christmas present.

Freedom Cost $2,000 in Gold

KUALA LUMPUR (AP) — A Malaysian businessman who escaped from Vietnam with his Vietnamese wife and two small sons says a group known as "the organizers" is arranging the exodus of Vietnamese refugees for about $2,000 in gold an adult.

Soon Wah Hoi, who said he was stranded in Saigon by the Communist victory in 1975, was among thousands of so-called boat people who arrived on Malaysia's northeast coast in November, swelling the small country's refugee population.

A former exporter of seafood and handicrafts, Soon told reporters in Kuala Trengganu, on the northeast coast, that he did not know who "the organizers" are or whether the Vietnamese government is involved in the refugee trade.

He said he and his family slipped out of their home between midnight and dawn. They were put aboard a cargo truck which had a permit to travel from Ho Chi Minh City to the provinces.

The refugees sat in the cargo part of the truck, just behind the cab. Goods were packed above and behind them to hide them. Their destination was Chinkiang, on the coast 250 kilometres from Ho Chi Minh City.

The family was taken to a wooden shed near Chinkiang. They waited four days for a boat and boarded it with 200 other refugees. After three days they reached Malaysia.

Attacks on White Critics Mount in S. Africa

JOHANNESBURG (AP) — South African critics of apartheid say they are faced with increasingly frequent terror attacks by whites.

Harold Strachan's wife opened the door to their Durban home recently and a tense, shirtless blond man squeezed off a shot at Strachan, just missing his head. Now he works with a pistol at his hip and a shotgun within reach.

Strachan, 53, a bearded art instructor, had been jailed in the early 1960s for planting bombs and later banned until 1975. Being banned means a person is restricted to his home at night and on weekends. A banned person cannot meet groups of people, make public statements or be quoted in the South African media.

Within a week of the Strachan attack Aug. 10, someone fired two shotgun blasts through the front windows of the Johannesburg home of Mrs. Helen Joseph, 73, a civil rights activist. The same night someone tried to set fire to the car of Bayers Naude, banned head of the outlawed Christian Institute.

Except for one or two isolated cases, police have not solved any of the more than 600 attacks recorded in the last 12 years on critics of apartheid, the official government policy of race segregation.

In contrast with white terrorism, the escalating struggle by leftist black militants against South Africa's white-minority government is strongly countered by security police. Hundreds of blacks are detained without trial in South Africa and more than 100 are on trial on various terrorism charges.

But until recently the assaults on internal dissidents — usually against prominent white liberals — went largely unnoticed. Partly, this was because few attacks resulted in injury or death and partly because they were overshadowed by official bannings, jailings and crackdowns.

Several events this year changed that.

On Jan. 8, a gunshot blast through his window killed Rick Turner, a 36-year-old academic nearing the end of a five-year banning order in Durban. The former lecturer and political activist at Natal University was the first and so far only fatality among the victims of white terrorism.

While legally prevented from making public statements and partially restricted to his home, Turner endured five years of clandestine persecution ranging from obscene phone calls to finding his lawn smothered in cement.

Also in January, banned East London newspaper editor Donald Woods fled South Africa with his family and publicly claimed that members of the security police had harassed him both before and during his banning.

At least two other victims — Strachan and author Alan Paton — have openly alleged police complicity in attacks on them.

Police dismiss allegations of collaboration and deny laxity in tracking those responsible. They say that at least some of the attacks were invented by the victims, and that in other cases the culprits may be isolated extremists.

But Mrs. Joseph is convinced that the attacks are highly organized.

"I couldn't begin to tell you how many times I've been harrassed," she said in a telephone interview. "They've tried to steal my car. They've put ads to sell my house. They've tried to put a bomb in my driveway."

Mrs. Joseph said the calls and attacks usually follow speeches she makes to student groups.

"They're trying to get me to shut up and move out of the country by making my life intolerable. And this I won't do," she said.

The pattern in the attacks is that many of the victims are, or have been, restricted for political activities. About 700 South Africans are under some form of restriction, ranging from house arrest to limits on public statements.

One official government publication has suggested that Turner was killed by his own kind. The government magazine, South African Panorama, compared Turner's killing with the shooting the same day of a black terrorist turned government informer.

"Political friends as well as foes are attacked to cause confusion," the magazine said.

Turner's widow, Foszia, gave another explanation. "My husband was caught up in the spiral of violence building up in South Africa," she said.

A study in the Sunday Tribune offered another explanation: "The banned are branded traitors, hand-picked targets for those seeking scapegoats, symbols of the egalitarian ideology taking hold of South Africa."

HEAVENWARD TILT on the arrowed sign seems most appropriate in view of its location beside the gravestones of a cemetery in Salt Lake City, Utah, where 101,757 persons are buried.

Scrimshaw Niche Carved

DES MOINES, Iowa (AP) — Scrimshaw: to waste time in idle pursuits.

That was the original meaning of the word, referring to a 300-year-old craft in which ship-bound sailors and whalers passed the time carving scenes from their world on shells, ivory and whalebone.

But the delicate centuries-old art is in its renaissance in the hands of Jim Sorensen and craftsmen like him who have revived scrimshaw "for those who can appreciate the real beauty of nature."

Sorensen is in a community of talented young artists involved in the Ancient Ivory Co., a corporation devoted almost entirely to scrimshaw.

The firm uses only 20,000-year-old fossil ivory uncovered by Eskimos and traders in Alaska and other parts of the Arctic. Only ancient materials are used because, Sorensen says, "There would be no beauty if it meant you had to kill."

Ancient Ivory has expanded the focus of scrimshaw from the original great ships and scenes of the sea to roses, wildlife—of which Sorensen is most fond—and other aspects of nature.

The rarity of the natural raw "canvas" adds as much to the beauty and value of each piece as the detailed artistry that adorns it. And the Bellingham, Wash., firm has found a strong market for its creations among the wealthy.

But Sorensen and his colleagues don't want to cater merely to the rich. So they're bringing their art to the public in a series of shows across the U.S.

Sorensen, 27, has a sales approach that is high-powered only in his enthusiasm and love for his art and the people who enjoy it.

"We don't pitch," he says. "I really feel we're bringing this art to the people to enjoy, not to get their money. We do the work. There is no mass production. Each piece is one of a kind. There is no other exactly like it in the world."

Dead Marshal Peng Restored to Favor

PEKING (AFP) — Marshal Peng Teh-huai, the most illustrious symbol of opposition to the late Communist party chairman Mao Tse-tung, has been rehabilitated.

It was an important event for China, where the popularity of the former defence minister disgraced by Mao in August, 1959, had not diminished, though it had been unexpressed for two decades, observers said.

An article in today's Liberation Army Daily, quoted by Radio Peking, made the rehabilitation official.

The army newspaper praised the marshal several times in an article rehabilitating the novel Defend Yenan.

Written by Tu Peng-chen, the novel about the revolutionary base in Shensi province was first published in 1954 but it was condemned during the Cultural Revolution for having glorified Peng Teh-huai.

The Liberation Army Daily spoke of Peng as though he had been the main architect of the defence of Yenan.

The Red base area was evacuated on Mao's orders in March, 1947, under pressure from Kuomintang (Nationalist party) forces but was retaken in April, 1948, by the First Northwest Field Army under Marshal Peng who was then a general and deputy commander-in-chief of the Red Army, under Marshal Chu Teh.

The rehabilitation of Peng was posthumous. A reliable Chinese source said last March that the former defence minister had died, probably in 1974.

Various biographies say he was born in 1897 or 1899 in Hunan, where Mao also came from.

At the end of November when a mass movement began at Democracy Wall in Peking, many speakers praised Peng who had had the courage to denounce Chairman Mao's economic policies, notably the Great Leap Forward.

Carter Poster Torn Down

PEKING (Reuter) — A new poster urging U.S. President Carter to support human rights in China appeared on "Democracy Wall" here Sunday but was quickly torn down by a man who said its author was a Soviet provocateur, witnesses reported.

The man provoked hostile shouts from a crowd gathered at the wall. The commotion brought policemen to the scene but they did not intervene.

The poster, signed by "The Human Rights Group," was a copy of one pasted on a wall on the capital's main Chang An Boulevard on Thursday night.

Both praised Carter for his human rights campaign and asked that he turn his attention to "the state of human rights in China."

Did Well Not to Marry Sooner: PM

PARIS — Prime Minister Trudeau philosophizes on the problems of marriage — "a very difficult institution to experience" — in an intimate interview with the daily newspaper Le Figaro.

The newspaper's weekend edition quotes Trudeau as saying maturity is one of the keys to a successful marriage. Trudeau was 52 when he married his estranged wife Margaret, who was less than half his age.

"If one enters marriage without this maturity, it risks becoming a regressive institution, where one recreates the relationship of dependency towards one's parents.

"I did well not to marry sooner, because I was very domineering. And I doubtless would have wished to make my wife in my image and my resemblance, that is to say, to destroy her personality.

"It is only when I was able to accept that another person is able to be different from me that I took the risk of marrying."

Trudeau speaks fondly of Mrs. Trudeau, who left Ottawa more than a year ago to become a photo-journalist and later a film actress, as he recalls their first meeting in Tahiti.

"She was there with her parents and her sisters. And I found her eyes extraordinarily beautiful. I still find them extraordinarily beautiful.

Canadian Supergirl

people

WASHINGTON — Superman's girl-friend is a very down-to-earth Canadian.

Margot Kidder, the Quebec native who plays Lois Lane in the movie which had its premiere in Washington during the weekend still was pinching herself Sunday as she prepared for the glittering opening at the Kennedy Centre.

"I'm not the movie-star type, you know," she confided over breakfast at the Fairfax Hotel in central Washington.

The 30-year-old actress, a veteran of lesser roles in several earlier movies, was plucked from among many of Hollywood's better-known actresses to play the part of the spunky young reporter at The Daily Planet who wins Superman's heart.

Looking very chic Sunday in a black tuxedo-style suit with a flower in her hair, Miss Kidder contrasted her humble start with the hoopla of a Washington premiere.

"I was not brought up in plush society to say the least," she said of her childhood in mining towns throughout northwestern Quebec.

"Tonight I'll be sitting out there with all those fancy people sweating through my chiffon dress."

Promoters of the Warner Bros. film pulled something of a coup in managing to link up the Superman premiere with fund-raising activites for the special Olympics for handicapped athletes.

The result was a weekend of Superman-events for Washington.

It started with a $500-a-plate dinner Friday night at the Timberlawn estate of Eunice Kennedy Shriver and husband Sargent, where guests met the Superman stars. That was followed by parties and other events leading up to a presentation of special olympics awards just before the Sunday premiere.

Miss Kidder says she has realistic expectations about the movie.

She said her main goal is financial security for herself and her three-year-old daughter.

After that, Miss Kidder says, she already has purchased movie rights to Canadian novelist Margaret Atwood's latest work Titled Lady Oracle and will try to have it produced.

The movie, scheduled to open Friday in many cities, stars a relatively unknown actor — Christoper Reeve — as Superman. Marlon Brando, playing Superman's father, was guaranteed $3.7 million for 14 days film shooting, and Gene Hackman, who plays a villian, got $2 million.

Guard Against Yuletide Blues

DENVER — Thanksgiving can be the starting point of a depression that may last through Christmas, a psychiatrist reports.

Donald Weatherley said alcohol mixed with a depressed mental state that stems from a disappointing holiday season can cause potentially lethal behavior.

Thanksgiving, he said, is when people may recall their relationships with their families and that can remind them of domestic frustrations or sore points that have gone unresolved during the rest of the year.

"I'm aware, for example, that the people I work with in therapy the week after Thanksgiving begin experiencing depression, anxiety and depression," he said.

"This is apt to be greatest among those in post-adolescence who are still working with issues of family, trying to break away, where there is still some anger."

The depression, he said, usually extends through Christmas and since both holidays are supposed to be happy family celebrations, people who find them to be less may resort to heavy alcohol consumption.

Tough Beaners

KANSAS CITY, Mo. — A lawsuit has been filed against the A & P grocery store chain over a can of beans.

Janet Parks of Kansas City, Kan., asked $15,000 in damages as a result of picking a can of beans out of a display. The remaining cans in the display fell on her, inflicting cuts and bruises, and subsequent headaches, she claimed.

Ancient Chinese Tomb Boobytrapped

LONDON (UPI) — A Chinese historian, writing around 100 B.C., told of the fabulous tomb of the emperor Chin Shih Huang boobytrapped with a cunning array of crossbows designed to fire automatically at anyone desecrating the resting place of the man who unified China.

Chinese archaeologists found the mechanical crossbows, as historian Ssuma Chien had described them, but grave robbers long ago apparently managed to break into the tomb despite their menace.

Still, enough has been recovered from sites around the tomb to lead some experts to call the treasures "the archaeological find of the century."

A recent account of the work involving the burial complex of the Emperor, who died in 210 B.C., was published in a Chinese specialist magazine and reported in the New Scientist.

The discoveries include an army of thousands of large pottery soldiers. Some were in armor, others in various costumes. They were accompanied by beautifully crafted horses, with muscles indicating they were in combat poses.

The warriors in one batch of 540 were nearly six feet tall. They were excavated along with 24 pottery horses drawing chariots in a site a mile or so from the man-made hill under which the Emperor lies. Archaeologists believe the pottery men were modeled in the exact likenesses of the Emperor's army.

Not the least of the wonders is the accuracy of historian Ssuma who left a work called the Shih Chi or Historical Records. Writing a century after the Emperor's death, he said the vast tomb works were set in motion when the Emperor inherited the throne at the age of 13 long before he brought the dukedoms under his central power and long before he became the first monarch of recorded history to burn books.

China is building a new museum to house the finds and the even more important material expected when the tomb itself is thoroughly excavated.

According to Ssuma, the interior of the tomb was filled with models of palaces, pavilions and offices as well as fine pottery.

CITY WATCHDOG REPORT #7

Your City's Watchdog wishes to thank the reader who started his letter as follows. "I just want to vote for you to continue your watchdog report in the two daily papers. I'm one of the silent majority who reads your articles each week". To date Your Watchdog has not received a letter to discontinue the Watchdog Reports, but would appreciate hearing from anybody with some constructive criticism regarding these reports. Congratulations to Judge Arthur McClellan, who stated that breaking and entering a dwelling is one of the most serious offences in the Criminal Code, carrying a maximum sentence of life in prison. He said people should be able to leave their residences and not have others break in and steal things they worked for. With this statement in mind, homeowners and apartment dwellers should not have to sign up with a security patrol service. Yet it appears to Your City's Watchdog because of not having Neighbourhood Police and foot patrols in the City of Victoria, the lives and property of Victorians are in jeopardy. Please continue phoning 383-6259 Your City's Watchdog C. Joe Richards for information regarding City matters. Postcript: Remember a draw for trips to Nanaimo, will be made from all who reply with Pro and Con remarks regarding Watchdog Reports, P.O. Box 154, Victoria.

OAK BAY $64,900

The 3 most important requirements in buying a home are location, location and location. The Willows Beach area of Oak Bay is one of the most sought after areas in Victoria. This 1350 sq. ft. home has room to grow. The 24' L.R. with its bay wondow and leaded glass, catches all the sun to show off the F.P. and antique brass ceiling fixtures. Huge 16'x12' kitchen with eating area, formal D.R., 2 bdrms. on main. New plumbing, wiring and water tank. For this handy man: full basement and staircase, leading to 35'x16' undeveloped attic, with ocean view. Ideal place for the new master B.R. ### YOU BE THE JUDGE

Let this hearing begin. This home on Trial backs onto Butchart Gdns. in Brentwood. The property is beautifully treed with a secluded backyard. The front yard is terraced with rock walls. There is a double carport with a deck above plus extra double-car parking. The main point in my case is the home itself. A big four-level split. The evidence is:

LEVEL I

Large L.R., floor-to-ceiling rock faced F.P. — sliding glass doors to 20'x22' deck. D.R. looking out at lush foliage. Large kitchen which can accommodate a breakfast area, lots of cupboards and a walk-in pantry.

LEVEL II

Large entrance accented by a wall of rock-facing eleven feet high. Main bath super-sized and equipped with expensive features. Three good bedrooms and an ensuite off the master.

With all this evidence, my case is probably made but just to quell any doubts in your Honor's mind, listen to this.

LEVEL III

A family room 19'x21' with a wet bar fit for a King. Ceiling spotlighting — accent wall lighting and a reed-papered feature wall. Another bathroom that looks right out of "Better Homes". A large hobby room and a laundry nook.

LEVEL IV

22'x26' unfinished but excellent potential. Sliding glass doors lead out to a 12'x12' deck in the backyard. There is even another cellar area used for storage and a door access to the backyard from it.

I rest my case your Honor. My client asks only a just settlement for quick sale of $75,000 — 6802 JEDORA DR.

The Lord is my Shepherd
I shall not want
He maketh me to lie down in green pastures
He leadeth me beside the still waters
He restoreth my soul
He leadeth me in the path of righteousness for his name sake
Yea though I walk through the valley of the shadow of death
I will fear no evil
For thou art with me, thy rod and thy staff they comfort me
Thou preparest a table before me in the presence of mine enemies
Thou anointest my head with oil
My cup runneth over
Surely goodness and mercy shall follow me all the days of my life and I will dwell in the House of the Lord forever.

$2,000 Tot Proves Operation Works

TORONTO (CP) — Douglas Wiesen-Todd is a $2,000 baby.

"Before Diane and I got married, I made a promise that we'd try to have a child, no matter what the cost," says father Dr. Iain Todd, 46, a Toronto urologist and past president of the Ontario Medical Association.

Nine years earlier, he had a vasectomy after having four children with his first wife. He thought that ended his chances of fatherhood.

But in April of last year, he made a $2,000 trip to St. Louis, Mo., for a vasectomy reversal performed under microsurgery by Dr. Sherman J. Silber—a pioneer of the technique.

"Afterwards we drank champagne in the motel," says Diane Wiesen-Todd, the 32-year-old mother.

The celebration soon was justified when she became pregnant seven months after the operation. Douglas was born in July this year.

"It seems miraculous," says Diane. "Sterilization is the most permanent form of birth control there is."

Todd, a specialist who has performed hundreds of vasectomies—including his own—says he realized the chances of a successful reversal using ordinary surgery were only 30 per cent.

But under microsurgery, with a 25-power magnifying device and almost invisible thread to stitch together the tiny, sperm-carrying vas deferens tube, chances of successful reconnection are at least 90 per cent.

"Finding the right doctor for the job took a lot of research," says Todd. "There was no one in Toronto doing this type of microsurgery at the time."

Since his own surgery, Todd has performed more than 30 micro-reversals in Toronto, mostly on men over 30 who are starting their second families.

"Usually a man decides on a vasectomy when he's married and has had a family," says Todd. "Then the marriage breaks up and his second wife wants children."

Of the operation, Diane says, "Douglas is one of the few babies whose father suffered as much as his mother did."

Todd chose not to have a general anesthetic because he wanted to watch and learn the procedure.

Under local anesthetic, he watched Silber make a tiny incision in the scrotum, cut off the damaged ends of the spaghetti-like vas tube (one one-hundredth of an inch in diameter) and sew the tiny ends together with barely visible thread.

"It was a gruelling two hours, but it was just as tough for Silber," Todd recalls. "Microsurgery is one of the most demanding procedures a doctor could learn."

After the operation, Todd refused to stay in hospital for the usual one-day recovery period and went to a hotel, where he had to apply ice packs to ward off swelling.

He was allowed no sports, showers or sex for some time after surgery.

Disappointed when he found his first sperm count check low, Todd had to wait three months before the count returned to 20,000 per millilitre, the minimum for fertilization.

Five-month-old Douglas is the Todds' reward for the ordeal. Now they are thinking of having a second child.

"But we're not sure," says Diane. "More often we're talking about who has the next sterilization operation."

Restraint Gets The Maximum Out of Garden

Arranging plants for maximum value of the material to be grown requires restraint by the gardener, for most of us think first of the plants we like and secondly of their association with other plants.

This does not indicate that plants must be chosen to suit a preconceived idea of an unknown and distant landscaper. Nor does it mean we cannot grow these plants that we have always craved.

Grow the favorites by all means for the satisfaction of having them but place them first in a part of the garden where there will be no conflict. Later, in two years or so, their more mature size will suggest the ideal spot for them in the permanent picture.

To begin practising restraint, choose a bare spot near the house for instance, that is visible from a much used window, where meals are taken or where desk and chair invite relaxing to read or write. An uncluttered garden view both inspires and relaxes, moving traffic distracts.

Let us try to select three plants that might suit almost any Victoria area garden that is not totally in shade either from nearby high buildings or from tall dense trees.

Preferably the three should be evergreen, that is, not losing leaves for winter months. In this group we might first choose one of the following, each having straight long pointed leaves growing from a centre point near ground level: Phormium tenax (New Zealand-flax), color may be bronze-green or plain green; a wide leaved yucca, if not planted near a path where its needle points are or can be dangerous, control the spread early in development; Pampas-grass at a distance warranting its height and spread in a few years.

A second plant we can choose from the next group of three: dark green holly having scarlet berries; evergreen contoneaster with upright growth if to go with Pampas, drooping branches of two-inch leaves with scarlet berries in winter if to go with Yucca or Phormium; a third choice may be found in the Pieris genus, either dark green, variegated green with cream, or having bright scarlet new leaf growth in summer and fall. Delicate but attractive sprays of white blossooms add to the charm of these plants.

For the third plant in our special group of silver leaved foliage might suit, one having finely cut leaves such as Santolina incana having the finest silvery foliage of any, and easily sheared each spring to maintain low mounds.

A second choice in the silver or grey leaved group is a low grey-bluish mound of Hebe Papeana having inch-long spikes of small white bloom in May but retaining its attraction throughout the year.

The selection of the final three is capable of having probably 10 or so combinations just from the plants mentioned. But this is one way of practising selection, giving plenty of scope for an individual choice. And it is better to work out on paper than to buy first and then begin to wonder if the choice is right.

Visiting the nurseries and garden centre to record appearance of some of these plants is all a part of learning to select the right plants for a given situation. But selection must satisfy the individual.

This exercise is a discipline in training the mind to see a given space in the garden when filled with the plants we are looking at in the nursery beds.

The experience should enable us to make other groupings equally satisfactory and it teaches us to blend our old favorites with those having recognized architectural values.

Boeing Stakes All on New Model

By BRADLEY GRAHAM
Washington Post

SEATTLE — In one of the gutsiest gambles in the history of commercial aviation, the Boeing Co. is betting more than $2.5 billion — over twice its net worth — on the introduction of three new model jets.

Such a bold takeoff either will thrust the world's largest and most profitable aircraft manufacturer further ahead of its competitors, assuring Boeing's market dominance for another generation of jets, or send it crashing.

Boeing's wager hinges on the judgment that the airlines soon must have — and will be able to afford — a new family of economy jets, planes that will have to fly quieter and consume fuel more efficiently. It also depends on several assumptions — that more people will be flying in the 1980s, that Europeans and Asians will continue to favor American-made aircraft, and that the world will remain politically stable and free of a depression — none of which Boeing's top managers concede they can count on completely.

So far, though, the bet seems to be paying off. In a series of $1 billion-plus sales such as the industry has rarely seen, United, American and Delta in recent weeks have placed record orders for 80 of Boeing's innovative 767, a medium-range, wide-bodied, 200-passenger plane, the first of the new generation. Eastern and British Airways have ordered a total of 40 of the more-narrow-bodied 757s. A third new model, the 777, remains on standby.

By next spring, when the drizzly winter fog here lifts, the company expects to be soaring well on its way toward blue sky and riches.

Understandably, the mood at Boeing headquarters has been buoyant. Less so, the mood of Seattle. Local residents have greeted Boeing's new boom somewhat warily, the memory of the bust of 1971 still vivid in many minds. If there is one lesson this city has learned from the pioneering aircraft company, it is that what goes up, inevitably comes down.

"Most people are worried," said Miner Baker, vice president and economist for Seattle First National Bank and a 64-year-old lifelong resident. "They are worried that it won't last."

Baker recalls that, once before, Boeing's executives sounded as optimistic as they do now. That was back in the Sixties, just after Boeing had introduced the 747 jumbo jet and had big plans for the first supersonic transport, the SST. By 1971, with 747 sales slowed to a trickle and the SST program cancelled, Boeing was suffering a severe depression and Seattle's economy was in a shambles.

This time, too, despite Boeing's optimism and the recent rush of orders, there are hints that the flight path ahead for the company may again prove to be a shaky one. The airlines have been slow — almost reluctant — to re-equip aging fleets. In the last few years, their earnings have improved, thanks to discounted fares and increased air travel. But in the new competitive era that deregulation of the industry has fostered, no one can be sure whether the earnings will last.

Of course, Boeing does not intend to take the same fall twice. It is expanding its work force slowly, phasing in production to meet the new orders in carefully planned steps. It also remembers 1971 — in fact, most of the top management team that steered the company down remains in charge today, piloting it back up.

Even so, Boeing's competitors shudder at the magnitude of the risk Boeing is taking. "With our analysis, we are not convinced that a great enough return is possible," said Ray Deffry, director of information for McDonnell-Douglas.

Seattle remembers Boeing's crash in 1971, when 70,000 were laid off by the failure of the SST program, but company officials are keeping their fingers crossed that this time will be different.

In contrast to Boeing, McDonnell-Douglas, the world's second largest aircraft maker, is playing a cool and cautious game. It has scrapped plans for a jet that would have competed directly with Boeing's 767, and instead is concentrating on marketing derivatives of its current aircraft. The same is true of Lockheed.

Both companies, in fact, have had less success with their commercial aircraft divisions than has Boeing. Both still are trying to recover the start-up costs of their own jumbo jets. At the same time, McDonnell-Douglas and Lockheed are less dependent on commercial jet sales than is Boeing, which draws 80 percent of its business from the commercial jet market. If any company has to gamble on a new jet to stay in business, it's Boeing.

And it is in good position to do so. Boeing already dominates the industry, accounting for about 55 percent of jet sales in the free world. It has about $1.5 billion readily available in cash and other liquid assets. And its backlog of orders is now approaching $10 billion.

According to Boeing's growth strategy, its old line of jets — the 700 series including the 707, 727, 737 and 747 — should continue selling well for several years, generating cash for the new line which will be launched in the early Eighties. By then, Boeing strategists figure, the airlines will be shopping for more efficient and quieter planes.

In airplanes as in cars, Boeing expects the trend to be toward economy models. Its new jet line represents a fairly modest step forward in technology. The new planes' outside appearances, at least, lack any indication of a revolution in the making. There is nothing about the new models that approaches the awesomeness of a 747 or the thrill of a Concorde.

"The new generation doesn't fly faster or farther or higher, just quieter and cheaper," said Stanley Little, a Boeing vice president.

One other important distinction about the new jets: They will be larger than Boeing's highly successful 135-passenger 727, but smaller than its 450-passenger 747, reflecting Boeing's forecast that air traffic will grow only moderately in the Eighties. The new models also will fill a void in the company's product line. By introducing a medium-sized jet, Boeing — which often has been called the General Motors of jetliners — will be able to pride itself on having a plane for every market.

Unfortunately for Boeing, the Europeans have been rushing to fill the same void. Airbus Industrie, a consortium backed by the West Germans, French and Spanish, has announced plans to produce a down-sized version of its successful A300. Called the A310, this twin-jet, wide-bodied, 200-passenger plane will be directly competitive with Boeing's 767. And Airbus is determined to cut into Boeing's market.

Europeans account for 25 percent of world air travel but ony 5 percent of aircraft sales, and Airbus was chartered specifically to correct this imbalance. It will be tough to beat — in Europe because of a buy-European bias on the part of government-owned European airlines, and elsewhere because Airbus is prepared to offer financing terms the Americans can't match.

Boeing officials argue their plane will be technically superior to the European model. They concede, though, that the true peformance test will be when the airlines start flying both planes, which is still at least four years away.

Sears Cutting Out Sales in U.S. Stores

By JERRY KNIGHT
Washington Post

The Sears Tower in Chicago is shaking this week after Sears, Roebuck and Co.'s top-secret five-year business plan was leaked to a Chicago business publication.

The "Headquarters Merchandising Plan 1979-1983" — known as The Yellow Book inside Sears' headquarters in the world's tallest building — provides details never before disclosed about the operations of the world's biggest retailer.

The report apparently was leaked by someone at Sears to the editors of Crain's Chicago Business, a six-month old local business weekly published by the company that owns Advertising Age.

Devoting eight full pages to the Sears report, Crain's Chicago Business sold out in the Chicago Loop in two days. A shorter version of the story in Advertising Age quickly circulated through the New York retailing community.

The report is must-reading for merchants, not only because Sears is the biggest in the business — it's sales amount to one percent of the United States' Gross National Product — but also because the chain is in the midst of a major change of direction.

The report details Sears plans to reduce its advertising spending and cutback on price-cutting promotions. Although these moves are expected to reduce Sears' sales, ultimately they should increase profits.

Ernie Arms, Sears' top public relations man, sought Wednesday to minimize the impact of the leaked report, but acknowledged, "internally, some people are upset."

Sears' employees already had been briefed on the company's new strategy, he said, but after the report appeared, the company gave employees additional information to correct what Arms called "misinterpretations" of the report.

There was no formal response to the leaked report from Sears Chairman Edward R. Telling, who took control of the company in February and changed the direction of the giant corporation.

Telling has led Sears to abandon its recent practice of boosting sales with heavy price-cutting promotions. The advertised price cuts foreed the chain to raise its markups on everyday merchandise, but resulted in lower over-all profits, the report says. Telling's strategy calls for lower everyday prices, fewer promotional sales, and hopefully higher profits.

The report reveals the business philosophy of Sears executives, in the kind of self-conscious assessment rarely heard outside corporate boardrooms.

"Sears is a family store for middle-class hometown Americans," the report declares.

"We are the premier distributor of durable goods for these families, their homes and their automobiles.

"We are the premier distributor of non-durable goods that have their acceptance base in function rather than fashion.

"We are valued by middle-class America for our integrity, or reputation for fair-dealing and our guarantee.

"We are not a fashion store. We are not a store for the whimsical, nor the affluent."

U.S. Testing Heroin To Fight Cancer Pain

WASHINGTON (WP) — The U.S. federal government has authorized the use of heroin as a painkiller in controlled studies of cancer patients at Georgetown University's Vincent T. Lombardi Cancer Research Centre here and at a cancer centre in New York.

The National Cancer Institute is supplying the narcotic and sponsoring the studies, which will compare the pain-deadening effects of heroin and morphine, the narcotic from which heroin was derived in 1898.

Heroin, which has not been available legally for any purpose in the U.S. since 1956, is the drug most commonly associated with addiction and street crime.

Heroin is used as a painkiller in Britain, particularly for patients suffering from advanced cancer.

There has been much heated debate in recent years in the legal and medical communities in this country over proposals to allow the use of heroin for terminally ill cancer patients.

Dr. Franco Muggia, associate director for cancer therapy evaluation of the NCI's division of cancer treatment, said it "might be that (the studies) couldn't have been done" just six or eight years ago, when the nation was in the midst of an urban crime wave thought by some to be caused by the needs of an increasing number of heroin addicts.

The heroin for the tests is being manufactured by the National Cancer Institute from opium legally imported into the country for medical use.

Heroin is four to five times stronger than opium, but like opium is believed to have drawbacks as a painkiller. Among these are the fact that it can cause constipation and nausea, and patients can quickly require larger and larger doses to control pain.

Lone Bobby Halts a Gang

FROME, England (CP) — Backed only by his wife, an unarmed British policeman stood alone against a gang of 32 armed youths and kept them penned up in a car park until reinforcements arrived.

"It was a thin blue line of valor but it held," said Magistrate Ingleby Mackenzie in a public tribute to Constable Michael Bull of the Avon and Somerset constabulary, and his wife, Marlene.

Constable Bull, 32, and Marlene, 30, went into action when a gang of youths calling themselves the Tavern Army drove into the peaceful Somerset village of Coleford soon after midnight. They were armed with motorcycle chains, knives, a scythe, rocks, coshes, baseball bats and truncheons.

The youths left their cars in the village car park and ran amok down the street. They smashed their way into the Royal British Legion clubrooms after members had left for the night.

Constable Bull threw on his uniform over pyjamas, raced down to the club and ordered the gang to leave. His wife phoned police headquarters at Frome, then ran out to join her husband. The youths ran back to the car park. Constable Bull chased after them and brought one down with a flying tackle he had learned playing rugby football.

Several others turned on the constable, knocked him to the ground and ran off. His wife helped him to his feet and he raced after the gang.

Constable Bull shouted to the gang that the village was surrounded by police and they had no chance of getting away.

"He was bluffing hard but it worked," said Crown prosecutor Andrew Macfarlane. "This brave man stood like the proverbial English oak blocking the entrance to the car park. One car came to a halt about six inches from his knees.

Lost Youth Offered New Life

MONTREAL (CP) — Gilles, 19, murdered his father's best friend about three years ago. He was doing a lot of dope then. Drinking too.

Today he spends much of his time planning and leading wilderness canoe trips for young people.

The trips are intended to help him reintegrate into society, supported by new friends and new interests.

Gilles is one of hundreds of successes who have emerged from Boscoville, a school for male juvenile delinquents near Montreal.

Boscoville's program has been imitated in the United States and several European countries. Yet in English Canada it is virtually unknown.

Jean Cloutier, one of Boscoville's directors, says: "We have never sought publicity on the anglophone side and they have never approached us for information."

At Boscoville, 80 delinquents are housed in a half-dozen brick buildings with unbarred windows, unlocked doors and no surrounding fences.

The institution looks like a private school of modest means, with trees dotting its grassy grounds, a homey atmosphere in the living quarters and well-maintained sports facilities, including an indoor swimming pool and gym.

As Gilles shows a reporter around the grounds, he refers to his dormitory as "my home." The other boys in his unit and his adult supervisors are "my friends."

"I know people outside think this is like a prison; I know they'll think less of me if I tell them I come from Boscoville," he says. "But this place has probably given me a greater love of life and more self-awareness than they have."

With their varied styles of dress and hair, the Boscoville boys look at first glance like typical teen-agers. But after a few hours, differences become clear.

Nearly all are in excellent physical condition and tanned from daily workouts outside.

Most of their activities are in groups. It's rare to see a boy alone.

And there is no listlessness and cynicism. Most of the boys react to the Boscoville anthem, flag and other school traditions with old-fashioned loyalty.

Candidates for the Boscoville program are referred by Quebec's juvenile and family courts.

To be accepted a boy must show the potential to change, says Cloutier. Someone with schizophrenic tendencies, physical handicaps or an inability to cope with group living, for example, cannot stay.

Ninety per cent of the boys who complete the Boscoville program, which lasts an average of two years, lead law-abiding lives after leaving the institution, according to studies by University of Montreal graduate students.

But this rehabilitation rate applies to only 20 per cent of those who start at Boscoville. The other 80 per cent drop out, unable to adjust to its demands.

"Boscoville isn't for everyone," says Gilles.

Gilles gives the impression of being a well-balanced, self-confident young man.

He talks thoughtfully and frankly about the circumstances leading up to his crime even though the subject is clearly painful.

A child of a broken home, he set out to make it on his own in his mid-teens but "went crazy," pumping himself with drugs in an effort to cope.

The murder he committed at age 15 represented, he says, the culmination of years of rejection by family members, failure at school and at work and general frustration.

When he was accepted at Boscoville in 1976, he was filled with a sense of defeat.

The first step in his rehabilitation was adjusting to group living. "Everybody does every activity together — nobody is allowed to be alone. And the 'educateurs' are always among us."

Each group of 16 boys has about seven adult "educateurs" who build up a close relationship with the boys.

Gilles says opening up to an instructor about his past was a turning point.

"I never talked about myself before. Now I know it's important to say what's on your mind or it will get bottled up inside and you'll explode one day.

"And I've learned that it's impossible to live without the support of other people."

After a delinquent has successfully adjusted to group life, Boscoville tries to give him a sense of hope and self-worth.

"We force the boys to do things — because once a youth appears in a play, makes a beautiful ceramic piece or runs the mile in less than five minutes, he begins to feel life is worth living," says Cloutier.

The final step is a gradual return to the outside world.

Loneliness seems to be their biggest problem, says Cloutier. When a boy returns to his old milieu, he finds his friends haven't changed but he has. He's no longer comfortable with them.

He stresses that Boscoville graduates face negative social pressures.

"Juveniles are committing more and more desperate, drastic acts, reacting to the absence of social and moral values.

"Here we offer guidelines and set limits. I tell the boys I believe this is right and that is wrong. They are free to disagree but at least they've met someone who has principles. This helps them develop their own value system.

"If society can't give young people the guidance they need, they will become delinquent. It's that simple."

BOTH UNIVERSITY PROFESSORS

Times Staff

Two university professors — one from Alberta and the other from B.C. — are the top contenders for the post of ombudsman in B.C.

University of Calgary political science professor Karl A. Friedmann is the front runner at this point, the Times has learned.

His main competition for the $52,000-a-year post comes from University of B.C. law professor Frank Maczko, founder of the B.C. legal aid society.

The ombudsman won't be named until after the legislature convenes in the New Year but the successful applicant is expected to be chosen before then.

An 11-member multi-party legislative committee has been meeting for months on a short list of four names from the more than 400 applicants.

The committee's choice must be unanimous.

The other two applicants on the short list are now considered to have only an outside chance.

They are Peter Bazowski, retired RCMP commissioner and more recently interim administrator at Vancouver General Hospital, and Dr. Barry Moore, principal of Northern Lights Community College in Dawson Creek.

Friedmann, 40, is an expert on the role of an ombudsman. He has written numerous articles and two books on the position and has studied its functions in other countries.

He has been a professor for 12 years. A senior spokesman in his department said in an interview from Calgary that Fried-

Well-Equipped Gang Gets Away with $5M

NEW YORK (UPI) — A band of masked gunmen handcuffed 10 employees at a Lufthansa Airlines cargo hangar at Kennedy Airport early today and fled with $5 million in cash and some $300,000 in jewelry, authorities said.

The money was en route to the Chase Manhattan Bank from a bank in Frankfurt, West Germany, according to a spokesman for the New York bank.

James Connolly, a spokesman for the Port Authority police said the gang members gained entry to Building 261 at the airport at 3:10 a.m. by thrusting a gun into the face of one of the Lufthansa employees.

They forced the workers into an employees' cafeteria where they pistol-whipped one man and then left the group handcuffed, Connolly said.

The gunmen then went back to the cargo holding area where they took some 15 bags containing $5 million in cash and $300,000 worth of jewels and fled in a dark-colored van, believed to be a Ford, authorities said.

"It went off like clockwork. It was well-planned, well-organized and well-executed," Connolly said.

He said Port Authority detectives were trying to determine why a silent alarm system that would have alerted police failed to work.

Vote Ends Strike In W. Kootenay

Non-teaching workers in West Kootenay schools decided Sunday to abide by the provincial government's back-to-work legislation and return to work today.

Following a three-hour meeting, about 200 of the 250 striking workers, members of the Canadian Union of Public Employees, voted to return to their jobs in Castlegar, Trail, Nelson, and Grand Forks school districts as well as at Selkirk College here.

Fred Pyke, CUPE national representative, said the return to work is a grudging one.

"You can't keep people out on the picket line for six weeks and expect them to go back to work happy," he said. "They figure the trustees have given up any sense of honesty with them as employees."

The back-to-work legislation was passed by the legislature early Saturday morning after a marathon special session that began Friday morning.

Pyke said the dispute will drag on because the BCSTA will not make a new offer.

"We're not going to settle for what we went out over—there has to be more money and the BCSTA has said 'no, there's no more money.'"

The most controversial action by the government — it has stirred up a hornet's nest within organized labor and attacks from oppposition politicans — was to include a section in the bill ending the West Kootenays dispute which would broaden the jurisdiction covered by the Essential Services Disputes Act.

In Vancouver, the B.C. Teachers Federation said Saturday it has joined the protest against the legislation because it could provide for inclusion of educational and municipal workers in the Essential Services Disputes Act which enables the government to order strikers in some occupations back to work.

BCTF president Pat Brady said the federation recognizes that action had to be taken to end the six-week strike-lockout involving non-teaching employees, to allow teachers and about 15,000 students to return normal classroom conditions.

Local reaction to the legislation was mixed.

Rick Doyle, president of Local 388 of the Canadian Union of Public Employees which bargains for city inside workers, sees the move as beneficial to employees.

However, Jim Walker, spokesman for eight CUPE locals which bargain as a unit, said today it gives added negotiating punch to municipal employers.

And the president of the B.C. School Trustees Association described the government action as unnecessary although he said the government had no choice but to force an end to the West Kootenays schools labor dispute.

The B.C. Federation of Labor will meet Friday to map its course of action against Section 11.

Chanting Demonstrators Flood Streets of Tehran

Times News Services

TEHRAN — Hundreds of thousands of Iranians chanting "Down with the shah!" flooded the streets of Tehran today in the second mass demonstration in the capital in two days.

No violence was reported here but protesters were reported to have pulled down statues of the shah in other cities.

Peaceful anti-shah marches were reported Sunday in other cities throughout the country, but in Hamadan, 400 kilometres southwest of Tehran, the city's civilian governor was wounded seriously and his bodyguard killed by a gunman outside the governor's house. Police killed the assassin.

Meanwhile, the shah's arch enemy, exiled Shiite sect leader Ayatollah Khomeini, warned that any country, especially the United States, which continues to support the shah from Monday on would face an oil embargo once his followers gained power in Iran:

"If these governments from today on support the shah against whom all the people are opposed, they should know we will cancel all contracts," Khomeini said in a speech to 200 followers at his exile villa near Paris:

"If foreign governments continue supporting the shah, we will not give them any oil.

In the northeastern city of Mashhad, anti-shah rioters stormed the U.S.-owned Hyatt Hotel on Sunday, wrecked the ground floor and made an abortive attempt to set the hotel's nightclub on fire, reliable sources said. No casualties were reported.

There was no official estimate of the size of today's demonstration in Tehran, but it was at least as big as Sunday's. The government said 400,000 people took part in that protest, but the opposition said as many as two million participated.

Leaders of the march, reading a proclamation under the towering, arch-like Shahyad monument, built in 1966 to commemorate the 25th year of the shah's reign, declared they will continue to encourage strikes to maintain economic pressure on the government.

The main work stoppage is a strike in the oil industry that has cut Iran's daily oil production to less than half

Rebel Bases Bombed

SALISBURY (UPI) — Rhodesia said today its warplanes launched new raids into Mozambique and destroyed several guerrilla weapons depots. It gave only scanty details but Mozambique radio said more than two dozen people were killed.

A military communique announcing the strikes denied a Mozambique radio report that two Rhodesian Canberra jet bombers were shot down inside Rhodesia. "All aircraft returned safely to base," the announcement said.

The Rhodesian military command declined to give details of the action, but Mozambique radio said the latest series began Nov. 29 and that the target areas were in the region of Dondo, in eastern Mozambique; in the Tete province, in the north, and the Gaza province, in the west.

The radio said 26 people were killed and 73 wounded. It said the casualties included civilians but reported that one of the Rhodesian targets was a "political and military training centre."

OWN TEETH MARKS BITE CALGARY MAN

CALGARY (CP) — A Calgary man has been sentenced to eight years in prison in a case which court officials believe set a North American precedent for use of bite marks as identification.

Michael Stanley Hosson, 21, was sentenced Friday on charges of attempting to strangle and indecent assault involving a 13-year-old babysitter.

Crown prosecutor Peter Martin said identification of bite marks on the girl's abdomen as belonging to Hosson was unprecedented.

Marks on the victim were photographed less than 12 hours after they had been made and compared with the prominences and depressions of Hosson's teeth by forensic odontologist John Blair.

Blair said later he has made more than 100 identifications through bite marks of accident victims and of persons suspected of child abuse.

Acid Forced on Jilter

PALERMO, Sicily (Reuter) — A 17-year-old worker was forced to swallow hydrochloric acid Saturday by the parents of his jilted fiancee, police said.

The youth was taken to hospital while police arrested the couple and charged them with attempted murder.

The couple had forced an open bottle containing the poisonous chemical into the mouth of Carlo lo Cascio after he told them he no longer intended to marry their daughter, police said.

Lesotho: 1.2M in Poverty

What do you know about Lesotho?

Not much perhaps, beyond the fact that it is down near the southern tip of Africa.

But there are roughly 1.2 million people living in the kingdom's 11,720 square miles (30,355 square kilometres to those who are metrically adjusted).

More to the point, Lesotho is one of the world's poorest countries. It is overpopulated, desperately short of natural resources and only 12 per cent of its land is suitable for agriculture.

Low incomes, poor housing, inadequate water supplies and sanitary facilities as well as insufficient health education result in malnutrition, tuberculosis, typhoid and gastroenteritis.

Only 16 per cent of the children who start primary education are able to complete it. Only 10 per cent pass the final primary examinations.

Children are used as herdboys on family farms from the age of four because of the absence of the father who is likely working in the mines of South Africa.

The people of Lesotho, in many cases, are in desperate straits.

This is where the Unitarian Service Committee and its campaign director Dr. Lotta Hitschmanova come in.

Once again this year the Times is co-operating with Dr. Lotta in raising funds in the Victoria area. This year's goal is to top the record $31,369 collected in 1977.

Among the many uses to which this year's money will be put is to provide 48 secondary school scholarships in Lesotho and to build a five-room vocational training school.

Worthwhile causes and worthy of our support.

A Reunion Of Two Old Friends

By DEREK SIDENIUS
Times Staff

The performer and audience were like two old friends who hadn't seen each other for a long while.

He was nearly speechless at the end of the show when the crowd stood in the aisles applauding, unwilling to leave.

"Thanks," he said at last.

"Thank you," someone shouted.

That was Rolf Harris in action. That was Saturday night's audience at the McPherson Theatre responding.

Tumultuous.

Harris and British Columbians have had a thing going for more than 17 years now.

It's a bit surprising considering the fact Harris is Australian and makes his home in London, England.

But it was here in B.C. he got his start and Harris has never forgotten.

In an interview, he recalled arriving in Vancouver aboard P&O's Oriana on her maiden voyage in 1961. He had intended to travel to Los Angeles and make his fortune.

But instead he landed a job at Vancouver's Arctic night club. His show ran 33 weeks and launched him into a show biz career that has since encompassed television, stage and screen on three continents.

Sadly the man who gave him the break, Ken Stauffer, owner of the Arctic and Cave night clubs, died last week. Harris, who just happened to be in the province on a concert tour, attended the funeral.

"Kenny's death is a big loss," Harris said. "I owe virtually everything to him."

Harris seemed destined to make a name for himself right from the start.

As a youngster growing up in Western Australia in the late 1940s, he excelled in swimming and was Austra lian junior backstroke champ.

He had just started a career teaching swimming when he was stricken with meningitis.

For two months the doctors weren't sure he would make it. When he recovered, he says, he discarded coaching and opted instead to go to England to study art.

While in London he became involved in the Down Under Club. He developed a comedy routine and repertoire of Aussie songs using aborigine musical instruments like the didgeri-do and wobble board.

Those were the days Calypso was sweeping the charts. Harris says he decided to create an Aussie version and reworked one of Harry Belafonte songs.

The result — Tie Me Kangaroo Down, Sport — became an instant hit and made Harris' name a household word.

Harris says his zany characters, like Jake the Peg (the three-legged man), and his latest creation, the Bearded Baby, are designed solely to make people laugh.

But it hasn't always worked that way. Once at Osaka during Japan's Expo in 1970, he gave a concert and performed the Jake the Peg routine.

"When I came on stage everyone sighed aaaah!" he said. "They thought it was for real. A man with three legs! How brave it was for him to make light of such an infliction."

Harris obviously enjoys his work. His schedule would exhaust a lesser man. His current tour has included three shows in Victoria, two in Duncan and five with the Vancouver Symphony Orchestra — all in the span of nine days. He is scheduled to be in Perth Dec. 24, will headline West Australia's 150th-year anniversay celebrations on New Year's Eve, and then goes to Sydney to finish an animated cartoon.

He's also booked for a one-month engagement at a cabaret in Sydney. Then he goes back to England to start a weekly television series and in April returns to Perth for a concert with the West Australian Symphony.

His Canadian agent, Ben Kopelow, is trying to organize a cross-Canada tour later in the year.

Harris says years ago when he was just starting in the business he was introduced to Hermione Gingold after one of his performances.

"I was pretty green then. I didn't know who she was. I thought she was going to say how much she liked the show but instead she said 'You never looked at me once during the performance.'

"I replied 'I didn't know who you were,' and she said 'No, you don't understand; you never looked at anybody.'

"She said if I wanted to be successful I would have to look at people ... to win and woo them with my eyes."

And Harris hasn't stopped looking ... or winning and wooing.

ROLF HARRIS . . . nearly speechless

Fish Firm Finds A Silver Lining

By PAT DUFOUR
Times Staff

Oakland Industries Ltd., in receivership a few months ago and written off by some segments of the business community, is back on its feet and going strong.

When the fish firm went into receivership Jan. 18, 1977, there were fears it was the beginning of the end.

But in November, with its debts paid, the company was taken out of receivership and is now an economically viable part of the community.

"It takes a lot of dedication by the whole of the community — the chartered accountant firms, creditors, the plant people, legal people going up against impossible odds," says Ned Easton, who became vice-president of the company in February.

He says the uphill struggle faced by people on the Oakland payroll has made them "a force to be reckoned with."

Oakland was brought to its knees by spiralling construction costs of its Montreal Street plant and the price war between the larger fish companies in 1976 that forced Oakland to pay prices that were, at times, higher than the selling price.

Today, the plant is in full operation.

Filleting herring keeps paycheques coming in for these Oakland workers

In addition to its regular staff of around 50, an additional 25 workers have been taken on to cope with the short but hectic food herring season.

This is still an experimental fishery on the west coast but Oakland, Victoria's only fish processing company, is among the leaders in its development.

This year for the first time they are producing marinated herring products, in addition to salted herring, frozen filets and whole frozen herring.

They've established strong markets for their products in Europe, mainly in France, Germany, Holland, Denmark, Scotland and Britain.

In its struggle for financial stability the company has diversified its operations. Instead of relying on the seasonal activities during the salmon and herring fisheries the plant is in full operation throughout the year, except for a 10-day lay-over for the Christmas season.

Processing of cod, sole, perch and other ground fish helps to keep the plant going all year round.

New markets for dogfish have been found in Germany and the United Kingdom, with Oakland landing and icing the fish, which is then transported to the United States for final processing.

The plant is also processing fish for other companies, such as Quality Fish of Vancouver and the Cassiar Packing Company from the Skeena River.

Its fish-buying activity has also been expanded, and now reaches as far as Prince Rupert.

The company now has two special processing barges. "We can start brining on the grounds and continue during transportation, producing a better product," Easton explains.

The corporate structure has also been changed to handle the diversified program. There are now three companies to handle the various operations. Oakland Industries covers the capital assets, Oakland Fisheries deals with the fishing side of the operation and Victoria Packing and Cold Storage the processing.

Like other Victoria companies, Oakland's staff will celebrate its success story at an annual Christmas party this year.

Instead of Santa, however, the guest of honor will be Bill Denson, who acted as receiver-manager.

PAY BOOST REFUSED BY CASILIO

Saanich Ald. Mary Casilio won't accept the $1,338 salary increase for aldermen which takes effect Jan. 1.

Casilio, who voted against council's final approval of the bylaw last week, said Saturday she won't take the 22-per cent salary boost although she would accept — if council approves it — a car allowance for her duties as municipal ombudsman.

Ald. John Mika, who also opposed the increase, said last week he will accept only an additional $540 next year representing this year's increase on the consumer price index.

Gunshots Result In Arrest

The Saanich Emergency Response Team was called in late Saturday when shots were fired outside a Cordova Bay residence in what police believe was a domestic dispute.

After surrounding the house police rushed the building to find it occupied by three children, aged 11, 10 and 5.

Police said their father was found shortly afterwards walking along Cordova Bay Road. His wife returned home soon after his arrest.

A police spokesman said today that the individual, whose name is not being released, was charged with being intoxicated in a public place and spent the night in jail.

No other charges were laid.

Two rifles and a shotgun were seized at the residence and destroyed.

Police said they believed one of the guns was discharged in the yard but they could not identify who fired the shots.

Intolerance Charge Over School French

A Sooke resident who complained about the quality of French instruction in local schools has been accused of intolerance by Sooke School District's French program co-ordinator.

Gaston Curet told the Times his children receive French instruction from teachers who can't speak the language and make grammatical mistakes on test questions.

But Hillary Spicer said Curet should try to be more understanding.

French is taught as a second language by English teachers who work hard at improving their mastery of the language but slip up every now and then, she said.

Curet is a native of St. Pierre et Miquelon, French Islands off the coast of Newfoundland.

He said one daughter attending Sooke Elementary helps the teacher with the basic French lesson — which lasts 20 minutes each day — because he can't speak the language.

Curet said another daughter attending Edward Milne Secondary school came home with a French test paper full of mistakes — the teacher's.

There were six major grammatical errors in the wording of the exam questions, he said.

Curet said he is a former French instructor who can't teach in the public school system here because he doesn't have a B.C. teaching certificate.

Spicer said she feels Curet's criticism is too harsh.

Some teachers giving French instruction at the elementary level aren't experts, but are devoteded to improving student's acceptance of the language.

She said they have done outstanding work devoloping good attitudes between English and Francophone students.

Teachers frequently take refresher courses and attend summer school to improve their French ability, Spicer said, adding that Curet handled the problem badly.

She said he should have followed the usual channels and discussed the situation with the teachers before complaining.

Curet said he sent complaint letters to the school district and the provincial education ministry.

His Pen Makes the Logging Past Live

MY EXCURSIONS INTO the past are few and far between, but thanks to a wonderful book by old Tame Ape Bus Griffiths, I have been transported back to the highlead logger's world of the '30s.

There are any number of books about logging and loggers on the market, some written from expert inside knowledge, and others mere inept attempts by city-bred writers to deal with a trade obviously foreign to them.

But Bus Griffiths' book, Now You're Logging, is no less unique than the man who produced it as a labor of love that occupied him almost exclusvely for the last five years.

In his 119 oversized pages, Bus tells a story of the woods in words and pictures. He is a clever artist, and he works from a photographic memory richly stocked with logging scenes and situations. The result is a super-cartoon strip which not only lays out a slambang adventure story, but might well serve as an illustrated dictionary of highlead logging procedures.

I was aware of Bus Griffiths and his work long before I met him. Some of his cartoon strips turned up in Raincoast Chronicles, the magazine in which so much that is worth keeping from our British Columbia past has been preserved.

Earlier, other cartoons had appeared in issues of the B.C. Lumberman. I had also admired a notably fine set of oil paintings from the Griffiths brush, featured in a logging display in the Courtenay museum.

Then last week, on a day of wind and rain, Bus Griffiths dropped in on his way south from Campbell River to his home at Fanny Bay. With him was Howard White, editor-publisher of Raincoast Chronicles whose Harbour Publishing has brought out Now You're Logging.

I found Bus to be a robust, almost burly man, soft-spoken and with a slow and easy smile. He doesn't look in the least like my conception of an artist.

But at age 64, he does look and talk like the well-seasoned logger which he is, and we settled down amiably to hash over the ins and outs of a trade which has changed drastically with the years.

Bus remembers the first chain saws to invade the woods. He leaned back and sketched a word-picture of the cumbersome old Stihl . . .the two-man "Hitler Spe-cial" which spewed ball bearings from its sprocket head so lavishly that its operators were forced to carry a spare supply.

Hard hats? Oh yes, he was there when those came in. The first ones were clumsy and weighed a ton, and the boys wore them only under protest.

But always as he toiled at one logging job or another, Bus entertained the dream of putting down on paper what he saw and experienced.

It was hard — and still is — to discipline his work-stiffened fingers to a pen. But he persevered, and his wife Margaret, to whom he dedicates his book, kept him encouraged.

One of the most telling boosts to his career was administered by happy chance. In the '60s, Bus turned from logging to become master of a commercial salmon troller. Divorced from the woods, and homesick for them, he was overtaken by an urge to paint the logger's world as he'd inhabited it.

One result was the brilliant Courtenay series.

Bus speaks gratefully of his father, who started him on the illustrator's rocky road.

"Nights when I was asleep," says Gus, "he would draw something and leave it for me to find. These pictures were quite a mystery to me, and Dad let them stay so. He told me a couple of little elves slipped through the keyhole and worked the pen between them."

One night the "elves" left a horse which Bus admired to the point of copying.

To my mind, his book has one lack. The loggers of his adventure tale work on a truck show, and I could wish that Bus Griffith's lively inspiration had prodded him into depicting at least one logging locomotive.

I trust that in his next logging series he will show a Baldwin, a Climax or maybe a trim and tidy Shay locie steaming grandly out of the past with smoke from its stack pluming behind it.

SPECIAL HONORS TO CITY SWIMMER

For Daffoni Pendleton of Victoria, Sunday was the dream of a lifetime.

The 29-year-old competive swimmer was the only Canadian honored with a medal for her participation in the special Olympics for handicapped athletes.

The gold medallion was presented by Rosalynn Carter, wife of President Carter, shortly before the premiere in Washington, D.C., of the movie Superman at the Kennedy Centre.

Pendleton and the other athletes were invited guests at the gala showing and later met the stars.

"I've never met anyone like Mrs. Carter or all these movie stars," Pendleton said shortly before the ceremony. "It feels really good."

The presentation capped a weekend of fund-raising activities for the special Olympics — two days of parties and other events culminating in Sunday's presentations and premiere.

Eunice Kennedy Shriver was hostess at a $500-a-plate dinner Friday night as part of the Kennedy family's long-time involvement in raising money for the special Olympics.

There also were training clinics Sunday at George Washington University for the handicapped featuring athletes such as baseball's Steve Garvey of the Los Angeles Dodgers and Ron Guidry of the New York Yankees, hockey player Bryan Watson of the Washington Capitals, members of the Washington Bullets of the National Basketball Association and muscleman Arnold Schwarzenegger.

Restraint Gets The Maximum Out of Garden

Arranging plants for maximum value of the material to be grown requires restraint by the gardener, for most of us think first of the plants we like and secondly of their association with other plants.

This does not indicate that plants must be chosen to suit a preconceived idea of an unknown and distant landscaper. Nor does it mean we cannot grow these plants that we have always craved.

Grow the favorites by all means for the satisfaction of having them but place them first in a part of the garden where there will be no conflict. Later, in two years or so, their more mature size will suggest the ideal spot for them in the permanent picture.

To begin practising restraint, choose a bare spot near the house for instance, that is visible from a much used window, where meals are taken or where desk and chair invite relaxing to read or write. An uncluttered garden view both inspires and relaxes, moving traffic distracts.

Let us try to select three plants that might suit almost any Victoria area garden that is not totally in shade either from nearby high buildings or from tall dense trees.

Preferably the three should be evergreen, that is, not losing leaves for winter months. In this group we might first choose one of the following, each having straight long pointed leaves growing from a centre point near ground level: Phormium tenax (New Zealand-flax), color may be bronze-green or plain green; a wide leaved yucca, if not planted near a path where its needle points are or can be dangerous, control the spread early in development; Pampas-grass at a distance warranting its height and spread in a few years.

A second plant we can choose from the next group of three: dark green holly having scarlet berries; evergreen contoneaster with upright growth if to go with Pampas, drooping branches of two-inch leaves with scarlet berries in winter if to go with Yucca or Phormium; a third choice may be found in the Pieris genus, either dark green, variegated green with cream, or having bright scarlet new leaf growth in summer and fall. Delicate but attractive sprays of white blossooms add to the charm of these plants.

For the third plant in our special group of silver leaved foliage might suit, one having finely cut leaves such as Santolina incana having the finest silvery foliage of any, and easily sheared each spring to maintain low mounds.

A second choice in the silver or grey leaved group is a low grey-bluish mound of Hebe Papeana having inch-long spikes of small white bloom in May but retaining its attraction throughout the year.

The selection of the final three is capable of having probably 10 or so combinations just from the plants mentioned. But this is one way of practising selection, giving plenty of scope for an individual choice. And it is better to work out on paper than to buy first and then begin to wonder if the choice is right.

Visiting the nurseries and garden centre to record appearance of some of these plants is all a part of learning to select the right plants for a given situation. But selection must satisfy the individual.

This exercise is a discipline in training the mind to see a given space in the garden when filled with the plants we are looking at in the nursery beds.

The experience should enable us to make other groupings equally satisfactory and it teaches us to blend our old favorites with those having recognized architectural values.

Boeing Stakes All on New Model

By BRADLEY GRAHAM
Washington Post

SEATTLE — In one of the gutsiest gambles in the history of commercial aviation, the Boeing Co. is betting more than $2.5 billion — over twice its net worth — on the introduction of three new model jets.

Such a bold takeoff either will thrust the world's largest and most profitable aircraft manufacturer further ahead of its competitors, assuring Boeing's market dominance for another generation of jets, or send it crashing.

Boeing's wager hinges on the judgment that the airlines soon must have — and will be able to afford — a new family of economy jets, planes that will have to fly quieter and consume fuel more efficiently. It also depends on several assumptions — that more people will be flying in the 1980s, that Europeans and Asians will continue to favor American-made aircraft, and that the world will remain politically stable and free of a depression — none of which Boeing's top managers concede they can count on completely.

So far, though, the bet seems to be paying off. In a series of $1 billion-plus sales such as the industry has rarely seen, United, American and Delta in recent weeks have placed record orders for 80 of Boeing's innovative 767, a medium-range, wide-bodied, 200-passenger plane, the first of the new generation. Eastern and British Airways have ordered a total of 40 of the more-narrow-bodied 757s. A third new model, the 777, remains on standby.

By next spring, when the drizzly winter fog here lifts, the company expects to be soaring well on its way toward blue sky and riches.

Understandably, the mood at Boeing headquarters has been buoyant. Less so, the mood of Seattle. Local residents have greeted Boeing's new boom somewhat warily, the memory of the bust of 1971 still vivid in many minds. If there is one lesson this city has learned from the pioneering aircraft company, it is that what goes up, inevitably comes down.

"Most people are worried," said Miner Baker, vice president and economist for Seattle First National Bank and a 64-year-old lifelong resident. "They are worried that it won't last."

Baker recalls that, once before, Boeing's executives sounded as optimistic as they do now. That was back in the Sixties, just after Boeing had introduced the 747 jumbo jet and had big plans for the first supersonic transport, the SST. By 1971, with 747 sales slowed to a trickle and the SST program cancelled, Boeing was suffering a severe depression and Seattle's economy was in a shambles.

This time, too, despite Boeing's optimism and the recent rush of orders, there are hints that the flight path ahead for the company may again prove to be a shaky one. The airlines have been slow — almost reluctant — to re-equip aging fleets. In the last few years, their earnings have improved, thanks to discounted fares and increased air travel. But in the new competitive era that deregulation of the industry has fostered, no one can be sure whether the earnings will last.

Of course, Boeing does not intend to take the same fall twice. It is expanding its work force slowly, phasing in production to meet the new orders in carefully planned steps. It also remembers 1971 — in fact, most of the top management team that steered the company down remains in charge today, piloting it back up.

Even so, Boeing's competitors shudder at the magnitude of the risk Boeing is taking. "With our analysis, we are not convinced that a great enough return is possible," said Ray Deffry, director of information for McDonnell-Douglas.

Seattle remembers Boeing's crash in 1971, when 70,000 were laid off by the failure of the SST program, but company officials are keeping their fingers crossed that this time will be different.

In contrast to Boeing, McDonnell-Douglas, the world's second largest aircraft maker, is playing a cool and cautious game. It has scrapped plans for a jet that would have competed directly with Boeing's 767, and instead is concentrating on marketing derivatives of its current aircraft. The same is true of Lockheed.

Both companies, in fact, have had less success with their commercial aircraft divisions than has Boeing. Both still are trying to recover the start-up costs of their own jumbo jets. At the same time, McDonnell-Douglas and Lockheed are less dependent on commercial jet sales than is Boeing, which draws 80 percent of its business from the commercial jet market. If any company has to gamble on a new jet to stay in business, it's Boeing.

And it is in good position to do so. Boeing already dominates the industry, accounting for about 55 percent of jet sales in the free world. It has about $1.5 billion readily available in cash and other liquid assets. And its backlog of orders is now approaching $10 billion.

According to Boeing's growth strategy, its old line of jets — the 700 series including the 707, 727, 737 and 747 — should continue selling well for several years, generating cash for the new line which will be launched in the early Eighties. By then, Boeing strategists figure, the airlines will be shopping for more efficient and quieter planes.

In airplanes as in cars, Boeing expects the trend to be toward economy models. Its new jet line represents a fairly modest step forward in technology. The new planes' outside appearances, at least, lack any indication of a revolution in the making. There is nothing about the new models that approaches the awesomeness of a 747 or the thrill of a Concorde.

"The new generation doesn't fly faster or farther or higher, just quieter and cheaper," said Stanley Little, a Boeing vice president.

One other important distinction about the new jets: They will be larger than Boeing's highly successful 135-passenger 727, but smaller than its 450-passenger 747, reflecting Boeing's forecast that air traffic will grow only moderately in the Eighties. The new models also will fill a void in the company's product line. By introducing a medium-sized jet, Boeing — which often has been called the General Motors of jetliners — will be able to pride itself on having a plane for every market.

Unfortunately for Boeing, the Europeans have been rushing to fill the same void. Airbus Industrie, a consortium backed by the West Germans, French and Spanish, has announced plans to produce a down-sized version of its successful A300. Called the A310, this twin-jet, wide-bodied, 200-passenger plane will be directly competitive with Boeing's 767. And Airbus is determined to cut into Boeing's market.

Europeans account for 25 percent of world air travel but ony 5 percent of aircraft sales, and Airbus was chartered specifically to correct this imbalance. It will be tough to beat — in Europe because of a buy-European bias on the part of government-owned European airlines, and elsewhere because Airbus is prepared to offer financing terms the Americans can't match.

Boeing officials argue their plane will be technically superior to the European model. They concede, though, that the true peformance test will be when the airlines start flying both planes, which is still at least four years away.

Sears Cutting Out Sales in U.S. Stores

Washington Post

The Sears Tower in Chicago is shaking this week after Sears, Roebuck and Co.'s top-secret five-year business plan was leaked to a Chicago business publication.

The "Headquarters Merchandising Plan 1979-1983" — known as The Yellow Book inside Sears' headquarters in the world's tallest building — provides details never before disclosed about the operations of the world's biggest retailer.

The report apparently was leaked by someone at Sears to the editors of Crain's Chicago Business, a six-month old local business weekly published by the company that owns Advertising Age.

Devoting eight full pages to the Sears report, Crain's Chicago Business sold out in the Chicago Loop in two days. A shorter version of the story in Advertising Age quickly circulated through the New York retailing community.

The report is must-reading for merchants, not only because Sears is the biggest in the business — it's sales amount to one percent of the United States' Gross National Product — but also because the chain is in the midst of a major change of direction.

The report details Sears plans to reduce its advertising spending and cutback on price-cutting promotions. Although these moves are expected to reduce Sears' sales, ultimately they should increase profits.

Ernie Arms, Sears' top public relations man, sought Wednesday to minimize the impact of the leaked report, but acknowledged, "internally, some people are upset."

Sears' employees already had been briefed on the company's new strategy, he said, but after the report appeared, the company gave employees additional information to correct what Arms called "misinterpretations" of the report.

There was no formal response to the leaked report from Sears Chairman Edward R. Telling, who took control of the company in February and changed the direction of the giant corporation.

Telling has led Sears to abandon its recent practice of boosting sales with heavy price-cutting promotions. The advertised price cuts forced the chain to raise its markups on everyday merchandise, but resulted in lower over-all profits, the report says. Telling's strategy calls for lower everyday prices, fewer promotional sales, and hopefully higher profits.

The report reveals the business philosophy of Sears executives, in the kind of self-conscious assessment rarely heard outside corporate boardrooms.

"Sears is a family store for middle-class hometown Americans," the report declares:

"We are the premier distributor of durable goods for these families, their homes and their automobiles.

"We are the premier distributor of non-durable goods that have their acceptance base in function rather than fashion.

"We are valued by middle-class America for our integrity, or reputation for fair-dealing and our guarantee.

U.S. Testing Heroin To Fight Cancer Pain

WASHINGTON (WP) — The U.S. federal government has authorized the use of heroin as a painkiller in controlled studies of cancer patients at Georgetown University's Vincent T. Lombardi Cancer Research Centre here and at a cancer centre in New York.

The National Cancer Institute is supplying the narcotic and sponsoring the studies, which will compare the pain-deadening effects of heroin and morphine, the narcotic from which heroin was derived in 1898.

Heroin, which has not been available legally for any purpose in the U.S. since 1956, is the drug most commonly associated with addiction and street crime.

Heroin is used as a painkiller in Britain, particularly for patients suffering from advanced cancer.

There has been much heated debate in recent years in the legal and medical communities in this country over proposals to allow the use of heroin for terminally ill cancer patients.

Dr. Franco Muggia, associate director for cancer therapy evaluation of the NCI's division of cancer treatment, said it "might be that (the studies) couldn't have been done" just six or eight years ago, when the nation was in the midst of an urban crime wave thought by some to be caused by the needs of an increasing number of heroin addicts.

The heroin for the tests is being manufactured by the National Cancer Institute from opium legally imported into the country for medical use.

Heroin is four to five times stronger than opium, but like opium is believed to have drawbacks as a painkiller. Among these are the fact that it can cause constipation and nausea, and patients can quickly require larger and larger doses to control pain.
